Dewey Backs Eisenhower For GOP Bid In 1952

General, at Home, Has No Comment; Governor Insists He's Not a Candidate

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said flatly today he would not run for the presidency in 1952 and would back Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for the Republican nomination.

"Under no circumstances that I can conceive," he said, "will I accept the nomination for President in 1952 and I doubt if there is any possibility the situation would arise thereafter."

The statements were made during an interview on the National Broadcasting Company's "Meet the Press" television show.

He added that "I don't believe a man should be nominated more than twice for the Presidency."

There has been speculation that Dewey, defeated in 1944 and 1948, might have decided to run for reelection as Governor with an eye on the 1952 Presidential election.

Asked whether he had "any candidates in mind" for the Republican nomination in 1952, Dewey replied:

"Well, it's a little early, but we have in New York a very great world figure, the president of Columbia University, one of the greatest soldiers of our history, a fine educator, a man who really understands the problems of the world."

He added that "if I should be reelected Governor and have influence with the New York delegation, I would recommend to them that they support General Eisenhower for President if he would accept the draft."

Asked if he had talked with Eisenhower about whether he would be willing to accept the nomination, Dewey said he had not. At Eisenhower's home, a houseboy relayed a message to the General on Dewey's statement.

The houseboy returned and said Eisenhower could not see the reporters because he had guests.

Yesterday was Eisenhower's sixtieth birthday, and it was understood there was a family gathering at his home today.

(Guy Gabrielson, Republican national chairman, had no comment tonight on Dewey's statement.

(In Salt Lake City on his Western tour, Gabrielson said it was

Dewey's Support for 'Ike' 'Fine, Fine' to Truman

HONOLULU, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—President Truman's jovial frame of mind was unchanged today by news that Governor Thomas Dewey has indorsed Gen. Dwight Eisenhower as GOP presidential candidate in 1952.

The President heard of Dewey's indorsement while lounging on the beach at Kaneohe Bay. When asked for comment, he smilingly replied:

"Fine, fine."

JUDGE EMORY B. SMITH
. . . was giving up ministry for law

Municipal Court Judge Emory B. Smith, who for the last 18 of his 63 years waited and dreamed of an appointment to the bench, died of a heart attack yesterday—13 days after his ambition became fact.

Death came to the jurist as he preached a sermon at the Lincoln Congregational Temple, 11th and R sts, nw. From 1915 to 1923 Judge Smith had been pastor of the congregation.

His topic was, "My Apology." It was to have been his statement of faith to his former congregation. Judge Smith, although ill, insisted on delivering the sermon as scheduled.

In the church at the time were his wife, Mrs. Viola H. Smith of 1707 2d st. nw.; his son and law clerk, Emory H. Smith, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Nettie Harris of Philadelphia.

Judge Smith had no text. Actually he had tried to type his sermon early yesterday morning, but was unable to write more than a few lines, friends said.

He started:

"I was here two weeks ago and the pastor spoke on the subject, 'The Sin of Ingratitude.' That was built around the story of Jesus healing 10 lepers. Only one returned to thank Him; nine did not.

"I am one of the nine who has come back to thank Him.

"I have a little sermon this morning. I am not going to speak long . . ."

At this point, Mr. Smith slumped in the pulpit. He did not regain consciousness.

An Emergency Hospital physician pronounced him dead in the church at 11:55 a. m. Coroner A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of death due to a heart attack.

Uses Theological Term

Judge Smith's son said his father used the word "apology" in the title of the sermon in the theological sense of an explanation and defense of faith.

The Rev. R. W. Brooks, pastor of the church, said he gathered from speaking to Judge Smith that the sermon would refer in some part at least to the judge's experiences in the 18 years of waiting.

"He had a bad night," Mr. Brooks said. "He said he had seen a doctor Saturday. I tried to prevail on him to postpone the sermon. He would not.

"I asked him when he came to the church to sit in the study. He said he wouldn't. After a few minutes he changed his mind. I

Medical Men Register for Draft Today

Army Will Induct 1522 Doctors by Jan. 15; Hundreds Due to Sign Here

Hundreds of young doctors are due to register for the draft here today.

A total of 1522 doctors face induction by January 15 nationally unless they volunteer first and 19,000 are expected to register today.

Local Selective Service Director William E. Leahy said he expected the District, which normally produces one tenth of 1 percent of the Nation's Selective Service quota, to do much better than that, as far as doctors are concerned.

Those who will be listed today are doctors who were deferred during World War II to train at their own or Government expense and saw less than 21 months' service.

Ten hospitals will handle the registration here: Mount Alto, St. Elizabeths, Doctors', Gallinger, Garfield, Georgetown University, the George Washington University, Freedmen's, Sibley and Providence. Registration time is 8 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The aim of the doctor draft, Leahy said, is to stimulate voluntary enlistment of physicians, dentists and veterinarians. Such volunteers will get a $100-a-month bonus, which drafted doctors will not get.

Except for fathers, all dependency deferments in the draft may be wiped out, National Selective Service Director Lewis B. Hershey said yesterday.

It may even be necessary to take some fathers, Hershey said, to meet the President's goal of a three-million-man fighting force by June.

Tentative plans call for induction of men with dependents, in this order: men who contribute to the support of a parent or other relative, childless married men, and men with children.

Heavy Casualty List Reported in Korea

The Defense Department made public one of the heaviest casualty lists of the Korean conflict yesterday.

It reported 134 deaths, 350 wounded, 30 injured and 49 missing in action.

In Korean casualty list No. 125, it also listed six held as prisoners of war by the enemy. The department said that six others previously listed as casualties had returned to duty, and 12 others previously listed as missing had returned to United Nations military control.

Those listed as wounded were hurt in combat; the injured hurt in accidents.

Mint Production Is Stepped Up as Cash Needs Grow

The Government's money-makers are working hard and long to supply the coins and bills for United States spending needs.

The Mint has placed its employes on a 60-hour work week, six days of 10 hours each, to grind out the coins to meet the record demand for nickels, dimes, and so forth. Oddly enough, the bureau is not now able to meet the demand for the lowly penny.

Many employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing here are working from 48 to 60 hours a week to make more paper money. Dollar bills are especially short and many of them, although damaged, are being kept in circulation longer than they would ordinarily be because the bureau has not been able to keep up with the demand.

In all, more than 10,000 money-makers in the Treasury Department are on longer work weeks.

Formosa Tops Wake Speculation

Communique Seen Silent on Really Important Phase Of Conference

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

HONOLULU, Oct. 15.—In the aftermath of the Truman-MacArthur conference on lonely Wake Island, a lot of questions are being asked that were not answered by yesterday's communique.

Foremost among them is what about Formosa?

The reason this and other questions were not dealt with in the communique, it seems certain, is that the communique had nothing to do with the really important part of the Wake Island meeting.

This was the man-to-man talk between President Truman and General MacArthur, with all aides excluded. It started in a battered 1948 Chevrolet sedan at the airfield and continued in a quonset hut overlooking the Pacific.

Really Unburden Selves

Mr. Truman, sitting in a bamboo chair, faced MacArthur on a settee and the two talked for an hour. It was for this talk that the Chief Executive had made his 7239-mile flight from Washington. It was in this one-hour huddle that the two men really unburdened themselves.

The communique or presidential statement was silent on this and dealt only with what followed, the shirt-sleeve meeting in the conference house on another part of Wake Island. Attending this, besides Mr. Truman and the 5-star Far East commander, were White House, State Department and Defense Department officials. It seems to have been a round-the-table expression of views that was anything but world-shaking.

"Collided" in August

The meeting of Mr. Truman and General MacArthur, their first, attracted attention and aroused curiosity largely because of a collision between the two back in August.

Mr. Truman cracked down on MacArthur at that time for making a statement which he thought was out of line with official American foreign policy. MacArthur, in a statement to the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said that it was essential that the Island of For-

Army Takes Control Of Civilian Relief

TOKYO, (Monday) Oct. 1 (U.P.).—Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today that the U. S. Army has taken over administration of civilian relief in war-ravaged Korea from the Economic Cooperation Administration.

The move was approved by President Truman, MacArthur's announcement said.

The announcement made no distinction between North and South Korea.

East Germans March to Polls For 'Ja' Vote

Communists Claim 95 Pct. Indorsement In 'Peace' Balloting

BERLIN, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—More than 12 million East Germans voted today in a forced single-list election and Communist officials claimed a 95 percent turnout.

The East Germans were escorted to the polls and told to vote publicly if they were in favor of peace and to "go to the booth" if they were "against peace."

Voters were routed out of their homes and factories by the hundreds and herded to the polls by blue-shirted Communist youths, Soviet soldiers and Soviet-zone police stood by to watch the balloting.

Every precaution was taken to prevent voting of opposition ballots and the election guaranteed the return of Moscow-trained Germans to supreme governmental power for another four years.

The ballot handed voters carried only the names of approved candidates—70 percent Communists, 30 percent Christian Democrats and Liberal Democrats who have no effective voice in East Zone policy.

Beneath the list was the single statement: "For peace and the five-year plan." There was no place to mark a "no" vote—in fact, the voters were instructed not to mark the ballot at all.

By the millions, in 9000 towns and villages in the zone, East Germans dropped this ballot directly into the box, obeying Communist dictates of "open, unanimous vot-

Trouble Expected

McGrath Says Red Law Not 'Undermined'

Copyright by the United Press

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath denied emphatically yesterday the Administration has attempted to subvert or undermine the new Communist control law and said difficulties that have arisen under it are "no more than were to be expected."

In response to a series of questions asked by the United Press, he insisted his department is taking "every necessary step" to enforce the statute. But he said it is also making a "continuous study" of the need for changes.

Specifically he said he will "definitely" recommend a substitute for the defense plant listing proviso which President Truman denounced as a threat to national security. His proposal, he said, would give the President "immediate power to prevent sabotage and access to sensitive plants."

McGrath and several Senate foes and proponents of the control law were asked about the future of the statute as a result of general confusion over the immigration sections. The State Department last week temporarily suspended visas of all foreign visitors until it can draft new rules for their admission. It took that action after wholesale detention of visitors, including many notables, at Ellis Island in New York.

Replying to the questions, in addition to McGrath, were Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), a leading sponsor of the law who has accused the Administration of trying to "subvert" and "undermine" it, and Senators Herbert H. Lehman (D., N. Y.) and Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn). Lehman and Humphrey fought to sustain the President's veto of the act and will join in a determined effort to amend it when Congress returns next month.

Stating that "every necessary step" is being taken to enforce the statute, McGrath said regulations and forms for registration of Communists and Red front groups are "virtually" complete. But he revealed that as yet no one has offered to register although the deadline is October 23.

The law calls for a subversive activities control board, still to be named by the President, to decide which persons or groups failing to register voluntarily should be compelled to do so.

McGrath said his department

Ben-Gurion Quits in Israel Cabinet Crisis

Premier Is Asked To Make New Effort; Money Issue Threat

JERUSALEM, Oct. 15 (AP).—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion resigned tonight, causing Israel's first cabinet crisis since the new state was founded in May, 1948.

President Chaim Weizmann received Ben-Gurion at Weizmann's home in Rehovot. After consulting with all party leaders, Weizmann asked Ben-Gurion to form a new cabinet for presentation to the Knesset, the Israeli Parliament. The Knesset reconvenes here Monday after a 2-month recess.

Religious-bloc members of the 12-member outgoing cabinet notified Ben-Gurion after a heated party caucus today that they were unwilling to accept a recent cabinet change proposed in the face of Israel's economic and financial troubles.

For that reason, three bloc member ministers said, they were withdrawing from the government. Ben-Gurion immediately tendered his own resignation. The request for him to make another attempt at forming a government had been expected here.

He is not expected to have an easy task. His Mapai Party is the largest in Israel, but it commands only a third of the votes in Parliament.

The religious-bloc members who quit represent a coalition of the very devout, orthodox—and conservative—members of the Knesset. They held the portfolios of religion, social welfare and interior.

If the Parliament refuses to accept a new government under Ben-Gurion, new elections may be called. The present cabinet continues on a caretaker basis.

Ben-Gurion recently proposed appointing Jack Gering, a non-party member and a former South African business wizard, as Minister of Commerce and Industry to help out with the economic crisis. It was to this appointment, among other things, that the religious bloc objected.

The economic crisis is not a new thing. Circulation of currency has been climbing steadily and Israelis are buying everything they can get their hands on—scare buying. The value of the Israeli pound, officially $2.80, has gone as low as 80 cents on the black market.

It is not unusual to read weekly government treasury reports and find that as much as seven or eight million dollars more in currency has been thrown in a 7-day period.

100 Yanks Sought as Foe Slays 800 Koreans

Survivor Declares Enemy Planned To Transport GIs Into Manchuria

TOKYO (Monday), Oct. 16 (NYHT).—United Nations forces were advancing rapidly along three principal highways leading into Pyongyang early today and at last reports the closest column was only 35 miles from the North Korean Communist capital.

Another U. N. task force, driving up the east coast from the captured port of Wonsan, at 5 a. m. today was less than 20 miles from the enemy's Hamhung-Hungnam industrial complex, General of the Army Douglas MacArthur's headquarters disclosed. Wonsan is 90 miles east of Pyongyang.

[One hundred American prisoners were reported being carried north by retreating Red Koreans who massacred 800 South Korean prisoners near Wonsan on the Korean east coast, an Associated Press dispatch said.

[A South Korean survivor of the massacre said he heard the North Koreans planning to take the Americans into Manchuria.

[The report of the American prisoners was made to the Korean Military Advisory Group by Col. Glenn Rogers, senior American officer with the South Korean First Corps.

[Colonel Rogers asked for a United Nations team to investigate the report.

[The survivor said the North Koreans started north from Wonsan by train with the 800 South Koreans and 100 Americans.

[He said they abandoned the train north of Wonsan, near Yonghung, and executed 300 South Koreans. The survivor said the North Koreans then poured gasoline on the 300 bodies and set them afire.

[The 500 remaining South Koreans and 100 Americans were marched on foot to Yonghung, the survivor said. There the 500 Republican troops were massacred by the North Koreans, the prisoner added.

[The United Press said a strong patrol was speeding west from Yonghung in an attempt to save the American prisoners.]

Destruction of about 10,000 Communist troops as an organized military force, in the Kumchon area north of the strongest fortifications beyond the 38th parallel has left fewer than 58,000 North Korean soldiers available to defend what remains of Communist territory, according to intelligence officers at headquarters here.

Tito Decree Cuts Special Privileges Of Nation's Reds

BELGRADE, Oct. 15 (NYHT).—The regime of Premier Marshal Tito today announced a sweeping decree that provides for the virtual abolition of many special economic privileges enjoyed in Yugoslavia by the Communist Party. It was regarded by Western observers as one of the marshal's main domestic acts since he split with the Soviet Union.

With limited exceptions, the decree places the greater part of the party's 500,000 members on the same footing as the rest of the Yugoslav population in obtaining food in the current drought disaster. It will go into effect in two weeks.

The decree provides that no one in the country can have more consumer goods than mine, forest and railway workers. Communists who fulfill "specially responsible and hard work" or persons who do "important scientific tasks" will be allowed above-average rations, but below those of the heavy industrial workers.

The notorious "special shops" for Communists will be abolished, except for a limited number of persons performing particularly valuable work.

Letter Returned, Marked 'Deceased'

Son Alive, 23-Day Ordeal Of Falls Church Mother Ends

"Deceased" written on a letter sent to her soldier son and returned from Korea, caused a Falls Church mother 23 days of anxiety.

Mrs. Grace Rollins' ordeal ended a few days ago when she received a letter from her 17-year-old son, asking why she had not written.

Pfc. Marvin B. Showalter is the son of Mrs. Rollins, and step-son of S. C. Rollins, 6503 N. 16th st.

Mrs. Rollins said she tried repeatedly to learn from the Defense Department whether her son was dead or alive. She received always the same reply—his name was not on any casualty list.

"I was so sick and upset I didn't know what to do," she said. She called the Red Cross and they referred her to the Army Adjutant General's office. Later a neighbor, Marine Lieut. Col. C. W. Shisler, called the Defense Department, but was told no information had come from Korea following an inquiry.

Mrs. Rollins mailed the letter to her son on August 8. It was returned September 2. Under the word "Deceased" was the signature "Lieut. Wm. Sullivan, F. A."

On September 25 Mrs. Rollins received a letter dated September 18 from her son: "I'm awfully lonesome, Mother. Why don't you write?"

Private Showalter enlisted last October 26 on his seventeenth birthday, and went to Korea in June.

'Perfectly Contemptible'

Navajos Hit Hopi Draft Plaint, Offer Scouts and Land for War

The attitude of 63,000 Navajo Indians is in "striking contrast" to that of the Hopis, who have demanded exemption from the draft, Norman M. Littell, their tribal attorney, declared yesterday.

Not only do they consider the Hopi stand "perfectly contemptible," Littell said, but the Navajos have offered their services and their lands to the Government in the Korean crisis. At the request of the Navajo Council of 74, Littel declared, he offered the Army "any part" of their reservation as a training area and suggested that units of Navajo scouts be formed.

The reservation, he said, is adapted particularly well to jungle training and the Navajos themselves have a long and honorable record as Army scouts.

In the Pacific during World War II, Littel pointed out, they not only carried out difficult patrol missions but talked by radio in their own language "a code the Japanese never could break."

Little quoted Sergt. Scotty Begay, a Navajo leader and war veteran as saying, "Every Navajo I know would give his arm to join such a (scout) unit and fight that way for our country."

Lodged on River Rock

Body of Girl Drowning Victim Found by Fliers and Canoeists

The body of 13-year-old Roberta Gilbert was found lodged against a rock in the middle of the Potomac River yesterday, three miles below Great Falls, where she was swept to her death eight days ago.

Pilots of the Falls Church Civil Air Patrol spotted the body of the daughter of Metropolitan Police Pvt. W. K. Gilbert, at 4:15 p. m., more than eight hours after they took off in the air-land river search.

The body was recovered two miles north of Glen Echo by two canoeists, who themselves risked death in the swollen, churning river, Horace H. Curtis, a 66-year-old Agriculture Department chemist, and John G. Loehler, 48, a consultant engineer.

They were directed to the almost inaccessible scene by CAP Squadron Commander Lieut. Cecil E. Brown, and Pilot Robert R. Hickenell.

The canoeists tried desperately to paddle upstream, Brown said, but the swirling rapids forced them to take the body 4000 treacherous yards downstream, to Sycamore Island.

The Glen Echo Fire Department took the body to a Bethesda funeral home, where

MacArthur Returns, Set on a 'Free Asia'

Man for Man

Soviet Army Tops U. S. in Fire Power

FRANKFURT, Germany, Oct. 15 (AP).—Russia's army packs more fire power than the American army—man for man. Russia has the best tank and the best self-propelled big gun in the world.

These are the admissions of the U. S. Army itself—what American troops in Germany are taught. The estimates are based on detailed secret reports.

In its analysis of these reports, the U. S. Army pulls no punches but offers this consolation:

The Soviet army pays a high price for its heavy fire power. It loses staying power, balance and mobility. A U. S. division can maintain itself in combat longer, move faster, and keep better communications.

The U. S. Army recently announced a big increase in the fire power of its infantry division. But apparently the new Soviet rifle division still outguns it, on a man-for-man basis.

Although it contains only 60 percent as many men as the United States infantry division—11,000 Russians to 18,800 Americans—the Russian rifle division is credited with having 75 percent of the shock power of its larger American counterpart.

The Soviet mechanized division has about 13,000 men, yet it is called roughly comparable in fire power to the United States armored division of 16,000 men. So is the Soviet tank division of 10,300 men.

Other points in the Army appraisal:

The United States has no match for the Soviets' 51-ton tank, the Joseph Stalin III, with its 122-mm. gun and its heavy armor. America's biggest tank, the 46-ton Pershing, carries only a 90-mm. gun.

The Russians' medium tank, the T-34 of 35 tons, weighs about the same as the United States Sherman tank. But it mounts an 85-mm. gun to the Sherman's 76-mm.

The Red army proved the superiority of its mortars in the last world war. These simple, rugged weapons took terrific toll of the Germans in the Soviet counter-offensive.

Artillery is the traditional strong point of the Russian Army. It has been since Peter the Great.

The biggest Russian weakness appears to be in the generally poor quality of ammunition—especially for light arms and automatic weapons. Here the Americans are vastly superior.

United States Army reports also say the Russian communications and transport equipment are inferior.

There are indications the Soviets may be overcoming a World War II weakness—their failure to exploit airborne operations effectively. Since 1945 the Red Army has reorganized its airborne units and conducted large-scale training in airborne attacks.

TOKYO, Oct. 15 (U.P.). — Gen. Douglas MacArthur returned today from his Wake Island conference with President Truman and began making final plans for a "knockout" blow against the North Koreans.

MacArthur landed at Tokyo's Haneda airport at 4:02 p. m. (2:02 a. m. EST) and told newsmen that President Truman's visit to the Pacific will "arouse great enthusiasm throughout the Far East."

He said the President's historic trip to Wake will be interpreted by peoples in the Far East as "symbolizing a firm determination that peace shall be secured in the Pacific and that Asia shall be free, not slave."

MacArthur left the airport for his home at the American Embassy with a bundle of secret papers his staff members brought to the airport for him, and he lost no time in getting on with his part of the job to see that Asia shall be free.

At the airport MacArthur also got—along with the official papers—the Saturday football scores.

"I greatly enjoyed meeting the President and conferring with him and his advisers on problems related to the Far East—particularly the Korean. Japanese and Philippine areas," MacArthur said as he landed in Japan.

John Muccio, United States Ambassador to Korea who attended the Wake Island conference with MacArthur, will remain in Japan 2 days for further talks here before returning to Korea.

In 33 hours MacArthur flew 4000 miles, met President Truman for the first time, came closer to the United States than at any time since his wartime trip to meet President Roosevelt in Honolulu, and returned to direct the final blow against the Korean Communists.

Truman Wins Bet On Pali's Weather

HONOLULU, Oct. 15 (AP).—President Truman won a 50-cent bet today from his administrative assistant, George M. Elsey. It happened on their visit to the traditionally rain-drenched Pali, a 1186-foot high cliff over which King Kamehameha I is supposed to have had his enemies pushed.

Elsey bet the President it would not rain, banking on Mr. Truman's traditional luck on the weather. Mr. Truman took it up and won. It poured.

The rain stopped as the party descended the steep windward side of the 2000-foot high Koolau range.

Reds See Plot For Aggression In Wake Talks

MOSCOW, Oct. 15 (AP).—Izvestia, Soviet government organ, declared today the Truman-MacArthur meeting in the Pacific was arranged to work out plans to "expand American aggression" in the Far East.

In its first editorial comment on President Truman's conference with General MacArthur, the paper said the United States Government was making use of the United Nations resolutions on Korea to extend aggression there, and thereby raise a wave of war psychosis.

In such a psychosis, the paper added, it will be easier to carry out preparation for a new world war.

It said leading American officials recently blurted out what is in the back of their minds, by expressing fears of a serious economic crisis should there be early peace.

U.S. Devices to Rob Enemy Subs Of Advantage, Matthews Says

By the United Press

Secretary of the Navy Francis P. Matthews said yesterday advances are being made in anti-submarine defenses that will rob enemy undersea craft of the advantage they hold over certain surface vessels.

He made the statement on the television show, Battle Report, in which he also warned would-be aggressors in the Pacific the Navy could strike back within a few hours.

Also heard were Budget Director Fred Lawton, on the urgency of effective anti-inflation curbs, and Perle Mesta, U. S. Minister to Luxembourg who said Western Europe is firmly behind this country's drive against aggression.

Matthews' statement was regarded as particularly important in view of Russia's heavy concentration of submarines in the Pacific.

"Advances now are being made," he said, "which will return to antisubmarine warfare the advantage now held by submarines over certain surface vessels."

While he did not elaborate, he may have referred to plans for a midget submarine. Designed especially for such work, it would provide an inexpensively operated "target" for planes and ships engaged in antisubmarine training.

The United States also is working on two types of atom-powered submarines, which could cruise submerged almost indefinitely.

The Navy likewise is workng on two radar picket submarines designed to detect and track down enemy undersea boats.

Matthews loudly praised the work of the Navy, Army, Marine Corps and Air Force in Korea and added significantly:

"All potential trouble spots in the Pacific are now within a few hours punitive action by the United States Navy."

Russia has big bases at Vladivostok and Port Arthur.

Question of Formosa Tops Speculation On Truman-MacArthur Talk on Wake Island

mosa be kept in friendly hands—that not to defend it would be to "turn over the fruits of our Pacific victory to a potential enemy."

President Truman at the time was anxious to keep Red China out of the Korean war, as he still must be, and also he wanted to emphasize that Formosa was a question to be settled by the United Nations.

Mr. Truman directed MacArthur to withdraw his VFW statement, which MacArthur promptly did. A few days later Mr. Truman announced that the Navy's Seventh Fleet would be withdrawn from Formosan waters once Korea had been pacified.

Against this background, there was much speculation about how Mr. Truman and General MacArthur would act when they first came together on Wake Island.

The actual event was happy in the extreme. In the faint light of a Pacific dawn, the two men greeted each other like long-separated pals. Mr. Truman pumped MacArthur's right hand and used his left to pat him on the shoulder, smiling all the while.

It was clear that the two men were predisposed, even determined, to hit it off.

It also was clear that they were starved for a good, satisfying talk. They started it as soon as they were settled in the sedan that took them to the Quonset hut.

What they talked about is something that neither discussed with reporters later. Mr. Truman, however, is a forthright man not given to beating about the bush. It is taken for granted, therefore, that he talked to MacArthur about Formosa and about a great many other things not mentioned in the communique, including the whole question of Russia's threat to the peace of the world.

After the general meeting in the conference house, reporters attempted to interview General MacArthur as he stood at the doorway. He seemed distant, preoccupied. He parried all questions by telling the reporters to see Truman's "publicity man," Secretary Charles G. Ross.

Around the President, however, General MacArthur's demeanor was altogether different. His ordinarily stern visage softened after Mr. Truman had pinned the Distinguished Service Medal on his breast. A moment later, onlookers were impressed by the ring of sincerity in the famous soldier's voice as he said: "Goodby, sir. Happy landing. It's been a real honor to talk to you."

General MacArthur in the flesh looks pretty much as he does in his pictures, except that the camera gives no idea of the soiled and faded appearance of his garrison cap. This looks like something that might have weathered the Trojan war. He is a handsome man and probably could pass for one younger than 70. Nevertheless, two wars and 13 years have changed him from the General MacArthur that Washington knew when he was Chief of Staff back in the 1930s. For one thing, there is a slight stoop. And then, of course, there are lines that have come with the years.

The reasons for Mr. Truman's long journey to the Pacific doubtless will be more apparent after he has spoken in the San Francisco Opera House Tuesday night. He has promised to tell the world about America's policy and how its affects the peace of the world. It is expected to be a strong speech. He has promised also to "drive the matter home" in another speech before the United Nations General Assembly on October 24.

No new policy has come from the Truman-MacArthur meeting and none was expected. The net result, it would seem, is a better understanding between the man who makes the policy and the one who carries it out in the Far East.

Mr. Truman was in a jolly mood today. Gen. Wallace Graham, his physician noted that he was more relaxed than he had been since the outbreak of the Korean war in late June

The President spent a good part of this Sabbath at the Navy officers' beach club at Kailua. He took a swim in the Pacific and indulged in some horseplay at the expense of General Graham. He got hold of some ice cubes and dropped them inside of Graham's bathing trunks.

He ate a steak-and-potatoes luncheon from a table covered with ti leaves and then went on a sightseeing tour of the Island of Oahu. As he drove along roads lined with palm and hibiscus, and viewed such famous landmarks as Diamond Head, and the wind-swept Pali (cliff) he frequently exclaimed over the grandeur.

Mr. Truman will board his airplane, the Independence, sometime after midnight for the flight to San Francisco. He is scheduled to arrive back in Washington Wednesday.

The glistening presidential plane landed at 10:15 p.m. last night (3:15 a.m. Sunday, EST) at Hickam Field after an eight hour 40-minute flight of 2,300 miles from tiny Wake in the Mid-Pacific.

Mr. Truman and his party of high military and civilian advisers will leave Hickam Field at 6:30 a.m. Monday (11:30 a.m. EST).

Shift of U. S. Power To Europe Expected

By John M. Hightower
Associated Press Staff Writer

President Truman and General MacArthur apparently have agreed on plans for shifting the bulk of American military power from the Far East to western Europe immediately after the United Nations victory in Korea is completed.

That is one of the future lines of action indicated by the President's statement on the Wake Island conference. MacArthur initialed the document, thereby lending his backing to it.

There also appeared heavy stress on United Nations action, as distinguished from moves by this country on its own, on problems of the western Pacific.

This may provide the clew to the main point of the Truman-MacArthur discussion—the future Formosa. If President Truman followed the line which has been laid down by his advisers here, he undoubtedly told MacArthur the United States intends to seek peaceful settlement of the Formosan issue through the United Nations, does not intend to involve United States forces any more deeply in defense of the island, and will rely on the United Nations to dissuade the Chinese Reds from trying to take Formosa by force.

Humphrey Assails Backing of Bao Dai

By the United Press

Senator Hubert H. Humphrey (D., Minn.) last night said the United States should find someone else to support in Indo-China other than French-backed Emperor Bao Dai.

He made the statement on Blair Moody's "Meet Your Congress" forum over Radio Station WINX here.

He and Senators Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) and William H. Benton (D., Conn.) agreed this country should foster a "great campaign of truth" to convince the world the United States wants peace and freedom for all peoples.

Humphrey said Americans don't know much about southeast Asia, and are "making a lot of mistakes."

"We identify ourself with their bad past of colonialism and exploitation," he said. "Unless we do something about it we are going to lose there by default."

He noted that this country is supporting Bao Dai in Indo-China against forces led by Communist-trained Ho Chi Minh, and said:

"Bao Dai has been on the banks of the Riviera during the past months, while Ho has been leading the fight. We are backing Bao Dai. I suggest we look for another choice—identify ourselves with native, liberal positive leaders from their own people."

Benton pointed out that before the Chinese Communists conquered that country, Chinese landlords were taking 65 percent or more of the proceeds from the average farmer. He said the Communists softened resistance by offering to correct this.

For Freedom

Amboinese Ask Aussies' Aid in Fight

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Oct. 15 (AP).—The self-proclaimed South Moluccan Republic, beset by earthquakes, tidal waves and military conflict, appealed to Australia today for support in its struggle for freedom.

Radio Amboina disclosed last night that last Sunday's earthquake and subsequent tidal wave in Amboina also hit the small islands of Saparua Haruku and Nusa Laut, to the south.

Damage on Saparua was reported at $130,000. No casualty figures have been given by Radio Amboina, and Indonesia has imposed a news blackout on developments there.

Because of Amboina's isolation, the radio is the only source of information on the situation there. Travel permits to Amboina, seat of the South Moluccan government, are unobtainable. Operations are entirely in the hands of the territorial commander, Colonel Kawilarang. Even officials in Jakarta privately admit they are ignorant of the day-to-day developments.

The South Moluccan secretariat in Jakarta, in a message to the Australian Parliament on behalf of the "Moluccan people in Java," appealed to the "Australian people and especially those who fought with us on Amboina against the Japanese" to aid the Amboinese in their fight for freedom.

The South Moluccan Students Corps appealed to American students to send aid to Amboina.

French Leaders to Map New Indo-China Strategy

SAIGON, Indo-China, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—A path of broken bodies and broken fortresses today marked what once were the strongest links in the French defenses along the border of Indo-China and Communist China.

How many French corpses lie on the sun-scorched rocks of Indo-China's northern frontier no one yet knows, but it is believed here that France may have suffered her most serious single military defeat since World War II.

Gen. Alphonse Juin, resident general in Morocco and France's Italian campaign commander, and Cabinet Member Jean Letourneau, minister in charge of relations with the associated states of Indo-China, are to arrive here Tuesday to map new strategy.

Viet Nam's sporty Emperor Bao Dai also will come home this week from his vacation villa on the French Riviera.

The largest remaining French frontier position is Langson, 75 air miles northeast of Hanoi.

Meanwhile, the vast Red River rice delta and the hub city of Hanoi stand in danger.

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

DELTA-WING FLYING—The British Avro 707-B Flying Triangle appears in a test flight made in England recently. The plane is equipped with automatic observers, movie cameras and other research instruments for studying delta-wing flying. The opening in the center of the fuselage is the intake for a Derwent jet engine and the cigar-shaped cylinder at the base of the rudder contains an anti-spin parachute which can also be used to slow down the plane's speed on landing

British Papers Break Out in Rash of Flying Saucers

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Britain's mass-circulation Sunday newspapers broke out today in a rash of flying saucer-itis.

Four of the weeklies, with a combined circulation of nearly seven million, devoted much of their front pages to a debate on this already much-debated subject.

Both Lord Beaverbrook's Sunday Express and the Sunday Dispatch continued independent series of articles they started last week, in which they warned that other planets "may be spying on us."

On the opposite tack, the Reynolds News and the Sunday Chronicle gave equal space to what the former called "the great flying saucer myth."

The Express and Dispatch centered today's versions on the unexplained death of United States Fighter Pilot Capt. Thomas Mantell while chasing a "mysterious object" over Fort Knox, Ky., January 7, 1948.

Reynolds News printed statements from British scientists and aeronautical experts debunking the flying saucer theory. The Sunday Chronicle spread over its front page a photo of a "real" flying saucer in full flight. "Turn to Page 3 for an explanation of this mystery," said the caption.

Western Europe's Ability To Meet Arms Plans Doubted

By The Associated Press

The Foreign Policy Association questioned yesterday whether Western Europe can make the defense effort asked by the United States.

An association report said the Western European countries can put 30 divisions in the field by 1953 if present defense plans are carried out. But it said the lingering effects of the war—the "human scars" as well as the physical damage—make mobilization difficult.

Of the Atlantic Pact nations only Britain and France can give "substantial" aid to this country, the report said, adding:

"Since Britain is just emerging from a decade of economic hardship, it is not likely that anything short of actual involvement in another war can overcome the grumbling and discontent that would arise if the welfare state was turned into a military state.

"Even if spurred by another war, it is a moot question whether the heroic British people could once again summon the stamina to undergo a third war."

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

DURING my boyhood in St. Louis, a retired sea captain settled on our block and on sunny afternoons used to regale me with romantic talk of far-off places bearing names like jewels. He told me, for instance, that the best cinnamon is stripped from the seaward side of trees growing within sight of the ocean on Celebes Island; that the finest mace comes from the Banda Isles and that the flowery buds of Amboina's trees are dried to become the world's most distinctive and delicately-flavored cloves. I still try to see that the spices we use originate in these places, and like to think that the superior flavor of Parchey's foods is due to such meticulousness. All this is apropos of news that a monster 656-foot tidal wave recently swept the shores of Amboina Island . . . a name that to me is heavy with the suggestion of subtle and exotic flavor!

In an admittedly unorganized and spontaneous poll last week, 68% of our patrons gave filet mignon their votes as the most desirable of all foods. When I reported this to Chef Heller, he nodded in solemn approval. Better than anyone else, he knows the pains we take to produce for you the perfect filet mignon. He himself supervises the cutting of our filets from the heart of the choicest, most perfectly-aged beef tenderloin. He prepares the delicate searing sauce into which each is dipped before broiling. He hovers over the range to make sure that yours is broiled to your exact specification . . . neither a degree too rare nor an instant too long. He makes the rich sauce in which it is drenched; a sauce of newly-sliced, fresh, white mushrooms, creamery butter and a lacing of fine wine. And finally, he oversees preparation of the heaping platter of crisply-dry, piping-hot French fried potatoes accompanying your order. Only to Salad Chef Wilbur Smith does he entrust the making of your hearts of lettuce salad, confident that he is without peer as a concocter of Roquefort dressing. So it is only natural that Chef Heller is pleased because you think our filets mignon are the world's most delectable food. "We try hard enough to make 'em perfect," he says simply. Try one tonight. 19th at K st. nw.

Yanks Drive Reds Back on Capital

By Red One

War Is Stern As Our Tank's Bitten on It

WITH U. S. FORCES, NORTH KOREA, Oct. 13 (Delayed) (AP).—Sergt. Marshall D. Drewery sat in the shade of a North Korean farmhouse today—telling of the indignity of being rammed in the stern by a Communist tank.

Drewery's tank, an M-4 Sherman, received the bumping.

The sergeant, of Ripley, Miss., and his four crewmen escaped injury, but their tank was chewed astern and the muzzle of its gun scuffed.

It all happened this morning when three United States tanks knocked out three Russian-made T-34s and blunted a Red counter-attack on United States First Cavalry troops.

Drewery's tank was parked on the road to Pyongyang, about 8 miles south of Kumchon. It's stern was to the north. it's 76-mm. gun pointing likewise.

The three North Korean tanks came rolling down the road toward the American positions.

Drewery said: "The first T-34 was within 50 yards when my gunner fired our first shot. We didn't know for sure if we hit him. He kept coming and got up to about 20 yards from us and we hit him again.

"He kept on coming and ran into the back end of us. We pulled away from him and fired again. He was on fire by that time. Damned if he didn't keep on coming and run into us again. Our gun was right up on top of his turret. We pulled away and hit him again."

Hollingsworth's first blast apparently hit the 85-mm. gun barrel on the Red Tank. The barrel was split like a dandelion stalk.

Bonfires Are Made Of Stalin, Kim Pictures

MUNCHON, Korea, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Bonfires are burning briskly in cities and villages all along the east Korean coast in advance of Korean Republican troops, fueled by pictures of Premier Josef Stalin and North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung.

Second DSC Awarded Major General Gay

U. S. FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION HEADQUARTERS, Korea, Oct. 15 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Hobart R. Gay, commanding the First Cavalry, has been awarded a second Distinguished Service Cross. The citation lauded him for his "continuing presence at the front under enemy artillery, mortar and small-arms fire with disregard for his own safety."

More British Troops Are on Way to Korea

TOKYO, Oct. 15—(AP)—Lieut. Gen. Sir John Harding said today more British troops are on their way to join United Nations forces in Korea.

Harding, commander in chief of British land forces in the Far East, said the Twenty-ninth Independent Brigade, fully equipped with infantry, tanks and auxiliary arms, was en route to Korea by sea.

3 German Reds Jailed

HAMBURG, Germany, Oct. 15 (U.P.). — Three Communists were sentenced to terms of 12 to 18 months here today for storming a police station last month in an attempt to release Reds arrested for posting antiallied posters.

of Namchongjom, 50 air miles southeast of the Red capital of Pyongyang.

United States Eighth Army Headquarters reported the first Cavalry Division ran into stubborn Communist mortar, machine-gun and small-arms fire.

Leif Erickson, AP correspondent, reported the developments in a brief telephone call from headquarters. Communications from the front remained scanty.

Erickson said an Eighth Army spokesman reported the North Koreans fought from well-dug-in positions, but the American attack finally drove them into a withdrawal by midafternoon Sunday.

Some enemy forces fell back towards Sinmak, 11 miles north of Namchongjom, while others retreated towards Singye, 14 miles to the northeast.

South Koreans Advance

Singye was reported taken Saturday by the South Korean First Division, which today pressed on 5 and 7 miles northwest and north.

The South Korean First is operating separately from the First Cavalry.

The other two tips of the four-pronged United Nations drive toward the Communist capital also met opposition, but advanced.

The Republican Third Division, pushing westward from captured Wonsan, important east-coast port, ran into a tank-supported Red column Sunday, but beat it off 60 air miles east of Pyongyang.

The Communists struck well to the rear of advance South Korean units at the town of Tongyang with an estimated regiment of troops. Thereafter, however, the enemy was driven back along a road south of the main Wonson-Pyongyang highway.

The Republican Eighth Division, meanwhile, was reported to be north of Koksan, also 50 miles southeast of Pyongyang, and the First Division had elements in Taepyong after a 5-mile advance, Erickson said. Taepyong is 5 miles northwest of Singye.

The First Division also was reported to have troops in Hwasong, 7 miles north of Singye.

The South Korean Eighth and First Divisions, moving northwest in the center of the four-armed push on Pyongyang, were said to be meeting considerably less resistance than the American First Cavalry to the west or the third ROK units smashing westward from the Wonsan area.

MacArthur Gets Fill-In

A virtual communications blackout, caused by failure of the single-circuit telephone line available to field correspondents from the Seoul area, obscured latest front developments. Erickson was able to get through to Tokyo, however, with a brief message detailing Sunday's fighting.

Aside from limited battlefront advances, the over-all war situation was cloaked in secrecy. General MacArthur said, on landing at Haneda Airport in Japan after his 4000-mile roundtrip to Wake Island, that he and President Truman "greatly enjoyed" their meeting.

MacArthur was given an immediate fill-in on the day's war developments.

Latest gains of Americans and South Koreans, coupled with the general's return from the Wake Island talks, prompted renewed speculation on imminence of an all-out win-the-war offensive.

Having spectacularly crushed the Communists who invaded South Korea last June 25, Americans crossed the old thirty-eighth parallel frontier into North Korea October 9. Since then a flood of unsupported rumors has had U. N. forces massing for a final drive to conclude the war and unify Korea.

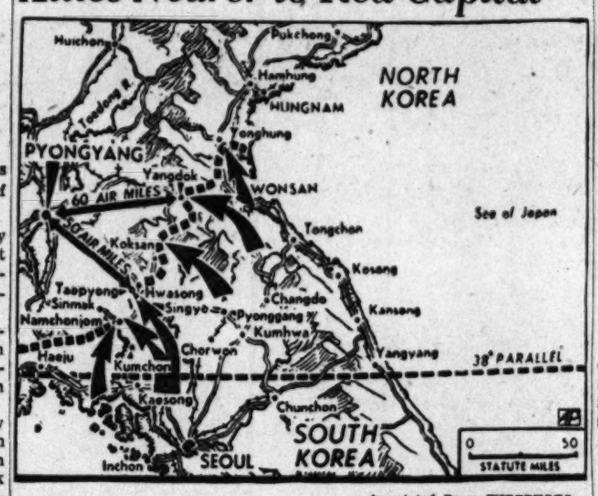
In Korean air operations, the largest share of Sunday's activity was by carrier planes that hit enemy communications and supply lines southward from Manchuria and Siberia for the fifth straight day.

B-29s and B-26s hit enemy targets in central and northeastern Korea, and Superforts dropped nearly a million leaflets on the Communist-held cities of Pyongyang, Chinampo, Hamhung, Chongjin and Kyomipo, warning the Reds their cause is lost.

The Air Force Combat Cargo Command announced it had mounted a maximum operation to supply the expanding Allied spearheads in Korea.

The transport planes in a 24-hour period ending Sunday night flew 1228 tons of cargo and more than 1600 passengers — both new records for the Korean campaign. In 48 days since it began, the Cargo Command has carried more than 21,000 tons of supplies to the war zone, a statement said.

Allies Nearer to Red Capital



Associated Press WIREPHOTO

TWO DRIVES—Allied troops were less than 50 miles from the North Korean capital of Pyongyang on the southeast and the west. American and South Korean ground forces in the southeast drove the Reds out of Namchonjom and Sinyge and other units farther north were reported above Koksan. The South Koreans west of Wonsan were in the Yangdok area while units headed north were reported in the vicinity of Yonghung

Britain Adds Controls Over Metal Exports

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Britain today tightened its controls over the export of molybdenum and other materials vital to national defense.

It announced that export licenses will hereafter be required for the shipment from Britain of molybdenum, nickel, spent oxide, sulphur, and certain sulphur mixtures, and cobalt, molybdenum and nickel alloys.

The order, effective Wednesday, followed the disclosure that a quantity of molybdenum—used in the production of high-quality steels—had been bought from the United States, then transshipped to Soviet Russia by a British firm.

The United States Government announced August 24 that it had halted a shipment of molybdenum to Britain because it learned the first 50 tons of the purchase had been loaded directly on a Russian ship in a British port.

The name of the British firm never was made public, nor did Washington disclose the identity of the American firm that handled the sale.

Britain's government held at the time there was nothing illegal about the transaction under British law.

Pfc. Ashley

Lieut. Wafle

M/Sgt. Jackson

Lieut. Walton

Only a few hours before he died, an Air Force B-26 navigator from Washington mailed home a letter describing preparations for his 13th mission over Korea.

He is First Lieut. Stanley E. Wafle, brother of Caleb B. Wafle, 2116 Huidekoper pl. nw., who was killed over Korea October 3, the Defense Department announced yesterday.

Three more area men — one killed in action, one missing in action and one who died of injuries after being wounded — were on the same list. They are:

M/Sergt. Irvin L. Jackson, 42, husband of Mrs. Kathryn Jackson of Alexandria, killed; First Lieut. Lucious P. Walton, 22, son of Mrs. Doris P. Johnson and stepson of Army Col. Alfred B. Johnson, 904 N. Wayne st., Arlington, missing, and Pfc. Donald J. Ashley, 18, son of Glenn W. Ashley, 4402 Illinois ave., died of injuries.

Lieutenant Wafle was born in Newland, Va., and attended public school there and high school in Warsaw, Va. He was graduated in accountancy from Strayer College, 13th and F sts. nw., in 1941 and entered the Army in September of the same year. From the infantry he went to the air force in 1942. Wafle went to Japan three months ago.

Sergt. Jackson, brother of George E. Jackson, 3911 N. 4th st., Arlington, was killed in action September 20 serving with the Nineteenth Infantry Regiment.

Born in Salisbury, N. C., Sergt. Jackson was graduated from high school in Richmond, Va., came to Washington about 1930 and served as cook, manager and other positions in restaurants here until 1943 when he was drafted.

He served in Europe with the Twenty-ninth Division and was wounded twice. After the war Jackson reinlisted, was sent to Japan and was injured there when he stepped on a land mine. He returned to the United States for treatment, was sent back to Japan last January.

Lieutenant Walton has been missing in action in Korea since October 3. His sister, Lillian Walton, is a student nurse at Alexandria Hospital.

He was born in New Orleans, attended Savannah, Ga., schools and Carlisle Military Academy, Bamberg, S. C. He enlisted in the Navy in 1945, served 1½ years, and then attended Louisiana State University for two years.

He left college to become a flying cadet and was commissioned a second lieutenant in September, 1949. Assigned to Japan as a pilot of a B-26 bomber, Walton failed to return from a night mission over Korea.

Private Ashley died of injuries from wounds he suffered October 1 while serving with the First Cavalry Division in Korea. In his last letter home, dated September 26, he expressed grief, said his father, over the dead and wounded around him and was surprised that the North Koreans he was fighting were so young.

Born in Chicago and raised in the District, Private Ashley attended St. Gabriel's Parochial School and District high schools, enlisted last year and went to Japan last August. He went to Korea one week after his arrival in Japan.

WITH U. S. FORCES, North Korea, Oct. 14 (Delayed) (AP).—Korean Red troops murdered six American prisoners and wounded two others Friday in what was believed to be the first atrocity act against Americans since the thirty-eighth parallel was crossed, a survivor related tonight.

Capt. John H. Brewer, 36, said he was one of 11 American prisoners the Reds captured in an ambush near Paekchon, west of Kaesong.

He said two North Koreans guarded them for several hours in a hilltop farmhouse. When a battle broke out on the road below, the guards turned their rifles on the Americans, then clubbed them until they believed all were dead. Brewer escaped injury, however.

Brewer, whose wife is secretary to the Selective Service director in Oklahoma City, told his story in a dimly lit command post of a First Cavalry Division battalion. The walls were still decorated with a picture of North Korean Premier Kim Il Sung and a banner hailing Soviet Premier Stalin.

Brewer said he was captured Friday afternoon on a road over which First Cavalry units had passed the day before.

"They took everything we had—watches, pens, rings, wallets, including $100 I had—and then took us to a house.

"One of our two guards pointed at us and evidently asked what to do with us.

"He got the word, for both guards lifted their rifles and began firing at us as we sat on the floor with our hands on top of our heads.

"Shots went over my shoulder and hit the wall six inches from my head. I pressed my head against the floor.

"When they were through firing, the guards slammed their rifle butts into our legs and backs, apparently to see if we were dead. Then they went out. I lay there, taking short breaths so my body wouldn't move, from 5 p.m. until 3 a.m."

Finally, hearing movements among the bodies, he crawled among them and found two other Americans unhurt, two wounded, and the other six dead.

Parachute Jumper Killed

ROME, Oct. 15 (AP).—An Italian parachute jumper pulled his ripcord too late in an exhibition today and fell to his death. About 15,000 persons saw Silvano Paiani, 32, make his fatal plunge from 10,000 feet.

Celler Cautions U. S. Firms on Newsprint

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 15 (AP).—Representative Emanuel Celler (D., N. Y.) today said that if American companies follow the lead of a Canadian company in raising newsprint prices he will ask for prosecution under the antitrust laws.

"The Powell River Paper Co. of Vancouver, Canada, has informed its customers (practically all of them newspapers in the United States) that the cost of newsprint will be boosted as of Monday 10 percent, from $100 to $110 a ton," Celler said.

"As is always the case," he said, "this advance undoubtedly will be followed by all newsprint companies both in the United States and Canada. This is nothing but a price squeeze and if the American companies follow suit, I am going to ask President Truman to exercise his power under the Defense Production Act to provide for cutbacks.

"Also I am going to ask Attorney General McGrath to prosecute, criminally and civilly, these newsprint manufacturers because there is palpably a violation of our antitrust laws.

"Thirdly, I shall reopen the hearings to get to the bottom of this newsprint rise. The newsprint inquiry recently conducted by a subcommittee of the House Judiciary Committee, of which I am chairman, indicates that such a price hike is totally unjustified."

Injection to Prevent Gangrene Reported

MONTREAL, Oct. 15. (AP).—Discovery of a substance that can be injected to protect humans against infectious gangrene was reported today by the University of Montreal. It is said to give rise to hope, also, of specific treatment for gas gangrene wounds.

Details are to be given at a meeting of the American Public Health Association in St. Louis, Mo., later this month.

Not just American BLOOD

an Editorial
in the Tucson Daily Citizen

The vast amount of American blood spilled between the Pusan beachhead and the 38th parallel in Korea—with more lives to be given in implementing U. N.'s newest directive to bring peace and unity to the peninsular nation—demonstrates the pressing, immediate necessity for a united, international police force.

With the exception of a handful of men and materiel supplied in lip-service quantities by other members of the U. N., American and South Korean soldiers, marines, sailors and airmen have carried the day.

The price has been terrible. Nor can our losses be measured alone in the flow of tears in American homes. For, in the ultimate cynicism of modern diplomatic warfare, and although we are rejoicing in the face of military victory, we are on the threshold of losing the propaganda war to the European and Asiatic Communists for the single, simple reason that the United States of America has almost singlehandedly borne the brunt of the attack.

Our generosity and the swift decisiveness of our bold response to the Communist threat have boomeranged. The big lie spreading from Moscow and Peiping (endorsed, sad to say, by India through impotent attempts to compromise issues impossible of compromise) has converted the U. N. into an instrument of fear in the Asian mind. By identifying the provable preponderance of American troops on Korean soil with the U. N., the cunning Communist propagandists have successfully fabricated a fable of American domination, oppression and aggression.

Is there a solution? There is.

A striking force of white, black and yellow men, an army that talks in the tongues and dialects to be found in 60 nations of the world—that is the answer which cries to be heard!

The general assembly of the U. N. has already shown its unequivocal contempt for the obsolete principle that one member can invalidate the will of the whole. It but remains for the assembly to enforce its resolve by acting on the proposition that member nations—all member nations—set aside mathematically apportioned components of their armed forces to meet whatever military crisis may arise.

The formula is simply arrived at. Each nation is assigned a population factor derived from its ratio to the total. U. N. represents approximately 1,850,000,000 people. Canada, as an example, has a population of some 13,000,000. Her ratio, therefore, is .007082. If a situation similar to the Korean incident recurred, the U. N.-appointed military commander would issue an emergency call for, let's say, 300,000 troops. Canada would dispatch 2,125 men from her armed forces.

Panama, with a population factor of only .000406, would be expected to furnish a mere 122 men. But that allotment, seemingly microscopic and worthless, would be as much a part of the United Nations at the fighting front as Panama's delegation is at Flushing Meadows.

If, as one day might happen, the aggression to be halted were committed by a member nation, the population factors would simply be recalculated on the basis of the peoples remaining loyal to U. N. and its purposes.

Our own obligation under this 60-nation formula would be for 8.1717 per cent of the entire military manpower need. But, it is quite apparent, the United States would be called upon to do more than its arithmetic share of equipping and financing the U. N. police force. And we should gladly accept that additional responsibility if we had the knowledge that the one burden that can be equitably distributed—life—was being fairly offered in direct proportion to its abundance.

The Korean war, thanks be to God, is being won. But if there is to be another war—no matter what its size or scope—let it be fought by all the peoples who have subscribed to and still believe in the need "to unite our strength to maintain international peace and security."

A world peace guaranteed by the armed might of any single nation or minority bloc of nations is not a world peace. It is imperative, then, that the 60-nation states take this minimal step to declare their rights to participation in and preservation under the peace which is struggling to be born.

So. Koreans' One Tactic: 'No Stop'

By Marguerite Higgins
NYHT News Service

WITH THE SOUTH KOREANS (Monday), Oct. 16.—Maj. Gen. Paik Sun Yup, commander of the South Korean First Division which is pushing toward the North Korean capital of Pyongyang, today described his military tactics as "no stop."

Pyongyang is the home of the young general and he is worried about his widowed sister and her eight children. So it is with considerable personal and professional satisfaction that General Paik is leading the race of United Nations forces to the North Korean capital.

The trim English-speaking general believes he can keep the lead. His troops for the first time in this war are supported by American tanks and artillery. The American units are attached directly to his command.

The American tank commander with the First Division is Capt. Joseph Landers of Boston. According to Captain Landers, the real heroes of this offensive are the engineers. They have removed 250 mines since the division started north October 11.

"These South Koreans are terrific," Landers said. "They will go places where lots of Americans won't go. We haven't lost a single tank, even though there was one stretch of road mined for 8 miles."

The mutual admiration that has grown up between General Paik's troops and the Americans has undoubtedly provided the teamwork that has added punch to the offensive.

LAKE SUCCESS, Oct. 15 (AP).—World-wide observance of the fifth year of the United Nations gets under way Monday, to be highlighted on U. N. Day October 24, when President Truman makes a major address to the U. N. Assembly.

Strife that has nagged at the world body throughout its life and moves to change the U. N. structure to make it stronger for peace underline the current celebration of U. N. week.

The Security Council meets Monday to consider a new flareup between Israel and Arab League countries over charges the 1948 armistice—that won U. N. trusteeship Director Ralph J. Bunche the 1950 Nobel Peace Prize—is being violated.

The Assembly political committee launches debate on specific sections of a Russian-opposed, American-backed seven-nation proposal to give the General Assembly power for emergency sessions, peace observer patrols and armed troops to stop future aggression.

The Assembly special Political Committee, wrangling over Libia's independent government status, has listened to new Russian charges that the United States backs secretly British-French moves to keep armed control in North Africa.

The Assemby itself may meet in a plenary session Tuesday or Wednesday at Flushing Meadow to fill the post of secretary-general. Russia used its forty-sixth veto last week to block renomination of Norwegian Trygve Lie by nine other members of the Security Council.

The Assembly could solve the question by extending Lie's five-year term from next February onward but Russia's Andrei Vishinsky has promised a fight on the Assembly floor against Lie, whom he characterized as "not quite competent in his job."

The Assembly also will take up the question of further steps against Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, accused of trampling human rights in the Mindszenty and other cases. A Bucharest dispatch today said the Romanian government has cabled Lie and Assembly President Nasrollah Entezam protesting against U. N. interference in their domestic affairs.

The Security Council also has to take up the dispute over Kashmir between India and Pakistan.

The seven-power "peace" proposal has been rewritten to include views of at least nine other delegations on many points.

Chief changes would bring the Assembly into session only when aggression has actually occurred and would provide equipment for U.N. troop units in each nation.

Russia opposes any U.N. force not under the control of the Security Council — where Russia has veto power — and opposes calling sessions on only 24 hours' notice.

John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson, has guided the plan through committee debates.

He said that if the Russians really wanted big power negotiations that would get somewhere, they could quickly show good faith by agreeing on an Austrian peace treaty, German unity, calling off the North Korean aggressors, and getting to work on a Japanese peace treaty.

U. S. delegation sources said they thought the committee majority would adopt the U. S.-U. N. get-strong program toward the end of the week with quick Assembly plenary ratification following.

President Truman will climax U. N. week by addressing a special Assembly session October 24. The U. N. has distributed thousands of posters for U. N. week showing the new headquarters building nearing completion in New York. The legend says "Today's best hope for peace: U. N. plus you."

Russians Charge British 'Deal' on Nazi Ships' Flight

MOSCOW, Oct. 15 (AP)—The Soviet navy's newspaper accused the British government today of deliberately permitting the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau to escape from Brest in 1942. The paper said it was done to permit the Nazis to send both vessels against the Russians.

Red Fleet, the Russian newspaper, charged that the British deliberately sabotaged the RAF's efforts to maintain observation of the ships. The paper claimed there was a German-British deal by which the Nazis agreed to use them against Russia.

Soviet Plan Outlines Vast Area 'Arsenals'

LONDON, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Russia's new five-year plan will transform the remote non-European parts of the vast Soviet empire into self-supporting arsenals, according to reports reaching official quarters here.

The new plan, which will come into force early next year, will determine the new Soviet defense and industrial strategy during 1951-1955.

All available indications here are that rearmament in all its aspects will be given top priority.

The program, according to these sources, includes the following:

1. Stepped-up development of basic industries, including iron, steel and coal. The Soviet long-range aim is a steel output of 60,000,000 tons, as compared with 25,000,000 at present.

2. Large agricultural output to supplement the minimum requirements of Russia's growing population with a surplus for exports to secure minimum needs of foreign commodities.

3. Development on a vast scale of industries in the Urals and Asiatic Russia, based on local power and raw material resources.

4. Creation of new strategic routes, through expansion of the canal system and new railway routes.

5. Development of electric energy on a vast scale, with a view also to a race for atomic power.

As in previous years, consumer industries will again be given secondary consideration.

Other highlights of the new plan were said to include provision for a drive to increase oil production; large-scale production of cotton, urgently needed for a variety of peace as well as defense purposes, more mechanization of agriculture and creation of giant collective farms.

Barkley Says U.S. Needs A Free Israel

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 15. (AP) — Vice President Alben W. Barkley said today the preservation and development of the State of Isael "may very well affect the future of civilization itself."

Speaking at a regional conference of the United Jewish Appeal, the Vice President said:

"We need a free Israel — just as we need a free Korea."

Barkley sandwiched in his non-political address while on a political tour of the Nation.

He flew to Pittsburgh from Salt Lake City where he addressed a group of Democratic Party workers last night. After his Pittsburgh talk he left for San Francisco to speak before the International Air Transport Conference Monday.

"Today Israel is an oasis of democracy in a backward area of the world," the Vice President said.

"There could be no greater tragedy than the collapse of Israel, which would be a reflection not only upon the Jewish people but upon the entire American people."

Calling for support of the United Jewish Appeal's efforts to help develop the fledgling nation, Barkley declared:

"It would be a blow to the preservation of human freedom is Israel were to fail."

Virginia Hill, Husband Quit Maine Home

Townsfolk said the couple drove off in a beach wagon with Idaho license plates. Their destination was not known.

Mrs. Hauser told Bar Harbor Police Chief Howard McFarland October 2 that, although she expects a child, she is ready to answer a subpena from the Senate Crime Investigating Committee.

The committee chairman, Senator Kefauver (D., Tenn.), has declined to say what questions his group plans to ask Mrs. Hauser. "We think there are a good many points on which she might give us some information," Kefauver said in Washington October 2.

Kefauver said the time and place of Mrs. Hauser's questioning are indefinite, although she might be questioned in New York.

It was at Mrs. Hauser's Beverly Hills, Calif., home in 1947 that Siegel was shot. She was in France. The pretty, auburn-haired girl was married this year to Sun Valley ski instructor Hermann Hauser.

The Senate commitee, which has been moving about the country in its probe of interstate crime and possible links with political officeholders, concluded two days of closed-door hearings in Philadelphia yesterday.

Committee Counsel Rudolph Halley released a letter in which, he said, Philadelphia Deputy Police Superintendent George F. Richardson identified Harry "Nig" Rosen as one of the Nation's crime kingpins.

Soviet Reported Seeking German A-Ore Workmen

BERLIN, Oct. 15 (AP).—Russia is cutting down on exploitation of East Germany's meager uranium deposits, but is offering new jobs to Germans in mines in the Soviet Union, a Socialist Party newspaper reported today.

The Berliner Stadtblatt said test drilling for uranium in the eastern Harz Mountains, near Wernigerode, had been abandoned because of poor results.

The newspaper asserted that the output of uranium from Saxony's Erzgebirge (ore mountains) was dropping sharply and the Russian stock company, Wismuth A. G., had been refused further subsidies by the Soviet control commission.

Wage payments to Wismuth's huge staff of German miners have been delayed recently, the newspaper said, while the company appealed to them to enlist for work in uranium projects inside Russia.

The British high commission claims that 300,000 "slave laborers" are at work in Wismuth's mining monopoly in East Germany.

World Pork Output Expected To Top 1949 by About 16 Pct.

By the United Press

World pork production should average about 16 percent larger this year than in 1949 as a result of a "favorable feed situation" in most producing nations, the Agriculture Department said yesterday.

It said the United States and Canada will have the biggest gains, with Austria, Denmark, Germany and the Netherlands also showing substantial increases. Argentine hog slaughter should be somewhat bigger and Australia and New Zealand may have small increases.

The department added that 1950 production, itself almost 30 percent above the prewar average, may be surpassed in 1951, assuming continued favorable economic and feed conditions.

Rival Dog Food Announces No Increase in Price

CHICAGO, October 16—In these days of rising prices, there is one item in the family shopping bag whose price tag brings a smile of gratitude from dog owners. It is the familiar can of Rival Dog Food, which continues to carry the low price of 10c for the full pound can. The Rival Packing Company of Chicago, in spite of rising costs of all elements which go into the making of Rival Dog Food, is holding the line on price, and thus winning the thanks of America's millions of dog owners.

Same High Quality

In announcing its intention to hold the price line, the Rival Packing Company of Chicago stresses the fact that the high quality of Rival Dog Food remains unchanged. The same rigid standards are applied in checking the purity, wholesomeness and food value of every ingredient that goes into Rival Dog Food. "The secret of maintaining price and quality, when manufacturing costs are rising," state Rival officials, "is large volume. America's dog owners have made that possible, by purchasing Rival Dog Food in ever-increasing quantities."

Production Capacity Increased

The pyramiding demand for Rival Dog Food has made it necessary to add to Rival's manufacturing capacity. As a result, Rival Packing Company is now constructing additional plant facilities which will greatly increase production. Adv.

Out front with the finest yet priced with the lowest

These days you can't tell from the price tag how much quality a car holds. Ford, for example, is still priced with the lowest . . . yet in other respects it's in the fine car class. Take its styling, for example; for two years in a row Ford has been the recognized fashion leader.

ITS QUIET WHISPERS QUALITY

In quiet, too, Ford compares most favorably with America's finest cars. Its hushed power and "sound-conditioned" body give amazing quiet. And quiet is an unfailing indication of quality.

Like America's finest cars Ford offers you a V-8 engine. No other low-priced car does. Nor does any other car at any price offer you a choice of V-8 or Six engines. And to the budget-wise we might point out that with Ford's "Power-Dome" Combustion Chambers you get high compression performance with regular gas. Another budget note: Ford's V-8 costs hundreds less than most sixes and Ford's Six costs even less.

Consumer Credit

The Department of Commerce reports that personal income reached a record-breaking annual rate in August and prospective wage increases, plus extra payments for overtime, will no doubt raise the annual rate to even higher levels in coming months. In addition to this growing volume of current income available for spending, consumer purchasing power is being augmented by the rapid expansion of consumer credit, and this further increases the pressure of buying demand on prices. The stability of the dollar, in other words, is being progressively undermined.

During July and August, when scarce buying was at its height, total consumer borrowing rose by nearly $1.3 billion to a new peak, close to $21 billion, compared with an August, 1949, total of $16.5 billion, while installment loans alone increased more than $900 million during this two-month period. During early September loans to consumers continued to show large increases, and the installment credit curbs imposed by the Federal Reserve Board in mid-September have had little deterrent effect on their expansion, since most retailers have been demanding about the same terms. Indeed, in some instances buying on the installment plan is said to have been stimulated in the last few weeks by reports that the Reserve Board was preparing to stiffen the terms of its recent order.

This situation clearly called for a further and prompt tightening of restrictions on consumer credit. The Federal Reserve Board has accordingly increased the percentages of down payments required on all products covered by the regulation, excepting automobiles on which cash payments had already been set at one third of the purchase price. In all cases the period for completion of payments has been shortened. While curbs of this kind are a supplementary rather than a major weapon for fighting inflation, they will, if sufficiently restrictive, slow the pace of consumer buying, particularly of durable goods that increase demands for scarce materials such as steel, copper and aluminum, needed for defense purposes. Since the new regulations are less severe than those imposed during the war period, with the single exception of the terms applicable to automobiles, there is leeway for a further tightening of Regulation W, if consumer credit continues to expand and intensify inflationary pressures.

Latin Editors

It is appropriate that many of the 100 or more Latin-American editors visiting Washington today have spoken out vigorously against censorship in their own and other countries. The condemnation of censorship and the formation of a closer association to further understanding and promote freedom of the press was one of the outstanding features of the Sixth Inter-American Press Conference just concluded in New York. Some of the most eloquent protests against "sham democracy" came from Dr. Alberto Gainza Paz, the publisher of La Prensa of Buenos Aires, who received the annual Americas award for fostering inter-American friendship and understanding. Dr. Gainza is a prophet without honor at the hands of the Peron government, though we hope not among the Argentine people. On the eve of the conference the Peron newspaper La Epocha spoke of La Prensa as a "colonial organ" and "a simple link in this mafia of New York enterprises."

It is hardly surprising that the committee appointed by the conference to report on censorship noted that conditions are the worst in Argentina. Peron's muzzling of the press has taken the form of direct closing of many newspapers as well as all sorts of capricious restrictions and manipulations of newsprint. It is a great tribute to the workers on La Prensa and La Nacion that they have remained undaunted. Their courage has paid off, for Peron is apparently unwilling to assume the onus of complete suppression.

In Colombia since the state of siege started last year there has been censorship that is frankly political. The committee also noted severe restrictions on freedom of the press in the Dominican Republic, Peru and Venezuela, and lesser degrees of interference in several other countries. Significantly enough, the committee cited the McCarran Act, with its possibility of thought-control, as a threat to freedom of the press in the United States. This is a constructive reminder that in the eyes of other people the United States, which is prone to laud its own record, is not immune to this danger.

The usual excuse for censorship is that the people of a particular country are volatile and easily aroused and that the press is irresponsible. That is, of course, a self-defeating argument, for the only way the press can develop responsibility is to exercise it. It is, however, an argument used extensively in Colombia right now, and it refutes much of the lip service of the new government to "democracy." Freedom of the press is a right not of the press itself but of the people as their best check against despotism, and wherever a muzzle exists on criticism there can be only what Dr. Gainza calls a "sham" of democracy. We welcome the visiting editors and congratulate them on their recognition that freedom of the press is not a mere national, but a hemispheric concern.

Wake Island Meeting

Much remains to be learned about the conference between President Truman and General MacArthur, but what is known suggests that it was highly successful. One significant factor is that these two key figures in the struggle for the restoration of peace and stability in the Far East seemed to part with a friendly understanding on all issues that were discussed. It is necessary to remember, of course, that they did not meet as the heads of different states. Rather, it was a meeting of the Commander in Chief with the foremost general in the field. Agreement between them could have meant nothing more than that General MacArthur is a good soldier. But the reports from Wake Island indicate that a genuine cordiality has been established between the two men, which appears to reflect a real meeting of minds.

Undoubtedly the President got a great deal of valuable information from the meeting. His Secretary, Charles Ross, describes General MacArthur's presentation of the Korean situation as a "magnificent job." In spite of the excellent contacts that have been maintained between Washington and General MacArthur throughout the Korean war, there is an enormous advantage in face-to-face discussion between the men who are directing the great United Nations venture in peace enforcement. Mr. Truman will be able to formulate policies, within the framework of the United Nations resolution, with more detailed knowledge of the problems encountered by the men in the field. It is reasonable to suppose that the important work of rehabilitation and pacification in Korea will be accelerated as well as the making of a treaty with Japan.

Certainly, too, the President gave MacArthur a broader understanding of the over-all policy the United States is pursuing. The failure of the general to understand or appreciate some aspects of that policy were apparent last August when he attempted to speak of Formosa as a bastion of American defense in a message that was to be delivered to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The President had to suppress the statement to avoid confusion over a delicate point in the United States' foreign policy. To have let this incident rest there might have opened a widening breach between the White House and General MacArthur. There is a good deal of statesmanship in the President's decision to explain his policy in person to the commanding general in the field through a friendly meeting that would be likely to enlist his wholehearted cooperation. Because of the grave danger of our policy being misunderstood in the Far East, this alone would have justified the Wake Island meeting.

For the final results of the meeting we must await the unfolding of events, but there is no indication at present that General MacArthur charmed the President into abandonment of any principle he has stood for. Though Mr. Truman awarded a new decoration to the general accompanied by generous words of praise for his excellent work in Korea, when it came to reporting the results of the conference the President spoke only for himself. As a general under command of the President, MacArthur merely concurred in the statement. And the objectives set forth were fully formulated in Washington rather than Tokyo. The President gave first priority to "unqualified devotion to peace," with second place going to "unity with our fellow peace-loving members of the United Nations," and third place to "our determination and growing strength." This supplements what he said in Honolulu by way of denouncing the war-is-inevitable theory and appealing to the peace sentiment of the people behind the Iron Curtain. Within this general framework there could be many differences over details and specific application of principles. But the direction is right, and General MacArthur's apparently cordial acceptance of these aims is of no little significance in the great drama that is approaching a climax in the Far East.

Deferring Students

It is gratifying that Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey appears to be taking a more flexible and reasonable view respecting the deferment of promising young students in general than he expressed the other day when he talked about scientists in particular. He is reported to have agreed "with the general tenor" of a deferment plan submitted by a group of Selective Service advisory committees headed by Dr. M. H. Trytten of the National Research Council. The plan contemplates deferment of a small percentage of students in each age group on the basis of special aptitude and a record of high scholarship. It would be applied individually without any attempt to favor any particular field of study.

This seems to us to be no more than prudent recognition of a national need. No country can afford to be wasteful of the talents on which it must rely for future leadership. Moreover, national defense depends increasingly upon civilian mobilization and contribution to the military effort. Certain abilities ought to be reserved for special civilian duties. As the advisory committee very sensibly said in speaking of student deferments: "In a Nation whose security has come to depend upon essential civilian as well as military personnel, this group could be logically considered as the civilian counterpart of the military ROTC program." This is simply another way of saying that Selective Service ought to be genuinely selective.

Sayers Of "Yea"

According to an early report 95 percent of the voters in the Soviet zone of Germany have voted according to the desire of their Communist masters. But it required no particular clairvoyance to forecast that the vote would be well-nigh unanimous in favor of the candidates already chosen by the ruling powers to constitute the new Parliament—which, of course, will be just about as much a Parliament as the election was an election. The Communists had no intention of repeating their mistake of May, 1949, when the inhabitants of the Eastern zone and the Soviet sector of Berlin were given the opportunity to vote Ja or Nein to a list of persons chosen as delegates to the People's Congress.

The result of that election was the most grievous loss of face that communism had suffered in Europe since the conclusion of World War II. Despite all the pressures applied, and all the personal risks involved, 4,080,273 persons in the Eastern zone found the courage to vote Nein. Thus the Communist ticket was approved by less than 67 percent of the voters. In Soviet Berlin the fiasco was even greater; there the Communist candidates were approved by only 58 percent of those who voted.

In Sunday's election it was still possible to vote Nein, but to do so required an almost suicidal bravado. To vote Ja it was not necessary to mark the ballot at all; one accepted it already marked and merely placed it in the urn. But to vote against the ticket one was obliged to mark it in the presence of the polling officials, and so identify oneself to the local Communists as an open opponent of the regime. It is unlikely that many even of those who detest the regime most bitterly were willing to go to that length in recording their detestation.

Yet the truth seems to be that dislike of the regime and passive resistance to it are even greater now than was the case 17 months ago. The evidence can be found in the steady enlargement of the internal police system, the tightening of border controls to prevent escapes into western Germany and the purges within the Socialist Unity Party. There appears to have been a general defection among fellow travelers and collaborators, including the Deputy Prime Minister, Herman Kastner, whose name does not appear on the list of parliamentary delegates. There have also been purges within the Communist Party proper, in which "Titoism"—a generic term nowadays for any form of dissent to the plans of Moscow—was reported rife.

In these circumstances many may well wonder why the Communists bother to go through the formality of an election, seeing that they already possess the coercive power to enforce whatever program they have decided upon. One answer is that the more tyrannical the regime, the more eager are its rulers to preserve the appearances of legitimacy and of popular approval. The most despotic Roman Emperors liked to pretend that their powers had been conferred upon them by the Senate and the people. Hence, too, the fashion of designating governments organized by a few professional revolutionaries as "People's Republics."

But there is also another reason for holding these elections, and that is the psychological effect upon the voters themselves. It is akin to the Communist method of obliging their political prisoners to confess to fantastic and incredible crimes and conspiracies. The object in both cases is the destruction of the sense of personal integrity. No hater of communism—and there are probably none who hate it more bitterly than those who are obliged to live under it—can go through the symbolic approval of what he hates without a certain tension of conscience, and a certain sense of degradation. Thus the elections help to create that climate of moral despair, attested to by so many Russian refugees, in which the Communist system apparently thrives best.

Wage Demands

Fifteen nonoperating rail unions representing about a million workers have joined the procession of major unions seeking wage increases, and four of the five railway operating unions are also preparing to present wage demands. The new wage drive has already gained such headway that another round of increases covering millions of workers is virtually assured. The effect will be largely to nullify, and in some cases more than offset, the restraining effect on consumer spending of increased taxes and credit controls. There has been so much discussion of these control measures that we are likely to forget that the program is just getting under way, and that it will be some time before it will be possible to gauge its effect. From present indications, however, much stiffer taxation and stronger credit control measures than any now contemplated would be required to arrest the current inflationary trend.

It begins to look, therefore, as if these indirect controls would have to be reinforced in the near future by direct controls over commodity prices and wages to prevent a continuing rise in living costs that would lead inevitably to a sixth round of wage increases, followed by still higher prices and more wage increases. That way lies disaster that can only be averted by strong measures.

China Sentimentality

The newspapers and the present political campaign continue to be filled with learned abstractions with regard to how our State Department "scuttled" the government of Chiang Kai-shek; on October 6 Emmanuel Larsen again spoke forth on it in your letters column; if I am not mistaken, he is the same Mr. Larsen who was accused along with Jack Service in 1945. For one who himself was falsely accused of being pro-Communist, he has since grown extremely intolerant of any but the most self-righteous conservatism!

To those of us who served in China during the war, the simple facts remain:

(1) Chiang Kai-shek, despite a very earnest desire to achieve peace, was often a bungler. Especially was he unable to make any headway at all against a corruption so obvious and so deep that the simplest coolie recognized its presence, effect, and its causes. Most typically, Chiang was unwilling to execute H. H. Kung's son David when in September, 1948, David was discovered to be the person undermining the then new "last try" currency. Chiang had said such persons should be executed—until the identity was known.

(2) The White Paper is correct in showing that Chiang did indeed get the supplies. We who were there saw them turned over on a tremendous scale—not second-rate supplies, but the very planes, ammo, trucks, etc., which we had been using.

(3) Even aside from this, Chiang was given aid which should have been decisive in the great airlift which redeployed his troops just after VJ-Day, to points where they could crush the Communists. But they did not crush them; the men had no will to fight; they had no confidence in Chiang's government.

(4) General Marshall's final statement was the most intelligent and accurate analysis to come out of the confusion.

(5) When we gave Chiang the administration of Formosa, he immediately instituted a reign of terror there which completely discredited him in the only place he now has left.

(6) We now seek to recover China for the forces of freedom. We must seek a new leader to represent the "government in exile" of the Republic of China — a man of courage, vision, and honor — there are plenty of them in China.

The task is hard and has no easy answers. We need to keep our balance in the world situation, to keep the nations on China's remaining free borders in the camp of freedom, to direct the most intelligent and effective propaganda toward China that we can —by radio, through an underground, and in every other possible way. But the time has come and is long past when the Knowland-Larsen approach can bring anything but further disaster.

"Panty-Waist" Training

Your October 12 article, "Training for Panty-Waists," and also previous discussions on UMT, revived in my memory personal experience with teaching on American colleges which may contribute to the proper understanding of manpower problem at present time.

Once, during a recitation period, one freshman failed to answer problem on the matter, which supposedly should have been covered in the high school. Just out of curiosity, I inquired about his instructor on the particular subject. To my great amazement, I found, that this husky young man of 19, a very outstanding future GI, had had very little opportunity to meet a male teacher, having been educated on the primary level exclusively and on the secondary level, with few exceptions by female educators only.

My hasty survey, made in this particular class of 40, showed that the majority of students present had the same previous school training. My subsequent inquiry in United States statistics on education, as published in the American Encyclopedia, showed that only 12 percent of all primary teachers were men. In high schools, the ratio was 40 percent male and 60 percent female teachers. The national average, for all levels of education was approximately 30 percent and 70 percent respectively, for 1938 conditions.

This information, gave the answer to a puzzle which bothered me in my first year of college teaching here, when projected against the European background, where teaching and education of boys in all levels used to be the domain of men only.

There cannot be any doubt that overwhelming feminine influence in education of American boys, particularly in the age when their physical, as well as mental foundations are laid, cannot be left without trace in their character.

Redskin Record

On August 22, I read a story in The Washington Post about the Washington Redskins' Mutual Admiration Society and I wondered at the time if The Post had not already qualified as a member in the excitement over winning some exhibition games.

Looks like you don't love the high flying Nats in May as well as you do the Skins in September, before they have even played a first grade opponent. The Skins' mistake is in keeping possession of the Baugh while Chucking Conerly to the Giants. I'm a loyal fan but I'm against the "Marshall plan" of promising too much from untested training camp "names."

SKEPTICAL LOYALIST.

Editor's Note: A Post story of August 28 stated that exhibition wins were not cause for undue excitement, since victories had been won over teams hit with injuries.

Ministers In Politics

This writer advocates the separation of church and State. I find, with regret, that the Republican Party in Oklahoma has chosen as its candidate for United States Senate a clergyman. It sets a very dangerous precedent.

Would William James, Mary Baker Eddy, Angus Dunn or Billy Sunday take part in politics? No, I believe that they held their religion above that. Suppose a Jewish rabbi declared himself available in New York City, a Roman Catholic priest in Boston, a Baptist minister in Atlanta, etc. The Congress might well become a theological debating society.

"Immigration Farce"

With several of the statements of your October 12 editorial, "Immigration Farce" I find myself in agreement. However, you err in saying that Attorney General McGrath "stretched his authority enough to allow Arturo Toscanini to come back to this country . . . with no more than a cursory examination." The truth is that the Maestro testified that he never was a member of a totalitarian party or any fraction thereof. Hence he was not excludable under the Internal Security Act of 1950, and no stretching of authority was called for by the circumstances.

Neither was there any stretching of authority in the temporary admittance of the Austrian concert pianist, Gulda. Discretion so to act in such a case is clear and unmistakable.

On the other hand, if Gulda had arrived as an immigrant bearing visa he would have been completely excludable, and no discretion to admit in permanent residence status would have appeared. So, also, if Gula had previously enjoyed permanent American residence status, and had been returning as bearer of reentry permit from a temporary absence abroad, his exclusion as a former member of the Hitler Jugend would have been mandatory.

The striking down of discretionary authority in a case of such kind is silly and stupid. It is readily imaginable that an alien residing in the United States with full legality, husband and father of American citizens, of no subversive character or disposition whatsoever, but an involuntary member of a Nazi or Fascist subsidiary organization in his youth, may be abroad today on an errand of business or mercy. Should he attempt to return, holding a reentry permit obtained in good faith, he would find himself excluded; and the administrators of the law would be powerless to restore him to his American family and position.

The unfortunate fact is that the immigration provisions of the Internal Security Act were written with something other than a discriminatory pen. Exclusion of Communist aliens is fully warranted whether membership was or is in the party itself or a subordinate organization. But whence comes the idea that a former Nazi or a former Fascist is equally undesirable? The fact is that Hitler's Nazi outfit is as dead as Hector's pup. So is Mussolini's fascism. The further fact is that almost everybody who was anybody in those countries was either actively or passively a party member. Only a few persons of extraordinary courage or special position could or did reject the party.

At the same time there were many who accepted party membership, or joined pro forma, who more or less secretly disapproved of party programs or party functionaries, or both. There were thousands who identified themselves with party subsidiaries without purpose or intention to participate actively in politics; hence are not blameworthy in the slightest degree for the conduct of public affairs. To lump all of these people together as "totalitarian," as has been done in the Internal Security Act, 1950, is ridiculous.

PETER F. SNYDER.
Washington.

The real question is whether the time covered by the verb "shall have been" (members) in the law includes only time posterior to said passage. If the latter, then it is an ex post facto law.

Knowing Senator Ferguson's scrupulous concern for the preservation of the Constitution, I think we must conclude that his intent was merely to reach all those who should become, or continue to be, members of the proscribed parties after the date of passage of the act. Perhaps Senator Ferguson has a point, and the administrative officials are applying the most rigid possible interpretation of the act with the intent of discrediting it.

Homecoming Thoughts

AFTER A PROLONGED, intense experience, such as this reporter's recent experience with the Korean fighting, it is always hard to sort out what you bring home. The freight of impressions, moving and depressing, shocking and inspiring, is altogether too heavy and various. Yet next to the deep, enduring impression that is inevitably made by the sight of Americans in battle, one other stands out above all the rest.

The task of rebuilding the strength of the West is going to be far harder than most people suppose. False "economy," of course, largely accounts for the inexcusable American weakness, which made one of the poorest Soviet satellites a troublesome adversary for the richest nation in the world. But the Korean war has also revealed inherent, fundamental defects in the broad design and plan of our military machine. And these defects cannot be cured by the simple, if expensive, method of appropriating billions.

These defects all relate, in one way or another, to the American method of fighting, which is to conserve manpower by overwhelming firepower—by blasting and paralyzing the enemy before assaulting his positions.

If this method is to be made to work against a more powerful opponent, as it must be, two general sorts of problems have now got to be tackled, even at the cost of stepping on a great many tender toes, military and civilian. The first, and simplest, is the problem of weapons. Possibly the services still have some secret weapons types stashed away. But for a country with so advanced a technology, it must be admitted that our weapons as a whole did not make an impressive showing in Korea.

AMONG OUR TANKS, the unmodified Sherman is a poor thing; the slightly improved Pershing can be used; and the much better Patton is a match for the Russian T-34. We still lack any heavy tank. And the only truly effective antitank weapon in the hands of the infantry in the 3.5 bazooka.

As everyone also knows, the 3.5 bazooka has power to kill at any distance; and it has not been tested against the heavy armor of the Russian Stalin tanks. Our ground soldiers absolutely require an antitank weapon which will kill the heaviest tanks that can move, and kill them before the tanks are in among the fox-holes.

This is only a sample of the weapons' problem, which also appears in other, even more important ways. It is extremely doubtful, for instance, whether we are right to equip our divisions with lighter calibers of artillery in almost every category than those used in the Red army. And it is absolutely certain that a very great effort must now be made to build genuine, specialized tactical air power, which we lack almost totally. There is no other way to cut the Russian manpower mass down to the size of the ground armies the West can put in the field.

Staggering as this weapon's problem is—and the mere deficiency in tactical air is downright nightmarish—the weapons' problem is still not so difficult as the other problem that has also got to be solved.

This may be defined as the problem of training and organization. Lieut. Gen. Walton H. Walker literally saved the day by giving combat training to the occupation army in Japan in the months before the Korean war broke out. But the fighting showed that the training had not been nearly hard enough. There must be an end to the confused notion that morale is promoted by PXs, special service clubs and movies, rather than by the soldier's inner confidence that his outfit can lick any other outfit. Anyone will understand this who has seen, as this reporter has seen, whole regiments swallowed up in battle because they had been too softly trained.

HAND IN HAND with this softness in training habits, moreover, there goes the fatness and flabbiness of the actual organization of the services themselves. It is nice to have vast headquarters, swollen rear-area services, and a jeep for every tech sergeant in the line. But it is not essential. And mere lavish money expenditure cannot give victory to a nation that gets 20 divisions out of a million and a half men, in a fight with a nation that gets 80 divisions. By the sternest self-discipline, the services have got to get more divisions and air groups and fighting ships out of every 100,000 men. Else we shall not survive.

Finally, there is one other general statement that very much needs to be made about Korea. Certain of our wisest officials, and those best acquainted with the Kremlin's ways, opposed passing the thirty-eighth parallel because they were convinced that the masters of the Soviet Union would rather fight a third world war than lose their North Korean satellite. In this, by all the signs, these men were wrong. But they are right, beyond question, when they solemnly warn that the great gains of Korea also involve great risks.

Having been frustrated, having lost a satellite, having above all lost face, the masters of the Soviet Union must even now be planning how to compensate for the Korean defeat by better prepared adventures elsewhere. Thus now more than ever, the only hope of future peace lies in an all-out effort to build a solid defense of the West in the shortest possible time.

CIO, U. S. Steel Open Wage Talks Today

PITTSBURGH, Oc. 15 (AP).—CIO President Philip Murray tackles Big Steel tomorrow in another wage battle.

Mammoth United Sstates Steel Corp. sends its bargaining teams into conference at 10 a. m. (EST) with the CIO United Steelworkers which Murray also heads.

Murray is taking personal charge here to steer his fight for "a very healthy and substantial increase."

John A. Stephens, vice president of U. S. Steel in charge of industrial relations, is the chief negotiator Murray will face.

Murray hasn't spelled out the specific amount he wants for his men, who average $1.70 an hour. Most sources place the demands around 25 cents.

The current two-year steelworkers' contract is with 1400 firms. If no agreement is reached by December 31, the union is free to strike.

No one doubts the steel industry will offer the steelworkers a pay boost. The big question is "How much?"

Curbs Catch World Cotton On Upswing

By the United Press

The Agriculture Department reported yesterday that world cotton trade had climbed back to almost prewar levels when the Government imposed its sharp new curbs on American exports last week.

It said world exports during the 1949-50 marketing year which ended July 31 totaled 12,700,000 bales of 500 pounds each, an increase of 1,600,000 bales over the 1948-49 season.

American shipments were 6,003,000 bales, a jump of 1,042,000 over the previous season. Under the new curbs, angrily denounced by cotton State congressmen, exports during the first eight months of this marketing year will be limited to two million bales.

While critics are demanding a congressional investigation of the order when the legislators return November 27, Agriculture officials are confident they can defend their stand.

They said they merely wanted to assure enough cotton to meet stepped-up military and civilian demands. If the order proves too drastic, they said, it can be relaxed during the last four months of the marketing season.

Senator James O. Eastland (D., Miss.) and Representative Jamie L. Whitten (D., Miss.) have charged the department acted under the influence of a "textile lobby" trying to force down raw domestic cotton prices.

They were joined by Representative John E. Rankin (D., Miss.) in demanding a full investigation.

In its report yesterday, the department said the increase in 1949-50 exports was due to increased consumption by such importing nations as Japan, Germany and Italy and a late-season buying splurge stimulated by the threat of a short 1950-51 crop.

6 Pct. Wage Increase Granted by Sinclair Oil

NEW YORK, Oct. 15. (AP)—Sinclair Oil Corp. Today announced a 6 percent raise for all salaried employees making not more than $15,000 a year, with a maximum of $75 a month to any employe.

P. C. Spencer, president, said the company also had offered an increase to Sinclair hourly-paid workers in all operating departments that would correspond to the industry pattern and meet increases made by other oil companies. Such an offer was made, he said, despite an existing labor agreement which provides no change in wages prior to June 30, 1951.

Spencer said he was "not happy" about either the salary increase or wage offer because he had "serious doubts" that the recent wave of increases "will prove of any lasting benefit to our workers or our national economy" because they must "inevitably lead to still higher and higher prices."

AFL Bus Drivers' Strike Hits 116,000 at Canton

CANTON, Ohio, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Bus drivers in Canton went on strike today cutting off public transportation for 116,000 persons.

The 110 drivers and 30 maintenance men walked out at midnight after negotiations broke off. Local union president said the company offered a seven-cent hourly increase effective immediately and two cents more an hour next year. But, he said officials of the Canton city lines asked the union to drop all its other demands. The union is asking for 25 cents an hour more pay.

GRIN AND BEAR IT — By Lichty

Dewey Backs Eisenhower, Takes Himself Out of Race

the duty of the National Executive Committee "to elect, not select."

(He added:

("Every Republican has the privilege of backing any candidate he wishes for the nomination.")

During the television interview, Dewey was asked if General Eisenhower was among those who urged him to reconsider his decision not to run for Governor.

"A Fine President"

Dewey added:

"I saw him during the . . . spring and summer, and we talked about it, but I can't recall that he told me that he thought I ought to run."

Last June Dewey had said he thought Eisenhower would "make a fine President."

However, at that time Dewey had just announced he would not run for Governor and said he might not "exercise any political role" in the 1952 election.

Dewey, reminded there had been talk in 1948 of Eisenhower as a Democratic candidate, commented:

"They didn't get him; they didn't have the good luck."

Eisenhower said last December he did not want to identify himself with any one political party because "I'd lose a lot of friends and I'm not going to do that."

Eisenhower added then that "I have no political connections, no political ambitions and don't want any connections with politics."

Asked if he knew whether Eisenhower was a Republican, Dewey answered:

"Well, I listened to some of his speeches and I certainly felt his philosophy would be in accordance with mine."

Dewey said in reply to a question by Leo Egan of the New York Times that the possibility of "a crack at the Republican nomination for President" was not a reason for his recent change of mind about running for re-election as Governor.

"That one is out," he said. "I am definitely and finally removed. I removed myself by letter about 18 months ago, and that is beyond consideration."

He said the reasons for changing his mind about the governorship were improvement in his health, the fact that "my country was at war," and his concern "about the incompetence of the national administration in foreign affairs."

He added that he thought the Republicans would gain "two or three Congressmen and one Senator" from New York "and I believe my running will help them."

South German Air Waves Ruled by Reds

BONN, Germany, Oct. 15 (U.P.).—Seven out of ten radio listeners in southern Germany have to dial a Communist-run station to hear a radio program because the West has lost the "cold war of the air waves" in Germany, experts said today.

Many of the 1,400,000 listeners in Bavaria cannot hear their local station any more and technicians blame it all on the "Copenhagen wave-length agreement," which became effective last March.

That agreement cut the number and power of West German radio stations in favor of eastern bloc broadcasts now beamed by powerful stations into the West.

The West German Parliament's radio committee says the situation is the fault of the occupation powers that represented Germany at this conference and—excepting the United States—signed the agreement along with 23 nations.

Now two weak stations for each zone in western Germany are fighting a desperate defensive battle against heavy Russian zone and Eastern bloc jamming that entirely blots out local broadcasts in some parts of southern Germany.

Rudolf Vogel, chairman of the Bonn radio committee, said it has not yet been established whether this jamming is the result of deliberate action by the Soviets or is the fault of the Copenhagen agreement, which placed many stations on almost the same wave length.

Radio Munich, once one of Germany's biggest radio stations, is inaudible to many of its listeners. Radio Tunisia cuts in during night hours and Soviet-zone Radio Leipzig absorbs at least 70 percent of the air in some parts of Bavaria.

Radio Nuernberg is blocked by eastern-bloc stations and the French zone Baden-Baden station is jammed by Radio Sofia. The United States zone station at Stuttgart is overlapped by Soviet zone Radio Potsdam and Russia's Riga broadcast, Vogel said.

Vogel offered one way out: A joint Allied-German shortwave program to beam news into Soviet-occupied Germany around the clock. Short-wave channels were not affected by the Copenhagen agreement.

Until now, however, the Parliament's radio committee has been unable to get directors of the six West German stations to agree on such a joint program.

Reds Claim 95 Percent of Vote In East German Election

ing." And it was open in the sense that there were no closed booths in which to do the voting.

There was no voting in the Soviet sector of Berlin, under four-power agreement which forbids it.

The Russian-licensed ADN news agency reported before noon that hundreds of towns in five East German states had already cast 100 percent of "JA" ballots. Polls were open from 8 a. m. to 8 p. m. (EST), but Communist officials declined to say when they will announce the final count. It may be as late as Tuesday.

Reports piling up during the day indicated that the Red regime would rival Hitler's 1936 vote, when he claimed the Nazis' reflection by 98.8 percent of all votes cast. Hitler then declared invalid a half million dissident ballots and claimed a complete 100 percent count on all valid ballots.

Westerners, including correspondents, were refused admission to the East zone but ADN reported the elections in detail.

Western powers dropped their resistance propaganda beamed to the Soviet zone on the eve of the balloting because the East German Interior Ministry ordered police to blacklist all absentees or anybody who placed a mark on the prepared ballot.

Allied officials said it was hopeless to urge resistance any longer, since this would entail wasteful sacrifice of anti-Communist East Germans to police reprisals.

The Communist Free German Youth (FDJ) rounded up eligible voters and paraded them through provincial streets as the polls opened.

Red banners waved. Communist brass bands played anti-western songs. Speakers demanded the casting of open ballots "to support peace and the creation of a united, democratic Germany."

Rearmament Started, Pastor Niemoeller Says

FRANKFURT, Oct. 15 (AP).—Pastor Martin Niemoeller said today he had been informed that a former German lieutenant general had been named to organize German military units for the proposed West European army.

Niemoeller declined to name the general, but said he had received a letter from the general claiming the latter had received the appointment October 1.

In Bonn, officials of the West German government and of the United States Army could not be reached for comment.

Addressing 15,000 members of the Evangelical church at a rally, Niemoeller quoted from the letter he said he had received:

"I have taken over the leadership of an organization staff which will create German units for the European army."

Niemoeller was a U-boat commander during World War I but was imprisoned by the Nazis for several years because of his opposition to the Hitler regime. Appearing with him at the rally was former West German Interior Minister Gustav Heinemann, who resigned last week after charging that Chancellor Konrad Adenauer had promised the Allies to provide German troops to serve in a West European army.

Adenauer has refused to comment on Heinemann's charges. Earlier Adenauer told the German people in a broadcast that West Germany had not entered into any obligations with the Western Allies to rearm.

"The rearmament of Germany has started, and silly attempts to deny this fact should stop," Niemoeller said.

"Attempts are being made to appeal to the German people to take up weapons again, because of fear. The creation of 10 divisions in West Germany means the creation of 10 divisions in East Germany."

Truman Blocks Removal of Indian Land Supervisor

The National Congress of American Indians said yesterday President Truman blocked an attempt by Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) to oust the superintendent of the Pyramid Lake Reservation in Nevada.

The congress said, in a formal statement, that it was "greatly heartened" because the President's "personal intervention," just before leaving for Wake Island, had checked McCarran's reported efforts to force removal of E. Reeseman Fryer as superintendent.

The removal would have "culminated a long effort by Senator McCarran to have Congress pass legislation giving certain white squatters on the Pyramid Lake Reservation something over 2000 acres of land and accompanying water rights," the statement said.

Former Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes aired the situation in a letter to The Washington Post last Friday.

Girl's Body Is Retrieved Below Falls

Montgomery County Medical Examiner Dr. Frank J. Broschart issued a certificate of accidental death due to drowning.

Approximately 200 policemen, firemen, civilians and CAP fliers participated in the day-long search, equipped with walkie-talkie radios.

Four separate groups started combing both banks of the Potomac at 8 a. m. Two groups started south from Great Falls, and two went north from the Fletcher Boat House, one mile above Chain Bridge.

The body was first spotted by Hickenell, flying formation with Brown at altitudes that occasionally dropped below 100 feet.

Hickenell buzzed the spot, a rock almost in the middle of the river. Brown said he then flew north for 1200 yards until he found the two canoeists, and guided them to the scene.

Custis and Loehler, both 25-year members of the Sycamore Island Canoe Club, followed Brown down river to the scene.

"The river was unusually high," Loehler reported. "The water was really churning around this rock, and the only things we had to hold on to were some little reeds and twigs. We didn't see the body at first, we were trying to hold on so hard. Finally, we saw the little girl. The water was so strong that her body had been thrown clear onto the rock, out of the water.

"We tried to get the canoe up to the rock, but the river smashed us away every time. We shipped water over the gunwales several times, and that was really ice-cold water.

"Finally we got a rope around the girl and managed to lift her aboard. We tried to go up stream but could not. That is some of the fastest water in the Potomac right there."

Brown flew off in search of other, larger boats, after he said the canoeists almost capsized. Custis, who lives at 3125 Worthington st. nw., and Loehler, of 698 Rollingwood dr., Chevy Chase, said they were less worried than Brown.

They took the girl two and a half miles down the river, in less than 20 minutes, to a point on the Maryland shore, where members of the Bethesda-Chevy Chase Rescue Squad were searching. Squad members took the body on a stretcher to the Glen Echo Fire Department ambulance.

The Gilbert girl was swept into the river last Saturday while wading at a picnic at Great Falls. She was last seen by her 16 companions, gasping and struggling to stay above water, about 200 yards below the Falls.

Her father was directing traffic at 14th and H sts. nw., when notified of the event.

Gilbert was at the scene all day yesterday, and has been looking for the body of his daughter from dawn to dark since she disappeared.

Earlier in the day, a Montgomery County policeman reported that he had seen the body 2 miles north of where it was finally recovered, at a point 30 feet from the Maryland shore. He said the body was carried downstream before he could get to a boat.

The river below the Falls was dynamited Saturday.

This was the first rescue mission for the Falls Church CAP, Brown said. A total of eight planes flew for 8 hours during the day. Fifty ground personnel refueled and checked each plane three times, Brown said. Brown is a detective sergeant on the Falls Church police department.

Other units assisting in the search yesterday included the Vienna, Va., Volunteer Fire Department, units of the Arlington FD, the Bethesda-Chevy Chase and Glen Echo rescue squads, and a group of citizens from Braddock rd., near Falls Church, led by Game Warden Fred Brown.

Stanton Denies Non-Color TV Sets To Become Useless

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP).—Television sets made to receive programs in black and white won't be useless immediately after color broadcasting begins next month, Frank Stanton, president of the Columbia Broadcasting System, said tonight.

The Federal Communications Commission authorized CBS to begin color broadcasts November 20 in a split decision that is being opposed by the National Broadcasting Co. and other firms interested in developing their own color methods.

Pilot Radio Corp., a set manufacturer, threatened "injunctive proceedings" against the FCC and Brig. Gen. David Sarnoff, board chairman for Radio Corp. of America, called the decision an "absurdity."

The number of color programs will "increase at an orderly rate as the number of sets capable of receiving them increases," Stanton said in a Nation-wide CBS broadcast.

Anti-Red Law Charge Denied

is assembling a special staff which "will be prepared to proceed" before the board if groups required to register fail to do so by October 23.

Pointing, however, to the long hearings and court procedure possible before registrations can be ordered under threat of stiff fines and jail terms, he predicted it will be "probably be two to four years before such a final order can be obtained."

Ferguson charged the Administration has "deliberately sought to create confusion and ill will toward the law" by its handling of the immigration provisions. He asserted that the State Department "is undertaking to enforce the President's veto message rather than" the law itself.

He noted that what he called "calculated confusion" has come to light only in connection with the immigration section. The Justice Department, he added, has "ample" authority to admit persons "who, despite tags of a present or past affiliation with some organization, the Attorney General has reason to believe will not prove subversive."

Law Hurting H. S. Reds

On the other hand, Ferguson said he has "positive information" that the law is already hurting American Communists. He said the head of the Detroit police "Red squad" told him many Communist activities, such as picketing, have "evaporated." He added that many Communist "fronts and dupes" are abandoning their activities.

Senator Lehman said Mr. Truman's warnings about the law have proven "absolutely justified."

Asked if the Administration is to blame for the confusion, he said, "No. The Administration is trapped by the law, but is doing its best to find some way out."

He said the law should be repealed or amended by removing unworkable sections, "including the dangerous and useless registration provisions which will drive the subversives underground" while punishing liberals and "loyal persons with unorthodox ideas."

Humphrey agreed that the President's criticism has "proven correct," and said the law is "damaging American prestige abroad and endangering American security by forcing Communists underground." The people, he said, are "becoming increasingly aware the bill was hasty, unwise and a threat to our welfare and liberties."

"Immediate" changes are needed, Humphrey said. He added that he is working on a series of amendments to submit to Congress when it returns November 27.

introduced him. He spoke two minutes—then he slumped."

The family last night had not completed plans for the funeral.

Judge Smith was born in Raleigh, N. C., the son of a Congregational minister. He came to Washington in 1910, after graduating from Yale Divinity School.

Takes Howard Position

In 1923, having relinquished the Lincoln Congregational Temple pastorate, Mr. Smith was named alumni and field secretary for Howard University. Later he was named Howard's publicity director. Meanwhile—in 1919—he had graduated from Howard Law School.

He passed the bar in 1920 and practiced law—civil, criminal and probate. From 1931 to 1941 he taught at Terrell Law School.

During the first campaign for Franklin Roosevelt, Mr. Smith stumped the country. James A. Farley promised Mr. Smith then that he would receive appointment to the bench. It did not materialize.

Mr. Smith later toured as a Democratic Party speaker. He spoke for Truman's candidacy in 1948.

Last spring, Representative William L. Dawson (D., Ill.) backed Mr. Smith for the bench. Mr. Truman had nominated him. Senator Olin D. Johnston (D., S. C.), however, favored another candidate. After a delay, the Senate confirmed him on September 21.

On October 2, Judge Smith was sworn in. Two days later he heard his first case as thirteenth judge of Municipal Court.

Chief Judge George P. Barse of Municipal Court commented last night:

"I really believe we lost a very able judge."

The link that had to come

The two main roads to the solution of life's problems have been the way of Science and the way of Religion.

Though seeking the same answer, they have seemed to be divergent, to demand a choice of one at the expense of the other.

The rational thinker felt religion was lacking in logic and unsupported by proof of its claims.

The religious thinker felt science ignored his deep conviction that there was a primal cause, Mind or intelligence, which he reverently called God.

Today these two paths converge on common ground. Both science and religion can now agree. For through the Christian Science textbook

America's Aged Can Help Create a Nation of Productive Maturity

U. S. Has Generally Ignored Problems—and Potentialities Of Great Numbers of Oldsters

(Editor's Note: Those of every age group have an "old age" problem—not just the aged folks who face growing-old difficulties. Modern living, in compact apartments and in smaller homes, in more crowded urban areas, mean that the aged are always with all of us. All age groups need to learn how to help aged relatives meet their special problems. These are the problems that Dr. Martin S. Gumpert, the well-known geriatrician, discusses in this and four succeeding articles.)

By Dr. Martin S. Gumpert

CHAPTER I

FEW OF us realize that we take part in profoundly changing the future of this country by just growing older.

Each child born today has a steadily increasing chance to keep alive and to reach an advanced old age. Nowhere is the coming of a new age so clearly expressed as in the changes that take place concerning old age.

Already living among us are 11,500,000 men and women beyond the age of 65, and we can clearly foresee that their number will reach 20 million around 1975. Our life expectancy, which was about 48 years in 1900 and 60 years in 1930, has now, is one particular part of our population, the white female group, already surpassed the Biblical three score years and ten. The number of persons 65 years old or over is almost four times higher than a half century ago.

WHAT does this mean? It means that the aged citizen has today become a very important part of our community, that we must study his needs and his problems more carefully than we have done up to now, and that steps must be taken to give meaning and happiness to the tremendous amount of life that has been added.

We recently had a "National Conference on Aging" in Washington, D. C., which was suggested by President Truman and sponsored by the Federal Security Agency. We can say without hesitation that it was a historic event because no similar conference had ever been held before.

There were 808 delegates from all over the country—by the way, all of them at their own expense — and each of the participants seemed to feel that a new type of human being is in the making, a new type of society which may for the first time in human history have the face of maturity.

WE COULD clearly foresee that our schools, our houses, our institutions of higher learning, our labor relations, our family structure, would look entirely different 20 years from now, and it was this vision that infected with enthusiasm every participant in the conference.

A profound change is taking place in the process of life itself, which is so largely extending its limits, and this change will affect all of us in all our functions.

Everybody present agreed that the social and personal problems of old age could not be met by narrow specialists. There were scientists, physicians, teachers, welfare workers, churchmen, economists, employers, union leaders, agricultural experts, and psychologists. And each of these experts tried to contribute his knowledge.

. . . expert on ills of the aged

THE CONFERENCE in Washington at least found out what we do not know about aging.

If we look around, we see that the average older person does not lead what can be called a happy life. Most of our old people, indeed, are poor, sick, bored, and lonely. Wherever we try to penetrate the roots of our present hard facts on aging, we find much disagreement, confusion of thinking, and lack of pertinent knowledge.

The biological process of aging, the mechanism of the chronic diseases from which we suffer in old age, the mental and emotional and political attitude of the aged, are largely unexplored. There is no agreement about educational methods which may be applied to them, about economic measures which might improve their social standing, about how to create comfort for them in housing, diet, recreation, religious observance, or how to augment their capacity, ability, and willingness to learn and to work.

BUT THERE was also general consent that these 11,500,000 "displaced citizens" in our country —men and women over 65,, who live among us but worlds apart from us—must be helped. So far, we know next to nothing about their way of living or their needs. But we have recognized (and this is of great importance) that our older population is a tremendous potential asset to this Nation, that the aged have the right to lead a proud, productive, and independent life to the end, and that things must be changed, and changed quickly.

We must decide whether we want to develop into a Nation of dependents, into a gigantic old-age asylum, or into a Nation in which the majority of us make productive use of the greater experiences and the greater wisdom of a longer life.

TUESDAY: How to be old and healthy.

Others Fear Old Age But Dr. Gumpert Has Been Seeking It

IF AMERICANS would discover old age with as much delight and enthusiasm as 52-year-old Martin S. Gumpert has been looking forward to it, the series of articles which begins today in The Washington Post would lose much of its steam.

They would also make Dr. Gumpert's job as a Park Avenue geriatrician a good deal less complicated.

A geriatrician is a doctor who specializes in the sicknesses of the aged, and Dr. Gumpert would find a lot more time on his hands if people didn't get sick just thinking about growing old.

BECAUSE of an incompletely explained personal inclination, Dr. Gumpert is equipped to aid the aged with an entrenched yearning that reaches way, way back. At age 17, the poet in him and the yearning combined in an ode to his grandmother which closed with the lines:

"I am already a hundred years old,
My blood has become heavy in youth,
Old Woman, I am near to you."

More recently, he expressed it this way:

"I rejoice when the sun goes down and I can tear off another calendar page. How can anyone say he would rather be dead than 90? I would like to be 500. Old people have so many advantages over the young. They are more thorough. They have a greater sense of responsibility. They're more outspoken and honest . . . Wisdom, in medical terms, is a specific symptom of old age."

THIS strange infatuation with maturity began in a fairly normal way, at the age of five, in Berlin where Dr. Gumpert was born, he explained recently in a New Yorker magazine profile.

Young Martin wrote his hero, the Kaiser, of an invention which would make the Kaiser assassin-proof. When the suspicious police found out who the inventor was, they laughed the whole thing off.

It was all very humiliating. The youngster felt a deep desire to be old enough to take the rap for his invention, either gratitude or prison.

In World War I, Dr. Gumpert served the Fatherland by loading medical supplies in Turkey and learning enough medicine out of a book to goldbrick his way into the hospital with a phony attack of appendicitis.

After the war ended, he completed his medical training at Heidelberg and the University of Berlin, receiving his M. D. in 1923. But before that, he had married Charlotte Blaschko of Berlin and decided to turn to dermatology, Charlotte's father's specialty.

A FEW years later, Dr. Gumpert talked the city of Berlin into opening a plastic surgery clinic with its most enthusiastic proponent at its head.

Here his sympathy for the aged blossomed. "The old people who came to us were frightened," he said not long ago. "They recognized that their sagging skin, their hairy growths, the glandular lumps on their necks were symptoms of old age and they were ready to endure painful operations to get rid of them. Their terror moved me deeply. It also made me wonder why the bias against old people was so widespread. I was already a geriatrician in spirit."

When, in 1933, a syphilitic prostitute was distracted from Dr. Gumpert's ministrations by the non-Aryan darkness of his hair and eyes, he left the clinic, and three years later, appeared in the United States.

Besides his practice, he lectures before professional societies, and spreads his encouragement wherever the opportunity presents. In August, he was the principal speaker before 800 experts at the opening session of the National Conference on Aging at the Shoreham Hotel.

There is no doubt where Dr. Gumpert stands on the choice he presents to an aging American population: "Are we going to convert ourselves into a gigantic old-age asylum or are we going to have fun?"

Maybe They'll Burn The Anthropologist

By Richard L. Coe

IF HOLLYWOOD took to book-burning, today would be Der Tag. For this is publication day of "Hollywood, the Dream Factory: an Anthropologist Looks at the Movie-Makers," as provocative a book as ever was writ about The Industry.

Its author is Hortense Powdermaker, whose previous studies of man have taken her to the South Seas and the Deep South.

Through interviews with hundreds of people in the movie world, the moguls and the mice, it has been her aim to explain "how the social system underlying the production of movies influences them." With the cool dispassion of her science Dr. Powdermaker probes the motivations and concepts of the drama factory. Perhaps my enthusiasm for her report stems from similar conclusions reached at the opposite end of the celluloid rainbow after watching several thousand movies.

Although she has written in the simplest language, there is, I'm sure, a real irony in how it will be received. I've an idea that her conclusions may be meaningless gibberish to the big wheels she so roundly castigates. The sense of values she describes has so long been the accepted ethical pattern of the self-styled "Industry," that those most at fault won't have a clue as to what she's talking about.

Here are a few of her observations:

"The Melanesian puts his faith in coercing the supernatural through using a magical formula, which consists of a spell and rite handed down by tradition. Hollywood people have their formula too: stars, gimmicks, traditional plots. Just as the Melanesian thinks failure would result from changing the form of a spell, so men in Hollywood consider it dangerous to depart from their formulas. . . . The Melanesian placates hostile supernatural forces through a series of taboos; Hollywood attempts to appease its critics and enemies with the MPAA code. . . . In Hollywood money is more highly valued than anything else and this is sacrificed in large amounts.

"In parts of East Africa, the entrails of chickens are used for divining the future, while among the Karen of Burma it is the gall bladder of a pig; in Hollywood polls are used to determine the mysterious tastes of the audience . . . The methods now used to determine, a year in advance, the tastes of audiences is not too different from trying to foretell the future by examining the spots on an animal's liver.

Life Is Mostly Luck

"The totalitarian concept of man is not limited to human relationships in Hollywood, but is reflected in many movies. Life, success or misfortune, is usually portrayed as caused by luck or an accident. Only rarely does a movie show the process of becoming successful or the process of disintegration.

"The elaborated totalitarian elements we have described: the concept of people as property and as objects to be manipulated, highly concentrated and personalized power for power's sake, an amorality and an atmosphere of breaks, continuous anxiety and crises. The result of this overelaboration is business inefficiency, deep frustration in human relations and a high number of unentertaining second-and third-rate movies."

Her concluding sentence: "Can Hollywood change its ways of thinking and its values so that the democratic concept of man becomes more important than a totalitarian one?"

All-Powerful Front Office

Since it has taken Dr. Powdermaker some 330 pages and 15 chapters to explain how her conclusions were reached, a review can hardly reflect her observations properly.

She delves into the overwhelming power of the front office, the few men at the top, the producers ("Lesser Gods, but Colossal"), the plight of the writers, the directors and the players, major and minor.

Her case histories have the ring of truth, so much so that one can play an amusing game by figuring out just which of the unidentified world famous names is unloading his soul to the interviewer.

Code: Out of This World

Her chapters on "Taboos" and "Emerging from Magic" are even more forthright than those in Ruth Inglis' "Freedom of the Movies," pointing out that redemption through repentance is the theme of all modern religions . . . Both the spirit and the letter of the Code contradict the very core of Christianity, Christ dying to save erring mankind. The emphasis in modern penology, and social work on redeeming the criminal, delinquent and others who break our fundamental mores and enabling them to become useful, normal members of society is again foreign to the Code, which insists on its pound of flesh in punishing and rules out the possibility of the sinner's ever coming back to society. The Code simply does not belong to this world."

Little more than suggested is how this community's accent on sex and money is part of our national standards. For instance, have the movies, with their emphasis on technological totalitarianism, stunted not only their own creative growth, but also that of our land and lands beyond the seas, where most Hollywood movies fall into two categories—the "kiss-kiss" or the "bang-bang"?

As I say, the Powdermaker report is a most provocative, absorbing book and I can't wait to hear what Louella, Hedda and the other seals say about it. If anything.

"HOLLYWOOD, The Dream Factory: An Anthropologist Looks at the Movie-Makers," by Hortense Powdermaker. Little-Brown. Boston. 342 pages with index. $3.50.

IN FINAL WEEK: Jacqueline Dudley as Cellini's flirtatious model in "The Firebrand," which starts its third and final week tonight at Arena Stage.

Credit Restrictions Irk Some Dealers

Some automobile agencies in Washington were busy yesterday with customers trying to get in under the wire of tighter credit curbs on automobile purchases.

Other agencies, however, reported an opposite reaction—business was dull.

The credit restrictions, ordered by the Federal Reserve Board, became effective at 12:01 a. m. today.

On autos, they call for a 15-month maximum payoff period instead of the previous 21-month top. The one-third down payment requirement remains in force.

On appliances, maximum terms now are 25 percent down and a maximum payoff of 15 months. Before midnight, the terms were 15 percent down with an 18-month payoff maximum.

The new regulations on furniture buying call for a 15 percent down payment—formerly it was 10—and a payoff period cut from 18 months to 15.

At least three automobile agencies and one television outlet sponsored spot radio announcements over the weekend urging prospective customers to buy before the deadline.

"As a whole people are just disgusted with the government over the restrictions," said a salesman at the Central Motor Co. The firm was one of those which advertised; the salesman said business was brisk.

A salesman at Hill and Tibbetts, Inc., reported that people were staying away, that transactions were less than normal for a Sunday.

At the Alexandria Nash Corp., another advertiser, salesmen said they had a number of prospects who "really mean business."

The sales manager of still another company said the day had brought more than the usual number of prospects who were just looking.

"It would be hard to tell," he said, "whether those who do buy today are coming in because of the normal advertisements or whether the deadline really has them bothered."

Storm Brews In Caribbean; Florida Braces

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 15 (AP).—The Miami Weather Bureau today reported a hurricane is developing about 80 miles west of Jamaica or about 550 miles south of Miami.

It advised hurricane precautions for the northwestern Caribbean Sea area, especially in the Cuba-Jamaica region.

Direction of movement was still uncertain, but it was probably northward or northeastward at a rather slow rate, the Weather Bureau said.

Storm warnings were flying from Palm Beach southward through the Florida Keys and the Florida Straits and Bahamas were told to take storm precautions and stand by on the alert.

The Weather Bureau said the strongest winds were about 50 miles an hour with gusts slightly higher in the southeast quadrant.

"This storm is in the development stage and increasing in intensity," the advisory said. "It will very likely reach hurricane force tonight or Monday morning."

Another hurricane was centered in the Atlantic about 400 miles east northeast of Bermuda. It was moving away from land and toward the northeast at about 14 miles an hour. Winds were estimated at just over 100 miles an hour near the center, and gales extended outward 100 to 150 miles, the Weather Bureau said.

Group to Study Problems of Nation's Aged

(Related story on Page 10.)

A survey to determine the economic problems of the aged and ways to meet them has been undertaken by the Twentieth Century Fund, Executive Director Evans Clark announced yesterday in New York.

The fund is to make a study of the entire range of old-age pensions, including private pension plans, business and industrial pensions, social security and veterans' pensions. The survey is to be finished late in 1951.

Clark warned that the Nation must assure jobs, economic support and social recognition to aged persons. Otherwise, he said, the Nation's entire economic system may be "endangered by organized pressure groups and wild-hare schemes."

Research directors will be John J. Corson, assistant business manager of The Washington Post, and John W. McConnell, professor of industrial and labor relations at Cornell University.

Dr. Corson will continue his association with The Washington Post and will devote part time to this study. He was director of the United States Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors' Insurance from 1938 to 1944. Dr. McConnell was formerly a public member of the National War Labor Board, Region II, and has recently conducted studies of unemployment and social security resources.

Corson and McConnell emphasized the growing number of people directly concerned in the solution of the problem. They said:

"Preliminary returns of the 1950 census show that there are 11,500,000 persons over 65 years of age in the population, a total greater than previous estimates anticipated. More people are now reaching old age, but at the same time opportunities for gainful employment are proportionately less.

"Only 45 percent of the men and 9 percent of the women over 65 are considered to be actively working as part of the country's total labor force, as compared to much higher percentages several decades ago."

Have we got what it takes?

Nobody doubts our determination to win victory in the field. We certainly won't deny our fighting men a single thing they need.

But now is the time to tighten our belts—to show the world we have what it takes to stop the enemy's Sixth Column, inflation, from sapping the life-blood of our economy at home!

This calls for courage to say "NO" to certain things . . .

- Say NO to government expenditures that are unnecessary at this time. We can't afford all the non-military projects we might like . . . and also provide the national defense we must have.
- Say NO to government borrowing that can be avoided by paying cold cash from current income. Tough as a pay-as-we-go plan might be, it's cheaper in the long run than weakening our buying power by unnecessary borrowing.
- Say NO to hoarding. Unnecessary buying creates artificial shortages, sends prices up.
- Say NO to unnecessary spending. Saving is more important today than ever. Our savings keep extra money from competing for goods, and help keep inflation from getting out of hand.

Let's make it clear to the enemy that we have got what it takes to stop the enemy's Sixth Column inflation.

Steelers Knock Off Giants, Oust Them From Lead

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—For Notre Dame, which blew that 27-14 game to Purdue and then barely scrounged out a victory over Tulane, there is yet some comfort. This, happily for the Irish, is not a year when they are playing Army. For that, they must be thankful.

Col. Earl Blaik, who will not be completely happy until he beats Frank Leahy and Notre Dame, out-smarted himself. This was the year when he should have had the Irish on his schedule. He now has the wherewithal to accomplish the victory of his dreams.

Povich

That Army team which licked Michigan the other day is one of Blaik's great ones. To be sure, it took them one half to solve Michigan's single wing, but then Army power asserted itself. Blaik's gang-tackling slowed the Wolverines to almost a dead stop, and then Army poured it on.

All that defensive strength, and Al Pollard, too. If Blaik hasn't come up with a new All-American in young Pollard, the signs are all amiss. If he isn't a second Doc Blanchard, then the mold was indeed, destroyed.

ARMY'S PROCURERS did a whale of a job for Blaik a couple of years ago when they enlisted the interest of Pollard in life at West Point and a career in the Army. He had put in a year at Loyola University in California, which was no drawback under Army's transfer rule, and he is the slickest thing seen on an Eastern gridiron this year.

Pollard scored the touchdown that broke Michigan's back, in the third quarter when Army was struggling to wrench itself out of a 6-6 tie against the surprising Wolverines. Bobby Blaik simply handed him the ball and the play provided only one blocker for Pollard's sweep around left end. So tremendous was his speed, he didn't need that blocker and he scored untouched.

At 195 pounds, Pollard and his amazing fleetness give Blaik a combination of Doc Blanchard and Glenn Davis in the same package. He is at once Mr. Inside and Mr. Outside. Burly enough to bang through the middle, and fast enough to tour the flanks. Coach Blaik didn't turn him loose until the second half, observing a bit of protocol because the lad is yet a sophomore.

ARMY'S DEFEATLESS streak now has been extended to 23 games. From here on, it should be a breeze for Blaik's black legions. They mix mostly with the Ivy League, and should be home free for the rest of the season. The only serious threats are posed by Penn with its Reds Bagnell, and by Stanford whom Army meets in California.

Michigan was a good bottball team against Army for three quarters. Then the Cadets started slugging, not in the fiistic sense, but with all that fresh power that Blaik could summon from his bench. The Michigan line that out-charged Army in the first 40 minutes, the Michigan backs who were recklessly getting away with murder, began to feel their aches and pains from the pounding they were taking.

The team that plays Army takes not only a competitive, but a physical beating. The Cadets come on the ball field fired up like no other team. They tackle in swarms, and weight is on their side, too. There are charges of dirty football by Army, but it could better be called vicious football, the kind that every coach implores his players to give out with. Blaik succeeds.

YOUNG BOBBY BLAIK who quarterbacked Army's T- formation, must have pleased his pappy. He wasn't panicked by those Army fumbles in the first half, and when his Dad gave him Pollard to work with in the third quarter he made immediate use of him, sending Pollard inside a couple of times before springing the touchdown run outside as a variation.

As yet, young Blaik is no Arnold Galiffa with the latter's ability to run when trapped, nor with Galiffa's sharp passing, but on the one play when he was put to the test, Blaik was slightly masterful. That was on Army's first touchdown of the third quarter when the score was yet 13-6, and the Cadets needed the comfort of another goal.

When he was through faking, Blaik found himself looking for a pass receiver and clamly sidestepped two onsurhing Michigan ends, before flipping the ball to Jack Martin. It was a perfect pitch, 37 yards into the end zone, over the heads of two Michigan defenders who had been given the slip by Martin. Remember what we said the other day about Coach Earl Blaik: He'll come up with a good football team, even if he has to breed it.

Colts Scare Eagles, But Lose in Final Period, 24-14

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—It won't appear in the standings, but the Baltimore Colts won a moral victory in Memorial Stadium today.

Actually, the win goes in the column of the Philadelphia Eagles but the two-time National Football League champions couldn't clinch their 24-14 victory until late in the ball game.

They finally wore down the hard fighting Colts, who went into the game a 24 point underdog, with a touchdown in the last six minutes and a field goal with less than two minutes to go.

Newcomer Toy Ledbetter, near goat because of a fumble on a previous march, went over from the one for the clinching score. Cliff Patton added the field goal for the insurance the harassed Greasy Neale deemed necessary.

Burk Tosses Two TD Passes

The chilled crowd of 14,413 sat in on a heartwarming first half when the winless Colts, who eventually dropped their fourth league game, threw a mighty scare into the overconfident Eagles.

Rookie Adrian Burk completed two spectacular long scoring passes to fleet Billy Stone to supply the Baltimore fireworks. The first went for 57 yards and put the Colts in front, 7-0. The second was good for 69 yards.

Before that first period ended, the Colts were hammering at the Eagle goal again with a first down on the 7, but Philadelphia pulled itself together and held.

Eagles Tie It

The Eagles, mainly on two passes from Tommy Thompson to Jack Ferrante good for 57 yards, swept downfield for the tying score. Steve Van Buren, back in action, went 11 yards for an apparent touchdown, but the Eagles were offside. Undaunted, Thompson threw a 16-yard touchdown strike to Pete Rihos, who bulled over on the next play.

Philadelphia came right back on another march to go in front, with Jim Parmer registering the touchdown on a two-yard plunge. Frank Ziegler ran 23 yards and Thompson completed a 14-yard pass to Neil Armstrong to the Colts' 12 for the big gains.

But the Colts weren't out of it yet and Burk got off that 69-yard toss to Stone to tie matters at halftime. Stone practically stole the ball from Eagle Defender Pat McHugh and wormed away for a sensational score.

Baltimore, beaten in its last outing by the Chicago Cardinals, 55-13, was game to the end but was worn down. The Eagles first-downed them to death in the second half, controlling the ball practically all the way. As a matter of fact, the Colts had possession only three times and made but one first down.

Van Buren, who gained 65 yards in 19 tries before being hurt again and forced out, led the Eagles' unsuccessful surge early in the fourth period.

They reached the Colts' four when Rookie Ledbetter fumbled when hit hard by Vito Kissell and Ernie Zalejski recovered for Baltimore.

It only postponed the inevitable.

Geri Tosses Score, Kicks Field Goal In 17-6 Upset

By Murray Rose

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP).—An alert, hard-hitting Pittsburgh team, sparked by Joe Geri, handed the New York Giants their first defeat of the National Football League season today, 17-6, before 21,725 fans.

The loss knocked the Giants out of first place and permitted the Cleveland Browns to take over the lead in the loop's American Conference. The Browns beat the Chicago Cardinals 34-23, for a 4-1 record.

It was the Giants' home opener and Geri, a 5-10, 190-pound halfback from Georgia and a hard-charging Steeler line, put a quick damper on the occasion.

With Geri, the league's leading passer, running, throwing and kicking magnificently, the Steelers ran up a 10-0 margin at halftime. New York struck back in the third quarter for a touchdown on a Charley Conerly pass, but the Steelers came back swiftly at the start of the final quarter with another to sew up the game.

Geri passed to Elbie Nickel for the first touchdown, converted the point, and then added a 22-yard field goal in the second period.

Conerly Bottled Up

The Giants, who had beaten the Steelers earlier in the season, showed little of the great play that enabled them to upset the Cleveland Browns. The Steelers covered and smothered Conerly through most of the game. New York now has a 3-1 record.

The Steelers were a little too enthusiastic at the start of the third quarter and a 15-yard penalty for unnecessary roughness to Conerly paved the way for the New York score.

New York took the kickoff and from the 5 went for the touchdown. The penalty put the ball on the Pittsburgh 36 and seconds later Conerly pitched to Joe Scott for the touchdown. It was a 33-yard play. Darrell Hogan, Pittsburgh guard who played a fine game, blocked Scott's conversion attempt. That made the score 10-6.

Geri Gains 244 Yards

Late in the third quarter the Steelers, with Shorty McWilliams, former Army and Mississippi State star, and Geri leading the way, rolled to the New York 2 where they were held.

The Giants' Gene Roberts fumbled immediately afterward, and Walter Szot, fine Pittsburg tackle, recovered on the Giants' two. Jerry Shipkey bulled over for the touchdown and Geri converted.

The Steeler's first touchdown was a 97-yard drive with the Geri-to-Nickel play covering 58 yards.

Geri piled up 244 yards with his passing and running. He completed eight of 17 passes for 159 yards and chugged 85 yards in 29 tries.

It was Pittsburgh's second win against four losses.

Travis Tidwell, crack Auburn back, made his first start for the Giants Midway in the fourth quarter. He completed four of five passes for 41-yards.

Browns Defeat Cardinals, 34 to 24

Cleveland Scores 17 in 4th Quarter

CLEVELAND, Oct. 15 (AP).—The Cleveland Browns snapped to life in the final quarter to score 17 points and whip Chicago's Cardinals, 34-24, before a crowd of 33,774 fans in Municipal Stadium today.

The victory put the Browns at the top of the American Conference of the National Football League.

The Browns, who had dropped behind 10 points in the first nine minutes of the game, were trailing, 24-17, going into the final quarter.

They scored in the first two minutes of the last period on a passing attack which started with End Dante Lavelli grabbing a toss from Otto Graham for 20 yards and ended with Lavelli taking another Graham heave for 26 yards and stepping across the goal line.

Three minutes later, Lou (The Toe) Groza put the Browns ahead for the first time with a 19-yard fourth-down field goal. Tackle intercepting Quarterback Jim Ken Gorgal set up the score by Hardy's pass and carrying it 13 yards to the Cards' 19.

The Browns sewed up the contest the next time they got the ball by marching 43 yards to pay dirt.

Graham hit End Mac Speedie with a 14-yard pass and carried the ball himself for another 14 in a drive which ended with Fullback Marion Motley plunging over from the 2.

The tough victory sent the Browns ahead of the New York

Waterfield's Goal Wins for Rams, 30-28

DETROIT, Oct. 15 (AP).—Bob Waterfield kicked a 10-yard field goal in the last 2 minutes of play to enable the Los Angeles Rams to come from behind and nip the Detroit Lions 30-28 in a thrill-packed National Football League game today.

A crowd of 32,589 saw the lead change hands six times as the Lions strove futilely to break the string of eight straight wins the Rams held over them up until today.

Big Bob Reinhard, a 6-foot, 4-inch tackle, provided the break that enabled the Rams to win as he broke through to block a Doak Walker fourth down punt on the Lions' 7 in the last 2 minutes of play.

Detroit, holding a 28-27 lead, stopped three Rams' running plays dead before the smooth kicking Waterfield took over. The clock showed just a minute and 5 seconds of play left when he booted the winning field goal.

Up to that time it had been a see-saw battle marked by 80 passes hurled in the free-scoring game.

Bobbie Layne threw a pair of touchdown passes for the Lions, with Norm Van Brocklin matching that record for the Rams.

The action was roughest in the 24-point final period, which saw Ed Champagne, Rams' tackle, banished from the game for taking a swing at Field Judge Charles Sweeney.

The Rams became irritated at a pair of penalties which figured prominently in the drive which netted the Lions their fourth touchdown.

A 15-yard roughing penalty helped the drive, as it set the ball on the Rams' 12. Then a Layne-to-Cloyce box pass was ruled complete for interference on the 2-yard line.

Champagne stormed at Sweeney but was pulled off by the official after a brief melee. The Rams then were penalized to their 1 and Walker dived over from there for the score.

But the Rams, who notched their third NFL win against two losses, were far from through as they drove 62 yards only to lose the ball on a fumble on Detroit's 15. The pressure eased momentarily on the Lions then, but Reinhard broke through to block the all-important punt.

The first half was a low scoring affair with Detroit holding a 7-6 edge but both clubs opened up wide in the second half which saw six touchdowns poured across.

After Loss to GW

McNeish May Quit at VPI

ROANOKE, Va., Oct. 15 (AP).—A rumor persists that Head Football Coach Robert C. McNeish may resign shortly at Virginia Tech, according to the Roanoke Times.

The Times says the rumor that McNeish told VPI players in the dressing room before the game that he would resign if they lost to George Washington was not denied by Institute authorities tonight.

Athletic Director W. L. (Monk) Younger, when asked to confirm or deny the rumor, replied only that "Bob hasn't told me anything about it."

A coaches' meeting was held tonight at the school gym.

Calls to McNeish's office, where the meeting was being held and to his home brought the reply that he was "at some other meeting."

Mrs. McNeish said that her husband would rather not make a statement until "tomorrow."

Any resignation would have to be considered for acceptance or

Contest Winner

Army Game Thrills Wilson

His team lost the ball game, but even so Dick Wilson had the biggest time in his 16 years this weekend in New York where he saw the Army-Michigan game as guest of The Washington Post.

The Bethesda-Chevy Chase High youngster won last week's Pick-The-Winners football contest and his reward was two tickets to the Yankee Stadium clash plus first class transportation for two.

"I wouldn't have taken a million bucks for that experience," Dick said last night after his return. "That was the game I'd been dreaming about seeing and I did.

Misses Airport Welcome

Justice Crosses Up Redskins Once Again

Charlie Justice arrived in Washington last night and said he'd be at the Redskins office this morning to sign a three-year contract.

After what happened though, the Redskins are not so sure he will.

Yesterday the All-America halfback wired the Redskins he was arriving at National Airport at 5:45 p. m., meet him there and reserve a room at a certain hotel.

So Justice, who on six different occasions said he positively wouldn't play pro football and then changed his mind again only Saturday, decided to drive up. And when he arrived, he checked in at a hotel other than the one where the Redskins had reserved a room.

Justice was finally collared by the Redskins with Jim Magner, the restaurant man who played a little football at North Carolina himself and the fellow who served as a go-between in last Saturday's Justice-Redskins negotiations.

The triple-threat star said he hadn't had a hand on a football since the All-Star game in Chicago last July, but that he was ready—ready for practice anyway.

"Been playing tennis once a week to stay in shape," the somewhat cocky 165-pounder said. "Speck I can use a little practice with that football though."

As to how much money he's getting from the Redskins, Justice said:

"Don't know yet . . . haven't signed a contract."

Best guess is that he'll get in the neighborhood of $30,000 for the three years, including a bonus for attendance.

It's the Redskins plan to use him at left halfback and move Bill Dudley over to right halfback. That's the combination Coach Herman Ball will try to have ready for Sunday's game against the Chicago Cardinals at Griffith Stadium.

Justice's addition to the squad poses two problems for the Redskins.

1. One player must be released to make room for him.

2. What number will Justice wear on his uniform since Harry Dowda has his favorite number, 22?

LeBaron Leads Quantico, 34-13

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Oct. 15 (AP).—The Quantico Marines, quarterbacked by Little All-America Eddie LeBaron, scored a handy 34-13 football victory over Niagara today, their third win in four starts.

LeBaron did little but run the team with his usual aplomb, throwing few passes and leaving the glory to his teammates. Don Ferguson led the attack with two touchdowns, one of them a 70-yard punt return.

Niagara, absorbing its first defeat in three starts, scored its touchdowns in the closing moments. Johnny Theobald accounted for both on passes, one to Dick Wojciekowski from the Quantico 24 and the other to Dan O'Connor from the 12.

Former Navy star Bill Hawkins scored first for the Marines, plunging 8 yards to cap a 60-yard drive. Then in rapid-fire order, Ed Romankowski romped 38 yards for a touchdown and Ferguson added his punt return. In the second period, Ferguson scored again on a 6-yard blast to give the Marines 28-0 half-time lead.

'I Know It Tears Your Guts Out to Lose'

Misery Doesn't Love Company—If Albert's Pal Erdelatz Happens To Be the Company

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Eddie Erdelatz has received many letters of encouragement since becoming Navy's new football coach last spring.

But last weekend he got an extra special letter from an extra special guy in Eddie's book, Quarterback Frankie Albert of the San Francisco '49ers.

Eddie Erdelatz

There aren't two other people in the whole wide world who like each other better than those two. Theirs is the sort of bosom friendship you read about.

They got that way in 1948 and 1949 when Erdelatz was coaching the '49er ends. They were happy. They were on a winning team.

Erdelatz was the toast of his neighborhood at San Francisco and over in nearby Palo Alto, Albert was the biggest hero that ever walked the streets.

But this year it's different. The 49ers haven't won a game and neither has Erdelatz's Navy team. Albert was thinking about that the other night up in Bear Mountain, N. Y., where the 49ers were resting for their game with the New York Yanks.

He was thinking, perhaps, of how his old buddy was standing up under a losing season. So he sat down and wrote Erdelatz a letter. It was the sort of letter one would expect from a pal in troubled times.

"I know things aren't going too well with you, Eddie," the letter said. "Guess you know we're having our troubles too.

"If there's anybody who hates to lose worse than I do, it's you. It's tearing my heart out, Eddie. I don't know how much longer I can stand it. There's something missing on our club. That spirit, or that something, but it just isn't here.

"Used to be in troubled times, you and I would turn to each other and we'd come up with a solution. But you're there and I'm here.

"This losing is horrible, Eddie. It's ruining my personality. The kids in my block at Palo Alto, those same kids who thought I was a big hero, well, Eddie, I don't see them any more now. I'm even ashamed to see my two kids, Eddie.

"I understand your situation, Eddie. I know it tears your guts out to lose. You're like me—a bad loser. Well, Eddie, I know you're not going to walk away from the trouble and you know I'm not. We'll lick this thing somehow.

"I didn't mean to bother you with my troubles because you have enough of your own. Chin up, Eddie, keep punching. We'll lick it. My best to the gang."

Frankie.

Erdelatz read and re-read the letter about 20 times last Friday night before Navy tackled Princeton.

Coming back on the train returning from Navy's third straight loss, he got out the letter again, read it and re-read it.

"Can you imagine that little guy whose team hasn't won a ball game sitting down and telling me to cheer up?" he asked.

"That's why we called him "The Little Champ.'"

Dyer Out? Cards May Say Today

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 15 (AP).—Will Eddie Dyer be retained as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals?

That oft-asked question is expected to be answered tomorrow at a press conference called for 11 a. m. by Redbird Owner Fred Saigh. He declined to say what his announcement would be.

Senior Never Won a Letter

Hoya Hitselberger Player of the Week

The Washington Post's and the Touchdown Club's Player of The Week award goes to Georgetown Tackle Joe Hitselberger and nobody's more surprised than the recipient.

Shy, retiring Hitselberger, 21-year-old senior, came off the bench to play a tremendous game against Maryland. His inspirational performance was typical of the heights reached by the game Hoyas in their foredoomed loss.

Joe Hitselberger

By actual count, Joe made 14 tackles—high for the Georgetown team. Playing a sliding tackle, he was a big factor in stopping Maryland cold in its thrusts at the center of the Hoya line twice within the 10-yard stripe in the third period.

Joe had a big moment in the second period, too, when he pounced on a Maryland fumble on his 8-yard line. It staved off what might have been the Terps' third touchdown and helped keep Georgetown in the game practically all the way.

Amazing thing is that Hitselberger has yet to make a football letter at Georgetown. He didn't play at all in the Penn State opener and was in only five plays against Tulsa.

Coach Bob Margarita didn't call on Hitselberger Saturday until the second period was underway. It was one of the smartest moves the young coach has made.

Asked about Hitselberger's play, Margarita said, "It's difficult to single out any one boy for special praise, I was very proud of all of them. However, in the dressing room in front of the whole squad, I told Joe what a fine game he played.

"His pursuit of the ball carrier was excellent. Joe's a dogged boy, a tireless worker. You know, hard work can't be denied. In the spring, Joe was selected as our most improved ballplayer.

Perhaps Hitselberger's greatest rooter is Father Cornelius Herlihy, S.J., faculty director of athletics. Father Herlihy coached Joe at Gonzaga where he was an All-Prep, All-Metropolitan selection.

Father Herlihy exulted, "He's my boy and I don't think you'll find a better one." Hitselberger, at 200 pounds, is on the light side for a tackle. Reminded of this, Father Herlihy sniffed, "I wouldn't want to have him hit me."

Hitselberger was born in Washington. His father is an Army major stationed in Nuremberg, Germany. Joe has four brothers and three sisters. A brother, Jimmy, is a Georgetown student; another, Bill, is at Wisconsin. Brother Charley, 18, is playing football at an Army dependents' school in Nuremberg.

Joe was overwhelmed at his selection as Georgetown's top player. "I think you're making a mistake," he protested, "Bill Orsini did the great job." Joe felt good mainly about being in the game so long.

He Gets 3 Touchdowns, Leads League

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 (AP).—A Wrigley Field record grid crowd of 51,065 saw Johnny Lujack score 22 points in a fancy ground attack which propelled the Chicago Bears to a 28-14 win over the Green Bay Packers today.

The Bears thus gained a Western Division first-place tie with the idle New York Yanks in the National Football League race.

Lujack's three touchdowns and four extra points moved him into the league scoring leadership with a five-game total of 55 points. The previous pacesetter, Doak Walker of the Detroit Lions had 50 points, including 10 against the Los Angeles Rams today.

The attendance, lured by the traditional Packer-Bear rivalry and ideal football weather, topped the previous Wrigley Field high of 50,601 at a 1948 finale between the Chicago Cardinals and Bears.

The Bears, who after a 7-7 halftime deadlock scored two third-period touchdowns and one in the last quarter, notched their fourth league win against one defeat. They matched the New York Yanks' 4-1 top ranking in the Western Division.

The Bears' four touchdowns and Green Bay's two all came on the ground, a unique departure for the two pass-minded teams.

Lujack, who converted after all Bear touchdowns, tied the score at 7-7 in the second period with a 25-yard romp on a fake pass.

In the game-deciding third period, Harper Davis scooted 36 yards down the sidelines for a touchdown on a slick reverse, and Lujack pulled a 1-yard quarterback sneak to score.

Lujack made it 28-7 for the Bears early in the fourth period when he zoomed 8 yards around left end on a "keeper" play. Floyd Reid tallied Green Bay's second touchdown later in the same period on a 12-yard gallop around end.

Early in the first period, Billy Grimes gave the Packers strong hope of repeating an earlier 31-21 upset of the Bears with a 73-yard touchdown scamper from scrimmage. Ted Fritsch added the first of his two extra points and the Packers led, 7-0.

But the Bears' clever ground attack, aided by Fred Morrison's superb punting, soon turned the tide.

Grimes, thanks to his long touchdown sprint, led the ball carriers on both teams with 89 yards on nine tries.

Prep High

Players of the Week

BILL BRAWNER
LANDON PREP

HALFBACK BILL BRAWNER of Landon is The Washington Post and Touchdown Club Prep Player of the Week. Playing his third year of varsity football, Brawner sparked his team to a 26-19 victory over its arch-rival, Sidwell Friends Friday.

Bill Brawner

After hurting his ankle painfully in the first half, Brawner had it taped and played the rest of the game. He scored two touchdowns, on line bucks of 3 and 5 yards, after spearheading long marches to the goal.

Landon Coach Tom Blount, a former Naval Academy back, thinks Brawner has a good chance of becoming a college star and says scouts from area schools should give him a long look soon.

Brawner stands 5 feet 9 inches tall, and weighs 165 pounds. He operates as wingback out of a single wing formation. Besides having the power for inside plays, he has speed enough to get away for long runs around the ends.

RALPH SITA
EASTERN HIGH

HALFBACK RALPH SITA of Eastern High, a little man as football players go, proved too elusive for Wilson High tacklers Friday, putting on a running show that earned him High School Player of the Week honors from The Washington Post and the Touchdown Club.

Ralph Sita

Five feet 8 inches tall and weighing a scant 150 pounds, Ralph ripped off gain after gain against the Green Tigers. On a vitally important fourth down play in the first quarter, he calmly pitched a 22-yard touchdown pass to End Bill Hunter for the first Rambler score.

Sita played the entire game and was a defensive standout. Despite his small stature, he jarred opposition runners and intercepted three passes which took the steam out of Wilson's attack.

Sita started the final two games last season, but this is his first year as a regular. He is a junior and was appointed cocaptain of the Ramblers last Friday

Luis Ramos, Titone Fight Here Tonight

Charlie Titone, Brooklyn featherweight, meets Luis Ramos, of Puerto Rico, in the 10-round main bout on Turner's Arena fight program tonight.

Titone has had 10 bouts locally in the past 12 months and is rated an eight-to-five favorite over the hard-punching Ramos.

Charlie has one of the better records in his division. He has dropped only seven decisions in 55 professional fights and has lost only once this year.

Luis has won nine starts against two losses this year and in his last fight stopped the 36-bout winning streak of Jackie O'Brien, a lightweight.

Ramos has fought two champions, Sandy Saddler, the featherweight titleholder, and Former Champion Willie Pep.

Coley Wallace, a 22-year-old New York University law student, makes his fourth local appearance against Ben Harrison, of Washington in a five-rounder.

Formerly national amateur heavyweight champion, Wallace, has 15 straight pro bouts, seven by knockouts. Harrison has won his last four starts.

Another five-rounder will be Johnny Pratt, former all-Army champion and Holly Mims.

A trio of four-rounders list Tommy Bohak and Jimmy Sewell, lightweights; Frank Ball and Jimmy Briscoe, lightweights and Jimmy Balderson vs. Johnny Fields, welters.

Shirley Povich, The Washington Post's sports columnist, will also be on hand to review the World Series. Charley (Choo Choo) Justice, former All-America halfback from the University of North Carolina, will be a guest. Principal address will be given by William E. Leahy, District of Columbia Director of Selective Service.

Tech Big Test for Western

Unbeaten Red Raiders Seek Third Straight Victory Friday

Western, sporting the only perfect Interhigh League record after two games, faces a tough test Friday against McKinley Tech, leader of Group 2, at Tech.

Tech, after tying in its opener, walloped Coolidge, 27-6, last week, while Western's Red Raiders, Group 1 members, were thumping Chamberlain, 35 to 6.

Two other Interhigh games are on tap—Roosevelt at Anacostia and Bell at Wilson.

Roosevelt won its first league game, 26-0, over Bell after deadlocking in its opener. Anacostia has a like record and also won with ease last week, trouncing Montgomery Blair, 41-13.

Wilson, defending champion, has just about eliminated itself from the title race already with two losses against a tie. Eastern defeated the Green Tigers last Friday, 13-9.

However, Wilson figures over Bell, winless in two games.

rejection by the Virginia Tech Athletic Council, Younger said. The regular meeting of the council, which is composed of five faculty members, three students and one alumnus, is not until the first Wednesday in November, and no special meeting has been called, Younger added upon questioning.

The Times pieced together this version of what took place last Friday night at Washington, D. C., where the Techmen played the Colonials in Griffith Stadium.

Before the game McNeish told his players in the dressing room that he was planning to resign if they did not win the game. After the ill-fated contest, in which the Gobblers lost, 42-7, McNeish reaffirmed to the players his intention of resigning.

There has been growing criticism of the VPI coach in recent weeks as the Gobblers have taken three lopsided beatings at the hands of Quantico Marines, Virginia and George Washington, on top of having won only one game in the last two seasons.

The Langdon Lions, 160-pound metro football league champions, beat the Southwest Merchants, 7-0, at Taft Field yesterday. Bill Palmer scored the lone touchdown of the game.

CONTEST—From P. 13

Army Game Thrills Winner

I always root for the underdog. Our seats were right in the Michigan section and that was great because I was rooting for Michigan.

"The first half was better than the second half. I liked it better anyway because Michigan had Army tied at halftime. This Chuck Ortmann is as good as they say he is, but Army has a fine back in Al Pollard. He's another Blanchard.

"It was wonderful to see the Cadets march in to the Stadium and Michigan's band put on a swell show at half-time, better than Army.

"I'm sorry Michigan lost, but it was a wonderful trip. All the kids at school were jealous of me when they read I had won the contest. But, boy, wait 'till I get to class tomorrow and tell 'em what a great time I had—they'll be even more jealous."

Dick said he had only one regret—that he wasn't eligible to win any more contests this year.

Army, Oklahoma Take It Easy

SMU Faces Unbeaten Rice Next Saturday

NEW YORK, Oct. 15 (AP).—Army and Oklahoma, their unbeaten streaks still going after hard battles, take to the rocking chair this Saturday for relaxation against weak foes.

But the other member of the Nation's top-ranking football trio, Southern Methodist, has its toughest game of the season coming up against unbeaten Rice Saturday. Compared to the Cadets and Sooners, SMU had an easy time yesterday, walloping unbeaten Oklahoma A&M, 56-0.

Army worked hard to hold its No. 1 national ranking against Michigan in Yankee Stadium, winning 27-6. Until the third quarter, some 70,000 spectators saw Michigan outplay an Army eleven, desperately trying to stretch its undefeated string to 23. Charley Ortmann led the Wolverines to a 6-6 tie at halftime then Michigan barely missed a field-goal attempt that would have sent them ahead again in the third quarter.

But Army's slashing backs, piloted by Bob Blaik, went to work near the end of the third, grinding to three touchdowns in 5 minutes. A 190-pound sophomore from Los Angeles, Al Pollard, sparkled in the Army drives that broke the game open. The Cadets have an easy game coming up at Harvard Saturday.

Oklahoma's Sooners showed signs of approaching their 1949 heights in coming from behind to whip Texas, 14-13. Billy Vessels, key Sooner runner, raced 11 yards around end and across the goal in the last 4 minutes, then Tackle Jim Weatherall kicked the winning extra point while 76,000 fans roared in the Dallas Cotton Bowl.

Now flashing 24 straight victories, Bud Wilkinson's boys meet weak Kansas State at home Saturday.

Southern Methodist cleaned up A&M to salvage the State of Texas half its pride at Dallas. Another 76,000 watched the second game of the unique day-night Cotton Bowl double-header.

On the West Coast, Southern California rose up and almost swatted a California team bound for its third straight Rose Bowl appearance. Lynn Waldorf's athletes came from behind, 6-7, then held off a last-second Trojan drive to win 13-7. USC reached the 1-yard line with 27 seconds left before the Golden Bears threw back the charge. California has 19 straight conference victories.

Falls Church A. C. Wins

Falls Church Athletic Club's unlimited football team scored a 38-0 victory over Manassas yesterday at Falls Church. Bobby Sarrett scored two touchdowns for the winners.

Falls Church	0	7	6	25—38

Falls Church scoring: Touchdowns—Sarrett (2), Sherwood, Thompson, Tricano, Appleton. Extra points—Sarrett (2).

Terps' Idzik, Davis Injured

Johnny Idzik Maryland defensive halfback received a shoulder separation in Saturday's game against Georgetown and is lost to the Terps for Saturday's homecoming game against North Carolina State and possibly the Duke clash the following week.

Lynn Davis another defensive halfback also banged up his shoulder and he too is doubtful for Saturday's Byrd Stadium meeting against State.

On the cheery side the Terps learned that Halfback Ed (Mighty Mo) Modzelewski who missed the Hoya game with an injured knee, will probably be ready to go again by Tuesday.

Mikan Scores 20

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Oct. 15. (AP)—The Minneapolis Lakers, led by George Mikan, tripped the Indianapolis Olympians, 77-70, here last night in an exhibition basketball game played before 3000 fans. Mikan chalked up 20 points before he fouled out in the third quarter.

Laurel Lists 4 Stakes for 13-Day Meeting Opening Tuesday

Colts Scare Eagles, But Lose, 24-14

Ledbetter, who never ran at Oklahoma A & M where he played solely on defense, filled in capably for Van Buren and redeemed himself for that bobble. The Eagles used nine plays to go 49 yards for their winning score after the Colts punted out. Ledbetter made most of the yardage and Thompson mixed in an 11-yard pass to Ferrante. Ledbetter finally went over from the 1.

The Colts practically gave the Eagles their last three points. Needing 2 yards for a first down on their 36 and trailing 21-14 they tried for the yardage and failed. Cliff Patton stepped in to boot a 17-yard field goal after the Colts held on their 9.

That did it, 24-14, but the Eagles hardly could feel proud of the victory that enabled them to move into contention in the league's National division, what with the New York Giants losing.

DEAR FOLKS:

In order to get in an extra Saturday, Laurel will have one dark day—Tuesday, October 24. This will be the final off day of the season, the Pimlico, Bowie and Charles Town sessions taking up all of the remaining weekdays until Desember 23. The horse Oom Paul who won at Bowie is named for Oom Paul Kruger, South African figure during the Boer War. The Maryland racing writers will hold their annual dinner at the Sheraton-Belvedere Hotel in Baltimore, November 9. At least two races a day will be televised from Laurel into Washington during the 13-day meeting. Ray Haight will call with Dave Woods on the commentary. While Pimlico is being rebuilt next year, I understand the Hilltop dates will be transferred to Laurel. See you on the rail Tuesday.

Washington 'Cap Draws Classy Field

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

LAUREL, Md., Oct. 14.—With four stakes to be offred during its 13-day stand, Laurel Race Course will begin its presentation of the second lap of the Maryland fall racing season here on Tuesday.

Appearance of many of the country's outstanding performers in the Laurel Stakes is expected to create fresh interest in the sport and judging from the number of horses moving in from all sections of the country, there will be ample talent for races in all classifications.

One Hitter, who twice defeated Noor, is among the eligibles for the Washington Handicap as are Bewitch, Inseparable, Chicle 2nd, Adile, Dart By and Cochise. Victory in the Washington earns an invitation to the Pimlico Special to be run on Friday, November 3. The Washington, at 1¼ miles and for $15,000, will be run October 21.

Richest fixture of the meeting will be the $25,000 added Selima Stakes at a mile and a sixteenth for juvenile fillies. It is set for Saturday, October 28. The Maryland Futurity is to be run October 18 at six furlongs, while on November 1, final day of the meeting, the feature will be the Chevy Chase Steeplechase Handicap.

Brookmeade Stable's Atalanta, already successful in the Schuylerville, Spinaway and Matron Stakes, heads a large group of young fillies named for the Selima and among her top rivals is Sungari, owned by George D. Widener and who has won the Astoria and Colleen Stakes.

Tourist List, winner of the Temple Gwathmay and Trough Hill, recent victor in Belmont's Grand National are expected for the Chevy Chase, for which Lock and Key, last year's winner, again is eligible.

President Harry A. Parr, III and other Laurel officials are confident there will be a steady improvement in atendance and betting as the season progresses, leading up to the 13-day meeting at Pimlico immediately following this one.

Laurel will begin operations each day at 1:30 p. m. and as usual there will be daily double wagering on the first two races, with sales of double tickets closing 15 minutes before first post.

Over Chevy Chase

Columbia Repeats 1906 Golf Victory

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

Things haven't changed much since 1906 in a golf rivalry between Columbia and Chevy Chase Country Clubs.

Forty-four years ago the clubs had a 20-man team match with a trophy as the prize. Columbia trounced Chevy Chase and got the cup which they've kept through the intervening years. Yesterday they renewed the match at Columbia with the same cup as a prize; Columbia won again, 22-8.

District Amateur Champ Bobby Brownell and his playing partner, Ralph Bogart, salvaged some consolation for Chevy Chase by turning in one of the best rounds of golf ever played by amateurs in these parts.

Brownell set an unofficial course record for amateurs, shooting a five-below-par 65. With Bogart, he had a best-ball 63. Their opponents, J. C. Bowie and Earl Skinner, put up a strong fight. The foursome carded 15 birdies and five holes of the 18-hole match were halved in birdies.

Results of the matches:

COLUMBIA 22, CHEVY CHASE 8
(Columbia players named first)

J. C. Free Trips in Behalf Of U. S., Pepper Says

NYHT News Service

Lame-Duck Senator Claude Pepper, (D., Fla.,) issued through his office here yesterday a statement justifying his trip with Mrs. Pepper through the Middle East and into South Asia as being made at the urging of the State Department and Senator Tom Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Since leaving the Middle East, he emphasized, he and Mrs. Pepper have been paying their own way for transportation.

The statement, presumably cabled from Tokyo, obviously was evoked by newspaper reports that Secretary of Defense George C. Marshall had turned down early last week a request by Pepper and Rep. W. R. Poage (D., Texas) for free military air transportation on their tour of the Mediterranean and the Middle East.

As to their radioed assurance that the State Department was "interested" in their trip, Marshall was reported to have replied that he was referring this point to Secretary of State Dean Acheson. The department was said to have instructed all embassy air attaches to stop "abuses" of congressional privileges and not to provide further air taxi-service in planes assigned to them for visiting Congressmen and their families without direct orders from Marshall.

"Certain members of the Senate and House of Representatives, both Republicans and Democrats, were appointed by the vice president to attend the Inter-Parliamentary Union Conference at Dublin from the eighth to the thirteenth of September. When the State Department learned that some members of the Senate and House were going abroad the department urged the members of the delegation to come on through the Middle East and to South Asia, feeling, no doubt, that better knowledge of the problems of this part of the world, now so important to our peace and well being, would be desirable for the Congress and the country."

Schonberg Music Sung By D. C. Choir

By Paul Hume

A great work, not heard in Washington before, illumined the choral program last night in National Presbyterian Church.

It was Arnold Schonberg's cantata, "Peace on Earth." The Chancel Choir of the church sang the Schonberg at the end of an evening they opened with Benjamin Britten's Rejoice in the Lamb. Thanks to Theodore Schaefer, for over a decade the organist and director of music in this church, the Britten has been heard here before.

It retains its strength and fresh beauty on second hearing, and was expertly sung.

Schonberg's dramatic plea for peace on earth was equally well sung. It calls for greater resources in the final verse than a choir of 45 can supply. Nevertheless it made a profound impression.

The music is in every way beautiful: as a setting for a compelling poem, as choral sound and in its harmonic scheme.

Schonberg was 38 when he wrote Peace on Earth—the year was 1912. Since then we have come to accept much music of harsher dissonance and sparser tone. This cantata has a rich note, with a texture heavy enough to attract the ear even in pages where the sound becomes quite bitter.

Schaefer skillfully supported the choir with enough organ to assist them in moments of great demands yet without intruding on the unaccompanied feeling intended by the composer.

He was well rewarded in the way his singers responded to his direction.

There have been many rumors lately that Schaefer is preparing to leave his post in Washington for other fields. His contributions to our musical life have been regular and outstanding. It would be a pity if he left and the pattern for choral music that he has laid down were to be changed or done away with.

Battle Urges Support of Civil Defense Program

HARRISONBURG, Va., Oct. 15 (AP).—Governor John S. Battle in dedicating the Veterans Memorial Home today urged support of the civilian defense program now getting under way.

Declaring that the chances are "one hundred to one that it will ever be necessary to carry out the plans of that program" the Governor stated:

"We cannot afford to take that one chance."

He expressed the hope that all of the effort and money being spent on the civilian defense program will be "wasted." But he emphasized that if such plans are not made it may mean the difference between the saving and the destruction "of our democracy and civilization as we know it."

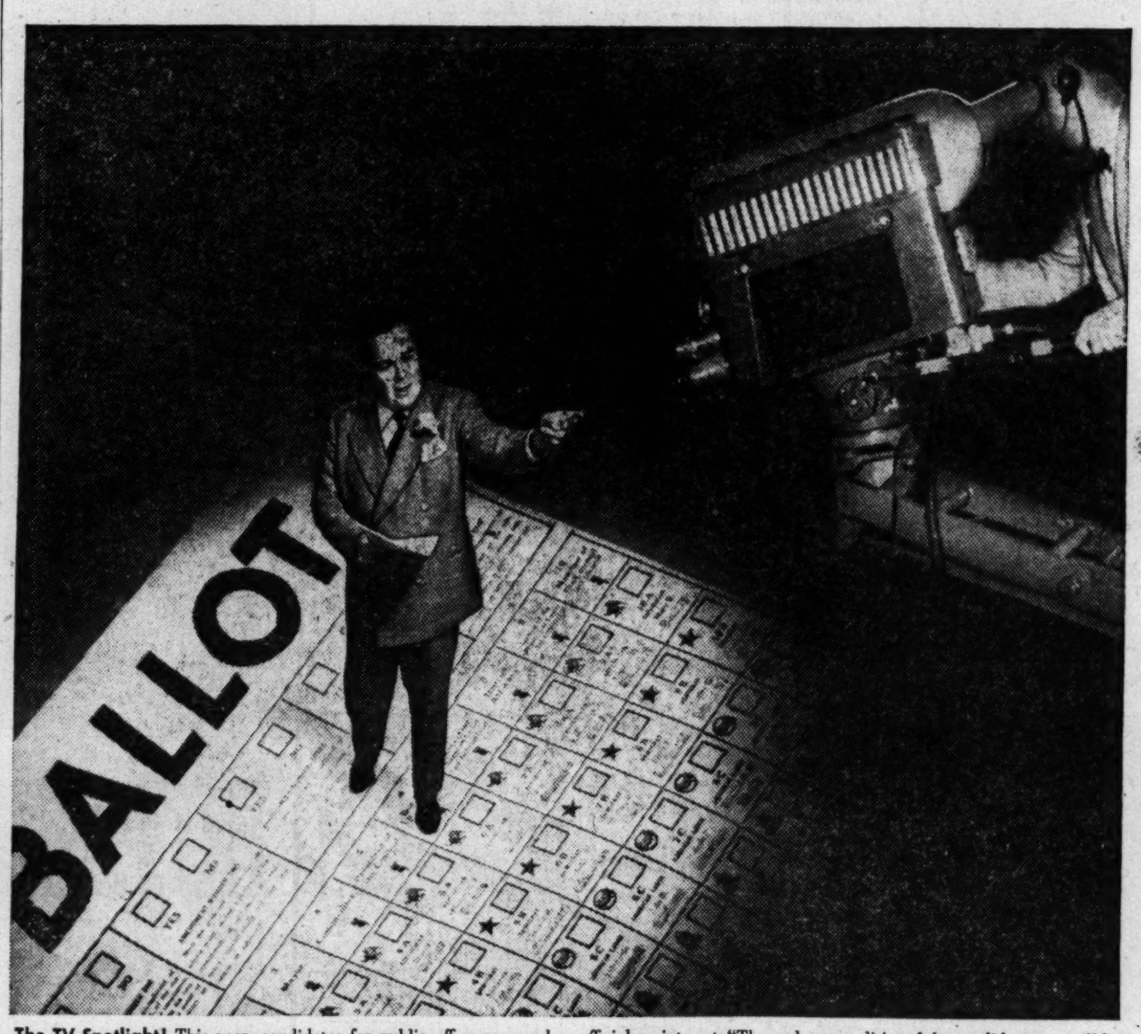
WILL TELEVISION SWING THE 1950 ELECTIONS?

OWN A Motorola AND YOU KNOW YOU OWN THE BEST

Motorola, leader in television, shows how huge TV vote may mean better campaigns... better men in office!



The TV Spotlight! This year, candidates for public office are much more than names on a ballot sheet. The spotlight of television brings them to life . . . introduces them into the living rooms of millions of homes throughout the land. As one of the nation's prominent Cabinet officials points out, "The real personalities of the candidates . . . will be right before our eyes. Every facial expression and every thought will be highlighted in a manner never before seen by all the voters. Television takes the political rally into the home."

How many TV voters? At least 16 million—allowing two for each television set! That's about one-third of all those who voted in the 1948 presidential election. With 109 TV stations now in operation, television will be a force to reckon with in 33 of the 48 states. Experts predict this huge TV vote may cause some surprising upsets.

A better campaign! "Listening to radio presentations seldom gave voters the true picture," says the governor of a great state. "I hope television will make campaigning more informal—and better."

Ears plus eyes! When you see as well as hear the candidate, you're better able to judge whether he's a man you want as your representative to insure good government for your city—your state—your country.

Motorola's leadership in cabinet design as well as performance is recognized with the 1950 Fashion Academy Gold Medal Award. Typical example of Motorola supremacy is this Combination Model 17F1. Civil Service Answers More Annual Leave Questions of Employes

Civil Service has clarified a couple of more employe annual leave problems.

The first one involves an employe who left the Federal service during this calendar year, was paid for his annual leave in a lump sum, and later is reinstated. Does that person have to take annual leave he earns during this calendar year after his return before June 30 or else lose it?

Civil Service says he does, despite the fact he may have been paid in a lump sum earlier in the year for more leave than he could earn this year.

The second is about an employe who took a vacation of 20 days in January and February, before he had earned that amount during this calendar year. Can he count that 20 days as a part of the 26 days he must use under the leave rider or else forfeit it? The answer is yes.

STORY: A Federal hospital worker wrote this partial description of his job:

"When the intensified examinations are finished, I follow through instructions that are left, by regular visits with a view of an autopsy on each patient in the end."

AGRICULTURE plans to hire between 200 and 300 additional veterinarians in its meat inspection service over the next year. Only a few weeks ago it was firing them. Government veterinarians are notoriously low-paid.

JOB NEWS: Applications will be accepted after Tuesday by Civil Service for junior scientist and engineer jobs that pay from $2650 to $3825 to start. Recruiting teams from a score of Federal agencies will canvass colleges and universities to urge qualified students to apply for the tests . . . Civil Service reports that a survey shows that the average business college graduate is offered nine different jobs, with stenographers the most sought after . . . The Civil Service test for mechanical apprentice at the Naval Gun Factory here will remain open indefinitely. The beginning salary is $8.48 daily. . . . About 800 persons here who applied for photographer and projectionist exams will be tested today and tomorrow.

Civil Service will announce a test in about 2 weeks for commodity-industry analysts to fill vacancies, mainly in the Bureau of Mines. Persons having a thorough knowledge of minerals, metals, natural gas and petroleum will be eligible for jobs that pay from $3450 to $6400 to start . . . The Army has openings for stationary boiler fireman and operating engineers. Get details in Room 2E-1030 of the Pentagon . . . A test is open for organization and methods examiner, $3825 to $4600, to fill vacancies in Federal agencies in nearby states . . . The Naval Gun Factory is accepting applications for microphotographic equipment repairman, and gasoline distribution system operator, $11.12 to $13.04 a day . . . Transfers and reinstatements here during August hit a 2-year high. Hundreds of former Federal employes with Civil Service status were given jobs in the defense agencies, and the trend is continuing . . . Another record: The Civil Service information office here had 28,000 more job inquiries in the past 3 months than it had during the same period a year ago.

In a plea for "education of the whole man," the Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, dedicated yesterday the new $300,000 school and convent of Our Lady of Sorrows Catholic Church, Larch and New Hampshire ave., Takoma Park.

More than 700 parishioners attending the ceremony also heard the Very Rev. Msgr. John S. Spence, director of education for the diocese, read the prepared statement of the Right Rev. Msgr. John K. Cartwright, unable to attend because of illness. Monsignor Cartwright called the building "a sanctuary of honest citizenship and loyalty and patriotism to country."

The new school opened on October 2 with an enrollment of more than 350 students.

Assisting the archbishop in the ceremony were the Rev. James F. King, pastor, and the Rev. John A. Lubey, a curate.

Dr. Davies Denounces Judge, Prosecutor And Police in Sermon on Williams Affair

The Rev. A. Powell Davies of All Souls' (Unitarian) Church yesterday scornfully denounced District police, the prosecuting attorney and the judge in the case of a trustee of his church who was falsely accused of a sex misdemeanor.

Dr. Davies

The minister, in a 6000-word sermon entitled "Was This Justice?" recounting the ordeal of Robert S. Williams, jr., 45, charged that the trustee's arrest was "illegal," his detention "unlawful," and his identification by two 14-year-old girls "prejudicial."

Williams was cleared of the offence last Thursday, six months after his arrest and subsequent conviction on a charge of indecent exposure. Another man confessed the offense on a promise of immunity.

Dr. Davies called for a commission of inquiry in the District to recommend procedures for dealing with sex cases "which will protect both the individual and the community."

The commission, the minister said, "should be composed of jurists of known probity, psychiatrists of wide experience in sexual psychology, and responsible ordinary citizens."

Dr. Davies, who stood by Williams throughout the case, severely criticized the policeman who arrested Williams, Assistant Corporation Counsel Clark King, who prosecuted the case; Judge Aubrey Fennell of Municipal Court, before whom Williams was found guilty, and Ira N. Gullickson, Police Department handwriting expert. An "officer Bush," he said, arrested Williams.

The minister used scathing terms in referring to "the reckless and shameful" accusation against Williams' 18-year-old daughter, Evangeline. Gullickson identified Miss Williams as the writer of an anonymous letter to King confessing the crime with which her father was charged. Subsequently the letter was identified as having been written by the man who admitted the offense.

"I call it infamy," Dr. Davies said. "I blame Mr. Gullickson, I blame Mr. Clark King, I blame the judge. This was a callous, unjust and inhumane proceeding. An innocent young woman with an examplary record, about to enter college, was irresponsibly accused of a serious crime on the unsupported testimony of a so-called expert who was subsequently completely discredited."

Dr. Davies said he himself was "publicly insulted by an angry prosecutor" (Clark King), who demanded that he and a number of other defense witnesses submit copies of their handwriting during the case.

Dr. Davies said that "until recently" he had deeply respected court procedures. But he noted that a Municipal Court judge who had testified for Williams was not asked to submit handwriting specimens when others were.

"I refer to this now, more with humor than in rancor, for if it is contended that the integrity of the judiciary is superior to that of the clergy, I should certainly like to see the evidence," he said

The minister scored Judge Fennell for accepting without reservation the testimony of the two girls. He said the testimony was "a little too positive" and might have been more impressive if they had faltered just a little.

Judge Fennell declined to comment on Dr. Davies' remarks.

Dr. Davies said Williams' arrest was illegal because the offense of which he was accused was a misdemeanor.

"No police officer can legally arrest a person for a misdemeanor unless it is committed in his presence. The alleged misdemeanor was not committed in the policeman's presence. He made the arrest when one of the girls pointed to Mr. Williams as he drove past in his car."

"Second, the detention was unlawful. No warrant had been sworn out. No 'information'—that is the technical word for an accusation made in due form—was laid against Mr. Williams until the day of the trial.

"Third, the first 'identification,' so-called, was not made in a police lineup, where there was a fair chance of discovering whether the two girls could or could not identify the man in question, but in the police precinct station under circumstances where Mr. Williams was the only man they could possibly 'identify.' This was a prejudicial identification."

Dr. Davies warned that "what happened to Mr. Williams might happen to anyone, and sad would be the fate of such a person if he had no money and no friends."

Post Authors' Lunch to Hear Daniels' Talk

There is more than a shade of comparison between "The Man of Independence," the new book about President Truman, and the man who wrote it.

For Jonathan Daniels, who is to speak at the first Washington Post Book and Author Luncheon of the 1950-51 season, grew up as one of four sons of a famous father. He had to make his way independently to establish his own name.

Daniels will discuss his book when the luncheon series opens Thursday, October 26, at 1 p.m. in the Presidential Room of the Statler Hotel.

A classmate of Thomas Wolfe at the University of North Carolina, Daniels has gone on as reporter, Washington correspondent, publisher and author.

In the field of public service he became administrative assistant to President Roosevelt in 1943, a post he held until the late president's death. In the 1948 presidential campaign he traveled with President Truman for three months prior to the election.

Tickets for the October 26 luncheon are $3 and are available at the following book stores: Ballantyne's, Brentano's, Community Book Shop, Paul Pearlman, Kann's book department, Francis Scott Key, Pursell's, Woodward & Lothrop, Whyte's, Savile's, Sidney Kramer, Airport Book Shop, Center Book Shop in Bethesda and, in Alexandria, Better Mouse Trap and Chequire House.

Book and Author luncheons also are scheduled for January 9, March 8 and April 26.

Lancaster, Pa., Honors Man It Says Planned Washington

A plaque was unveiled yesterday in Lancaster, Pa., in memory of the man regarded by some as the planner of Washington.

He is Andrew Ellicott, who undeniably had something to do with laying out the city. Just how much is a matter for historians to ponder.

At any rate, Lancaster County feels quite proud of Ellicott, who lived there for some 10 years. The plaque, sponsored by the Lancaster Historical Society, tells why:

"Scientist, mathematician, astronomer, surveyor who completed the layout of Washington, the National Capital, commissioner to finish the Mason and Dixon line and maker of other State boundaries . . ."

Lancaster County thinks the world is taking too little note of Ellicott—particularly Washington, and particularly in this, its sesquicentennial year.

They wish Washingtonians would come right out and admit that Ellicott was responsible for the plan of Washington, and not Maj. Pierre L'Enfant.

Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant 3d, something of an authority himself on who did what for Washington, said the question of who should get the credit for the plan of Washington is pretty much a matter of semantics. Says Grant:

If you go by who thought up the plan, who originated the ideas, then it's L'Enfant. But if you go by who carried it out, it's Ellicott.

Thing is, General Grant explained, L'Enfant was discharged from his job before the plan was executed. Ellicott, who had been surveyor general while L'Enfant was drawing up the plan, took over and drew a plan just like L'Enfant's except that he made circles in some cases where L'Enfant had planned squares, and changed the line of Massachusetts ave. a little.

But, General Grant added, there is yet a third man whom many think should be credited with the plan. He is Benjamin Banneker, a Negro mathematician appointed by George Washington to serve on L'Enfant's commission.

Grant said that when L'Enfant left, he took his plan with him, and that Banneker, who had been assisting him, told Ellicott what had been in the plan, which Ellicott then drew up. Or so the story goes.

Monument to Get New Lights

The Washington Monument will soon be brightened with $18,900 worth of new lighting fixtures.

National Capital Parks, after 9 years of asking, finally has been given the money to replace the temporary wooden boxes that currently help sheath the monument in light each night.

The new lamps will be set in concrete vaults buried halfway down the slope around the monument. They probably won't be any more powerful than the 35 700-candlepower lamps now in operation but, with a little more efficient focusing, officials hope to make the monument stand out more.

Because the $18,900 figure was estimated 9 years ago, Frank T. Gartside, acting superintendent of National Capital Parks, said NCP may have to use its own reserves to complete the job at 1950 costs.

Auto Crash Injuries Fatal To Navy Man From District

Trio of Alexandria Firemen Hurt in Accident on Way To Fight Blaze

A Washington sailor, injured in a traffic accident while en route back to the Patuxent Naval Air Station September 22, died at the Bethesda Naval Hospital early yesterday.

In weekend accidents, two women were critically hurt, and three Alexandria firemen were injured while driving to a fire.

John Flynn

The sailor was John M. Flynn, jr., an aviation electronicsman, third class, stationed at Patuxent, whose home address is 702 Butternut st. nw.

Flynn was a passenger in an auto which, police said, apparently went out of control on Route 235, near Hermansville, in St. Mary's County, Md. Dr. Frank J. Broschart, Montgomery County Medical Examiner, ruled yesterday that Flynn died accidentally, of head injuries.

The driver of the auto, Radioman Second Class Lindsey Thompson, jr., was seriously injured and is a patient at Bethesda.

Gonzaga Graduate

A graduate of the Nativity School and Gonzaga High School, Flynn flew 62 missions as a crewman on a Navy bomber in England during World War II. His father, John M. Flynn, sr., is a Government Printing Office employe.

He is survived also by his mother, Mrs. Olive Flynn; a brother, Richard S. Flynn, of the home address; two sisters, Miss Jane M. Flynn of the home address, and Mrs. Evelyn F. Casey, San Antonio, Tex.

High mass will be said at 10 a. m. Wednesday at the Nativity Church, 6000 Georgia ave. nw. Burial will be in Arlington Cemetery.

Mrs. Anna Henderson, 74, of 3546 T st. nw., suffered a possible fractured skull and a fractured left leg when she was struck by an auto while crossing the street in the 7000 block of Wisconsin ave. nw. Saturday night. She was admitted to Georgetown Hospital in critical condition. Police identified the driver of the auto as Jack P. Loesberg, 18, a Western High School student who lives at 2505 K st. nw.

Hits Bridge Abutment

Mrs. Corena Jones, 47, of Philadelphia, Pa., suffered critical injuries Saturday night when, police said, she apparently fell asleep at the wheel and struck a bridge abutment in the 4500 block of Bladensburg rd., Colmar Manor, Md.

Freedmen's Hospital doctors said Mrs. Jones suffered head injuries, fractured ribs and a fractured pelvis. She was driving alone, police said.

Assistant Fire Chief Charles Sampson, 35, of 108 S. St. Asaph st.; Pvt. Charles Lyons, 23, of 121 S. St. Asaph st., and Pvt. Melvin Harrington, 29, of 310 E. Windsor st., all of the Alexandria Fire Department, were injured yesterday in a collision at Braddock rd. and Russell rd.

They were all in Sampson's official car, which he was driving to a fire in the 3300 block of Circle Hill rd., when the auto collided with another driven by Frank Kuhn, 29, of 130 Chinquapin Village, Alexandria. Kuhn was charged with failing to yield the right of way to an emergency vehicle.

Loudoun Boy, 14, Is County's 3d Polio Death

Loudoun County's seige of "fraternal" polio took the life of a 14-year-old Waxpool boy this weekend. It was the county's third polio death in less than a month.

The latest fatality in the Northern Virginia county was Frank Teates, jr., who died Saturday night in Gallinger Hospital of bulbar polio.

Frank's 11-year-old brother, Thomas, is seriously ill of bulbar polio in Children's Hospital. Another brother, 8-year-old Roger, is at Children's awaiting a positive diagnosis.

The boys are children of Frank Teates, a distributor for the Evening Star. Frank attended Ashburn Elementary School, where Thomas is also a pupil. There is also a sister, Martha Ann, 6, and a brother, Cecil, 19, who attends Leesburg High School.

Thomas was the first to become ill, and was taken to the hospital last Monday evening. Frank was hospitalized less than 24 hours before he died. Roger complained of feeling ill on a trip to Washington Saturday when his parents were visiting Frank.

Health officials also reported the case of a 16-year-old Round Hill boy whose illness was diagnosed as polio Saturday. He is in Gallinger Hospital and has a seven-year-old brother who was admitted to Children's Hospital with polio more than a week ago.

The newest cases bring the total for the year to 13, the worst since the county began keeping records, according to Dr. Charles G. Souder, county health officer.

Loudoun had three cases in 1949, none the year before, five in 1947, Dr. Souder said. He could recall no cases of polio deaths prior to this year. Many of this year's cases are bulbar, the most serious type, Dr. Souder added.

Break Foiled By Bottling Plant Official

The sales manager of the Pepsi-Cola bottling works at 901 17th st., ne., was showing off his new place of employment to his wife yesterday morning, and his chance visit foiled a $2000 robbery.

Paul Mayer, 32 Woodridge st., ne., brought his wife down from Connecticut Saturday and took her to the plant with him to pick up some mail.

When they arrived they found a man trying to remove a second-floor air-conditioning unit with a pinch bar.

The man leaped one story into an alley and fled, Mayer told police. He said more than $2000 was in the company safe on the second floor.

The suspect was described as a young Negro, 6 feet tall, 170 pounds, wearing a sleeveless blue sweater.

Earlier, thieves made off with loot valued at more than $1200 in two successful housebreakings in the District early yesterday and late Saturday night.

Charles Williams, owner of a variety store at 2304 Georgia ave. nw., reported that hungry chain-smokers entered his store during the night and left with 30 cartons of cigarettes, six boxes of cigars, an 8-pound ham, a 6-pound slice of bologna, plus $5 in pennies, and a .25-caliber pistol.

Mrs. Theresa Wolfsberger told police that her first-floor apartment at 417 18th st. ne., was entered through an unlocked window during the night. She said she was missing $82 in cash, a wrist watch, a ring and a cameo pin. The value of the jewelry, she said, was $108.

3 Spectators Shot Viewing Street Fight

Charles Wilson, 37, 617 2d st. ne., faces three counts of assault with a dangerous weapon today, instead of one, reportedly because he couldn't hit the man he was shooting at.

Instead, he hit three innocent spectators at an argument he had at midnight Saturday with William Pleasant, police reported.

Wilson and Pleasant started fighting in the 600 block of 2d st. ne., police said, and two neighbors stuck their heads out of their window and a third man stopped at the corner to see the show. That was their mistake.

Police said Wilson drew a gun as Pleasant started to flee, and fired four shots.

One bullet struck Mrs. Lydia Cox, 73, 619 2d st. ne., in the right arm, as she leaned out her second-story window, police said.

Another hit Miss Barbara Cox in the right hand. Both are in good condition at Gallinger Hospital.

A third bullet struck Robert Morris, 26, of 232 E st. ne., in the left heel as he tried to duck around the corner, police said. He was treated at Gallinger and released.

John J. Raskob Dies; Retired Industrialist

JOHN J. RASKOB

CENTREVILLE, Md., Oct. 15—(AP)—John J. Raskob, 71, who helped teach America how to buy automobiles on the installment plan and onetime Democratic national chairman, died early today.

The former chairman of the finance committee of General Motors, associate of the duPonts of Wilmington, friend of Al Smith and one of the Nation's leading industrialists, suffered a heart attack at his Eastern Shore estate near here.

He had arrived at the 3000-acre estate Friday with a group of friends from New York. Last night he suffered what he believed to be an attack of indigestion.

He became worse and died before Dr. H. F. McPherson arrived from his home in Centreville.

Retired in 1946

Mr. Raskob, who began his career as a financial wizard as secretary to Pierre S. duPont in 1900, had been in retirement since 1946. He and Pierre duPont, close associates for half a century, moved into General Motors together and gained control in 1915.

Mr. Raskob stepped out of his industrialist role in 1928 to help Al Smith in his unsuccessful campaign for President. Mr. Raskob remained a power in the Democratic Party—and to a great extent its financial angel—until 1932.

Although his Nation-wide fame came because of his connection with the Democratic high command, Mr. Raskob was a giant in industry long before then.

He was credited with being the author of the plan whereby automobile manufacturers would finance car purchases on the installment plan. For a time he served as vice president of the General Motors Acceptance Corporation, which financed automobile sales.

Owened Fabulous Farm

Raskob had owned the fabulous Pioneer farm on the Chester River for about 20 years. It is a showplace of Maryland's Eastern Shore.

He is survived by his wife, seven daughters, three sons, a brother, Will Raskob of Wilmington, also a former duPont executive, and two sisters.

Another highlight of Mr. Raskob's political career was the break between Smith and Franklin D. Roosevelt, ending in the latter's nomination at Chicago. Throughout this struggle, Mr. Haskob was reported to have remained neutral.

However, Mr. Raskob became active in the Liberty League, which opposed the re-election of President Roosevelt in 1936.

The industrialist said later that he joined the league because of "political persecution" in a tax case against himself and Pierre duPont.

Although he continued to maintain offices in New York, Mr. Raskob outwardly was inactive in politics during his later years.

In 1946, he resigned as director and vice president of the duPont de Nemours Co. He followed this resignation about a month later by retiring as a member of the board of directors of General Motors.

Raskob, a Catholic, twice was knighted by the Pope. He was given the titles of Knight Commander of the Order of St. Gregory the Great and Knight of Malta.

Rice Diet Held Impractical Although Good

Columbia University medical scientists have confirmed the so-called "rice diet" as beneficial to patients with high blood pressure but . . .

It is not, however, a "practical" treatment because it is "impalatable, monotonous and difficult to maintain long enough to exert its effects," they noted.

The diet calls for meals almost exclusively of rice, with a little fruit—foods extremely limited in salt content.

The Columbia clinical study, reported in the current issue of the American Journal of Medicine, extended over a two-year period. It was supported in part by grants from the National Heart Institute, the Lasker Foundation and the Trachtenberg Fund for Study of Rice Diet.

Its findings are expected to settle to a great degree the controversy which has followed reports by Dr. Walter Kempner of Duke University on the rice diet benefits in hypertension.

In the New York testings, a group of 50 high blood pressure patients were hospitalized and received the Kempner diet to the letter. Average length of the diet period was 10½ weeks and it was started only after the patients had been hospitalized for several weeks on regular diets.

Good results were noted with more than half of the patients suffering essential hypertension, a form of high blood pressure of unknown cause, they noted.

The doctors emphasized that most of the patients on the strict diet returned to their high pressure blood levels once the diet was halted.

90 Go Ashore As Canal Boat Springs Leak

Ninety Sunday sightseers escaped a ducking yesterday when the National Capital Park's two-mule-power navy sank to its gunwales in the Chesapeake & Ohio canal.

Their good fortune was due to a complete reversal of form on the part of their vessel's temperamental power plant. Tom and Mike, the mules which only a week ago bolted and left the Canal Clipper stranded, rose to the occasion yesterday and towed their sinking burden to the canal bank where the passengers scrambled ashore.

All this happened during the ancient barge's regular Sunday cruise up the canal to Brookmont, Md., and return. Foaming along at a brisk four knots, it collided with a sodden log under Key Bridge, tearing a gaping hole in its side below the waterline.

Tied up to the bank with the aid of Tom and Mike, it sank slowly until it rested on the bottom.

Capt. Harry Crampton, skipper of the craft, said the damage could be repaired in a matter of hours and promised the Clipper would be back in service for its final trip of the 1950 season next Sunday.

The old barge is the remnant of a once thriving traffic on the 119-year-old C. & O. Canal. It was put into service several years ago to provide Sunday sightseers a backward glimpse into the days when Washington was a village, Georgetown a lusty port and railways but a gleam in the eye of a few crazy dreamers.

Policy Stand Adopted by Federalists

The United World Federalists yesterday formally adopted a wait-and-see policy toward the question of establishing a federation of nations without the Soviet Union.

The question was the most hotly debated point on the agenda of the Federalists' four-day General Assembly at the Shoreham Hotel. The assembly ended yesterday with the adoption of a lengthy statement of publicy and the re-election of UWF's president, Alan Cranston of Palo Alto, Calif.

On the question of a partial federation, the statement of policy reads:

"No one can now be wise enough to say exactly what steps towards world federation the United States and like-minded nations should take in the light of world conditions in the event statement of policy and the rejection" refers to world federation through the United Nations.] Certainly at that time we must seriously consider the possibility of establishing a less-than-universal federation remaining open to all nations, and without destroying the United Nations.

"In any event, until universal federation is attained the armament of the United States and friendly nations, whether federated or not, must be sufficient to resist aggression."

UWF's statement of policy also included a paragraph that firmly bars from membership "persons who are communist or fascist or others who seek to overthrow the Government of—or in the interests of a foreign power seek to weaken—the United States, or to change its form of government by other than constitutional means."

Reaffirming UWF's support of the United Nations, the 2500-word statement declared "that it should be a fundamental objective of United States foreign policy to support and strengthen the United Nations and to develop it so that it shall have the power to make, enforce and interpret world laws adequate to maintain peace and prevent aggression."

Teacher, Son Accused on Drink Charges

A woman who said she was a school teacher was charged with being drunk and disorderly in Bethesda by Montgomery County police early yesterday morning.

Her son, Charles A. Baldwin, 27, of the same address, was charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of alcohol, reckless driving, having no muffler and assaulting a police officer. He was released under $1000 bond and she under $50, to appear for a hearing in Rockville, October 23.

Police Privates Norman Berkshire and James Lawrence said they stopped a car driven by Baldwin for investigation after they saw it narrowly miss cars parked at Montgomery ave. and Pearl st., at 2:30 a. m.

Mother and son started swinging and swearing, police reported.

Mrs. Baldwin said she and her son had been to a party in Takoma Park, Md. She said they had "a few drinks," but were not intoxicated.

Colonial Dames Open National Council Today

THE NATIONAL Society of the Colonial Dames of America will open its 28th biennial national council here today. The meetings will continue through Friday, with Mrs. Thomas W. Streeter of Morristown, N. J., national president, presiding. Meetings of the board, committees and council will be held in the society's headquarters, Dumbarton House, and at the Shoreham Hotel.

Preliminary arrangements have been in the hands of Mrs. James H. Patten, president of the District of Columbia Society, with her assistants, Mrs. Rudolph Max Kauffmann, Mrs. Norman Munster, Mrs. Detlow Marthinson, Mrs. Eldred Dickinson, Miss Carolyn Nash, Mrs. Warren Stephenson, Mrs. Charles Mackall, Mrs. Robert Templeman, Mrs. Vernon West, Mrs. Clarence Dodge, jr., Mrs. James Gawne, Mrs. Donald C. Bingham and the members of their committees. In appreciation for the work which the District of Columbia Society has done, the National Society is presenting it with a Stand of Colors.

ONE OF THE objectives of this council will be the preservation and restoration of Gunston Hall, which was left to the State of Virginia, in the custody of the Colonial Dames, by the generous gift of the late Mr. and Mrs. Louis Hertle, who lived there for many years.

Gunston Hall was built in 1755 by George Mason, neighbor, friend and adviser of George Washington, and author of the Virginia Declaration of Rights, on which the first 10 amendments to our Constitution are based. The house was formally dedicated last May with a ceremony at which Vice President Barkley spoke. Gunston Hall is now open daily as a shrine.

The garden is being restored by the Garden Club of Virginia from the proceeds of the Virginia garden tour of 1948.

AMONG THE society's social events of the week will be a tea, with Mrs. Harry S. Truman as the guest of honor, at the national headquarters, Dumbarton House, on Q st.

The national president, Mrs. Streeter, will be hostess Tuesday evening at a reception at the Shoreham Hotel, given to the national officers, former national officers, members of the council, and members of the District Society committee working on the council. Another Tuesday event is a tea given by the Club of Colonial Dames at their headquarters for national officers, former national officers, national committee chairmen and delegates. A trip to Gunston Hall is being arranged for Wednesday afternoon for council members. On Thursday evening, there will be a subscription dinner at the Shoreham Hotel, at which the principal speaker will be Dean Elmer Louis Kayser of George Washington University,

Experimental Edna

Eyebrows Set Off Orbs Like a Picture Frame

Ninth day of Edna's beauty program.

By Ann Lawrence

EDNA'S EYES are small. A deep shade of green with brown flecks, they are set at a pert, tilted angle and properly made-up, could lend a most piquant look to her face.

Not made-up, with almost no visible brows and lashes, as she has been wearing them, they are lost in her face, and appear only as narrow slits.

Eyebrow grooming was the first corrective measure. Although her own brows are scraggly and thin, she learned to brush them daily, coating her brush first with vaseline or baby oil. Brushing from the bridge of the nose straight up, then across and out to the corners, will train the stragglers to fall into a natural arch. The oil will keep them glistening and will help to darken them.

Because her face is long, Edna's brows should be fairly full, with a sloping arch. Where nature failed, artifice came to the rescue in the form of a light brown brow pencil. Using deft, light strokes, she painted on her own brows shaping them into the desired, full arch.

Her pale lashes were treated to a coat of brown, waterproof mascara. And after the first application had dried, a second coat was applied to the top, outer lashes only. This, too, enhanced the tip-tilt of her eyes.

For daytime, Edna can use her brown eyebrow pencil to paint on a street-wear version of the "doe-eyed" look. Sharpening the pencil to a fine point, she holds taut, with her index and middle finger, the skin surrounding the corner of her eye, without blinking. Then she takes her pencil and starts at the center of the eye, as close to the lid as possible and draws a line across to the outer corner, ending the line with an up-slant stroke, as pictured.

A finer line, applied under the lower lashes—and only about one-eighth of an inch long—will serve to enlarge her eye.

For nighttime, she'll use the same technique, but instead of the pencil, she will use brown mascara. This, she was taught to apply with a fine-line lipstick brush.

A gray-green eye shadow, applied from the center of the upper lid and blended out and up to the corner of her brows, completed the eye make-up.

Her eye make-up might be compared to framing a small picture. The large frame—the eyebrows—tend to make the picture, the eyes themselves, seem larger. Shadow is like the mat surrounding the picture; it harmonizes or contrasts pleasantly with the dominant tone of the painting and also serves as a frame. Mascara is the artist's finishing touch.

Convertible Dresses Lead Multiple Lives

Most women have some sort of convertible top dress — a day time frock that becomes a dinner frock by removing a stole, a cape, or a little jacket. But the convertible skirt dress is news. Last year there were a few dresses with extra tie-on skirts of tulle or lace that made a dancing dress out of a slim sheath.

Today this fashion includes convertible skirts that give you either a slim or a full skirted silhouette in the same dress. The dress itself is basically slim—with a button-on full overskirt, or tunic, or apron which completely changes both the silhouette and the look of the dress. It's one of the smartest and most useful fashions we've had in a long time.

Life on the Open Road Isn't Carefree as the Poets And Song Writers Make Out

LIFE ON THE OPEN ROAD can mean cooking in close quarters. Witness this letter from Baltimore:

DEAR ANNE:

My vocation requires that I travel around the country extensively, so my wife and I live in a trailer-house. As you know, the quarters are somewhat cramped, and we do not have room enough for the necessary cooking utensils.

Now we want to know if any harmful effects come from eating food prepared or cooked in cans. Our friends have told us that the lacquer coating on the inside of the can would poison the food. As you can see, if no ill effects come from cooking food in cans, we could not only save space but also save time. Please give us a solution to our problem.

DALE SMITH, Baltimore.

Cooking in cans is perfectly harmless—opened cans, that is. The linings are made nowadays so you can heat or refrigerate food in the can with perfect safety. It's often done and mighty convenient, too, for people who must prepare meals in limited space.

DEAR ANNE:

I have some very lovely lamp shades—some in rayon taffeta, raw silk, ruffly net, etc. They all need cleaning. After calling various cleaning establishments around town and finding none would take them, I decided maybe I could do them myself. Is there anyway in which this could be done at home without ruining them and without having them turn out all wrinkles?

MRS. R. G., Washington, D. C.

One of the dry-cleaning fluids designed for home use could be used to dip the shades.

You can find them at some filling stations and in the houseware's departments of stores. But do the deed outdoors. Many of these fluids are inflammable, and practically all gives off fumes. Dip the shades in and out of the fluid, using a soft brush on the more soiled places. Try not to rumple or crumple ruffles, et al, so that they will stay as smooth as they are. When you've finished dipping shades, shake out excess fluid and clip to the clothes line to dry and air.

Another way to clean shades, especially the less soiled ones, is to dampen corn starch with dry cleaning fluid and spread it over the shades. Let stand for a time and then brush away. This treatment can be repeated as often as improvement is noticed.

U. S. Business Women's Week Starts Today

SUNDAY MARKED the opening of the twenty-third observance of National Business Women's Week, which is being celebrated by 150,000 women in 2800 Business and Professional Women's clubs all over the United States.

Prominent in the observance of this week, which has been set aside to pay tribute to the accomplishments of women to encourage them to go forward toward their goal, is the District of Columbia Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs. The theme of the week is "Measure Up For Full Partnership."

President Truman in a letter of praise and encouragement to National Federation President, Judge Sara T. Hughes, stated that "I am happy to give encouragement to the theme, "Measure Up For Full Partnership," which you have chosen for the National Business Women's Week. I believe that the steps which lead to success on the job are basically the same for both men and women."

RELIGIOUS SERVICES at three prominent churches in the District—Chevy Chase Presbyterian, First Baptist and St. Matthews Cathedral—opened the week and a full program of activity sponsored by the clubs in the District of Columbia federation is planned.

The Chevy Chase Club is sponsoring a Community Musical Festival, under the direction of Maria de la Hull, formerly of the London Grand Opera Co., at Dimitrieh Studio, 5612 Connecticut ave., at 8 p. m. today. There will also be a luncheon and fashion show on Saturday, October 21, at the Broadmoor Hotel at 1 p. m.

The L'Enfant and Tower Clubs have joined with the District club in sponsoring a luncheon on Saturday, October 21, at the Shoreham Hotel Blue Room.

SPEAKERS AT luncheons will stress the theme of the week. At the Chevy Chase Club "Community Assets and Liabilities" will be discussed by Henry Grattan Doyle, Dr. Samuel Higger of the Citizens Association and Kenneth Birgfeld, assistant vice president of American Security & Trust Co.

The luncheon to be held at the Shoreham on Saturday will feature three outstanding women speakers, Miss Bertha S. Adkins, executive director of Women's Division of the National Republican Committee; Mrs. John L. Whitehurst, Democratic National Committeewoman from Baltimore, Md., and Miss Pauline Mandigo, president of Phoenix News Bureau of New York, and public relations adviser to the national federation. Tickets for this luncheon may be obtained from Mrs. Ruth Mulrey.

Half-Blind Pilot Lands Jet After Cockpit Blast

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 15 (AP).—A jet pilot nearly blinded by a cockpit explosion set his fighter plane down perfectly here today. When the wheels stopped, he fainted.

The pilot, Maj. Thornton Peck, 30, of Granger, Tex., was flying with another Air Force plane about 100 miles south of here when the canopy of Peck's F-84 Thunderjet let go.

The blast — apparently caused by increased pressure inside the canopy—sent flying plexiglass ripping through the cockpit, tearing a deep gash above Peck's eye. The force also tore off his crash helmet and throat microphone, leaving him without radio communication.

Lieut. Donald Watt, 25, his wing mate, saw something was wrong when Peck's plane began losing altitude. Watt guided the half-blind Peck into the Kanawha airport. Peck was treated for the face cut that took five stitches to close, shock and loss of blood.

Veteran Is Killed By Policeman in Battle on Subway

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15 (AP).—A rookie policeman, struggling to unholster his service pistol, and a Navy veteran, armed with a knife, fought a death battle aboard a crowded Broad st. subway train today. The veteran was killed.

Terrified passengers cowered at one end of the car as Edward Rouch, 23, the policeman, and Samuel S. Ellis, jr., 22, grappled.

The two fighters were locked in a tussle on the floor as the train pulled into Spring Garden st. station. Two muffled shots mingled with the screams of the riders, and Ellis collapsed.

Rouch came out of the fight with knife wounds and cuts. Police are seeking two men with whom the rookie policeman said Ellis was fighting before the fatal battle. One of the men was believed to have been stabbed by Ellis, police said.

Arrests of Spies Total 28,000, Red China Says

LONDON, Oct. 15 (AP).—Communist China today said it had arrested 28,000 persons since January, 1949, on charges of spying for the United States and Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government.

The figure was contained in a broadcast report on the opening of a new photo exhibition in Peiping purporting to show how "U. S. imperialists had been working hand-in-glove with Kuomintang (Nationalist) secret agents in counter-revolutionary activities against the Chinese people."

8 British Fliers Die In Bomber Collision

Others present were Joseph-Paul Boncour of France, a close collaborator of Briand, but not a member of the Locarno delegation; Henry Rollin, a member of the Belgian delegation in 1925; Ferruccio Parri, Italian senator, and Christopher Mayhew, former member for the British Parliament and former Undersecretary of State in the Foreign Office.

ADVERTISING OPPORTUNITY

Here's a chance for a college graduate to get a toehold on the advertising ladder. To start, it's only a messenger's job at $30 a week. Within a few months, the next step will be calling on the retail trade, doing merchandising. After that—probably advertising salesman, but maybe research or production or copy, depending on the man. This is really a good opportunity and we want to give it to the right man. Since it's primarily a stepping stone to selling advertising, don't apply unless you have a sales personality. If in doubt, you haven't.

565 Acres with Brick House
This highly productive farm is in the fertile Shenandoah Valley, 70 miles from Washington. The handsome Georgian brick house is nearly fireproof and commands a beautiful mountain view. The bath house at the swimming pool is in the style of the main house. There are 3 sets of farm buildings, with housing for the farm help. The brick stable is worthy of the finest horses, and is designed so that it can be converted to a dairy barn if desired. One of the most attractive features about this farm is its frontage on the beautiful Shenandoah River. Though it is clear of debt, illness in the owner's family brings it on the market at the reasonable price of $100,000. Shown by appointment by

France Near Battle Over Vote System

PARIS, Oct. 15—(U.P.)—The French National Assembly, after months of stalling and delaying, next week will take up one of the hottest potatoes in French politics—the system under which the next nation-wide elections will be held.

The present Assembly, elected in 1946 under the system of proportional representation, has at most 1 more year of life. The next general elections must occur not later than October, 1951. More probably they will take place next May or June, traditional election months in France.

In the last 150 years France has tried nearly every possible electoral system and has not been satisfied with any of them. After every general election there is a loud clamor from the defeated parties that the electoral system must be changed.

The trouble is, however, that all parties have different ideas of what system they want. There is no agreement even inside the parties themselves.

The government finally has stepped in with an electoral reform bill for the Assembly to consider when it returns from its summer recess Tuesday.

Representing a compromise between the different schools inside the middle-of-the-road coalition Cabinet itself, the bill has been hailed as a masterpiece of complexity.

To replace the single-ballot, proportional representation system used in 1946, it proposes:

1. Voting on two consecutive Sundays for lists of candidates put up by each political party in France's 89 departments.

2. Any list of candidates that scrapes together more than 50 percent of the votes on the first Sunday gets elected automatically.

3. Any list that gets together more than 40 percent of the votes in the second ballot is elected automatically.

4. If no list gets even 40 percent in the second ballot, the result will be decided on the basis of proportional representation.

The system of two separate ballots, dropped in 1946, has been revived as the likeliest way of shutting out the Communists. In the finest French political tradition, parties that denounce each other as "cutthroats" before the first vote will get together between the two ballots to put up a revised list of non-Communist Fully aware of this, the Communists, who won the largest number of seats in the last elections, have protested angrily at the double-ballot proposal. However, it appears certain to ride through, perhaps changed substantially.

'Cancer' Eats Gargoyles of Notre Dame

PARIS, Oct. 15 (U.P.)—The angels and gargoyles that stare down from the turrets of Notre Dame Cathedral at the gray waters of the Seine River are literally dying from a mysterious "cancer," French officials reported today.

Scientists in several parts of France are working frantically to find a "cure" for the disease that threatens not only statues but some of the noblest buildings in France.

Officials of the National Monuments Commission explained that the disease is caused by a microscopic organism carried by the wind. The organism bores its way into soft stone, raises a "cancerous mold" and after a time crumbles the stone like powder.

The stone "cancer" was first discovered in Paris just before World War II. Workmen at Notre Dame first found evidence of it on the sandstone figurines decorating its facade. While cleaning the statues, they found that the stone crumbled beneath their touch.

Experts at first believed the disease was caused by industrial smoke, which settled on the stone and, mixed with rain water, formed an acid.

Then, suddenly, evidences of the same disease were discovered in the almost smokeless section of the Loire River.

Experts were convinced then that the disease had spread from Paris to the country.

For more than five years, chemists and biologists worked to find the origin of the disease, taking samples of stone from many parts of France.

Finally, they discovered the disease was caused by a tiny organism that thrived only on the cold, sparse diet of stone.

Like some cancer in human beings, the disease can be controlled to a certain extent. Annual washing of the buildings arrests development of the disease. But, also like human cancer, no positive cure or preventive has been found.

Atom Bomb Deadly Menace To Britain, Attlee Warns

LONDON, Oct. 15 (U.P.)—Prime Minister Clement Attlee grimly reminded Britons tonight that the atomic bomb is a "deadly menace" to this island. He said Britain could be attacked "suddenly and without warning" and appealed for volunteers to fill the gaps in undermanned civil defense services.

In a nation-wide broadcast Attlee recalled that Britain was acting in concert with many other free nations to build up defenses to deter any would-be aggressor, but he pointed out that deadly blows could be struck against Britain by air.

"We all know from experience—and events in Korea are the most recent example—that an attack by the strong on the weak may take place suddenly and without warning," he said. "Unless there are defense forces available, the aggressor may be tempted to attack in the hope of a swift and easy success.

"Such an attack may come by air. We know what that means.

"If war should ever come again, which God forbid, we must be ready," the Prime Minister warned. "We must do our utmost to prevent war reaching these shores, but should it do so, we must be prepared to meet it with the same spirit and the same skill that was shown in the last war."

Turning to those who believed civil defense was useless because enemy bombers would pierce Britain's defenses, Attlee reminded that much was done in the last war.

"It is worth recalling, too," he said, "that the experts (before 1939) overestimated the effects of air attack and they may do so again."

Attlee spoke as Britain's greatest peacetime aerial exercise to test the island's defense against enemy bombers drew to a close.

Air Minister Arthur Henderson, reviewing the eight-day maneuvers, said the screen against atomic bombs was far from perfect, but the task of plugging the gaps was under way.

Russians to Join In World Tribute To Jan Sibelius

LONDON, Oct. 15 (U.P.)—An American art expert said today the Russians had agreed to join in a world-wide musical tribute in December to Finnish composer Jan Sibelius.

Carleton Smith, director of the National Arts Foundation of New York, said he had received official word from Moscow.

"We have been trying to find some sort of common ground with Russian culture for years," he said. "In a letter today I have been informed the Leningrad Symphony Orchestra and Moscow Radio will be "glad to offer a tribute to the illustrious composer."

But He's Got Charm

Frank Doesn't Seem Happy as an Emcee

By John Crosby

FRANK SINATRA has brought what a press release describes as his "heart-throbbing personality" to television on the new hour-long musical variety show (CBS-TV—WTOP, 9 p. m. Saturdays). Well, it's been a long time since the hearts throbbed so violently, seven years since the first babe allegedly swooned in the middle of one of Frankie's glissandos (at the Riobamba nightclub in the spring of 1943, in case you keep a record of historic occurrences). Frankie's hair has grown gray at the temples and the teenagers who used to have screaming and fainting fits at the Paramount are now—well, bless my soul—old ladies in their 20s.

Crosby

In the interval, though, Sinatra has picked up a lot of assurance, has become a surprisingly good actor, but a rather bad emcee. That last is not necessarily intended as criticism. He doesn't seem very happy as an emcee. He employs the Ed Sullivan technique, if you can call it that, the deprecatory of "Please-forgive-me-but-the-sponsor-insists-I-make-jokes" approach.

IN SPITE of his advancing years, Sinatra has maintained an impenetrable innocence toward the handling of comedy lines. However, when you put him in a sketch with plain, ordinary dialogue and other actors, he is a very charming and engaging fellow.

It's rather ordinary revue with Sinatra popping out in front of a curtain from time to time, making with jokes and then introducing the hoofers.

Sinatra's better qualities—charm complicated by hyperesthesia—were displayed to better advantage in a mystifying sketch with J. Carroll Naish, the Luigi of radio's "Life With Luigi" in which they discussed the dignity of man and America. (Both got good marks.) I don't know why this was inserted but I have an idea CBS was trying out "Life With Luigi" to see if it has television possibilities. From that fragment inflicted on us, I should say it hadn't.

SINATRA teamed with Ben Blue, another permanent member of the entourage, in a pantomime involving an imitation of Charlie Chaplin (Mr. Blue) and Jackie Coogan as The Kid (Mr. Sinatra) Both of them were very expert and appealing in their roles but the sketch, again, didn't seem to add up to much.

You can't review the Sinatra show without mentioning the "Voice," which like the office of the Presidency of the United States is automatically capitalized. Well, Mr. Sinatra wasn't in very good Voice for his opening, sounding hoarse and rather strident, but since these jarring dissonances are missing from his current records, I imagine this is a temporary condition.

The real trouble with the Sinatra show is that no one seems to know what kind of show they want. There is no need for Sinatra to be wandering around in front of a curtain introducing hoofers. No one introduces the hoofers in a stage revue. There is no need for a curtain and there isn't any real need for an audience. The ingenuity of the cameras and the very real ability of Mr. Sinatra are both being stunted by a lack of imagination.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Stop, Look and Listen, But Not Always

The Washington & Old Dominion railroad tracks cross Shirley hwy. at a point near Shirlington, Va. A resident of the area asked three weeks ago:

"Why is it that Greyhound and Trailways buses stop before crossing these tracks while the A. B. & W.—which operates 20 times as many vehicles along the road—doesn't even slow down? It's a dangerous spot, and many pleasure cars have been in accidents there."

For the ensuing three weeks, I have tried to nail down a definite answer. To no avail.

Greyhound Supervisor William F. Owens' testimony was short and sweet. "We're under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and ICC safety rules order a full stop at all railroad crossings. We make no exceptions." Trailways follows the same policy.

Morton Knight, traffic director for A. B. & W., is in a more difficult position. His line is not subject to ICC safety rules, whfch exempt lines which are "wholly within a municipality, between contiguous municipalities, or within a zone adjacent to and commercially a part of a municipality."

But George R. Wellington, ICC's chief of the Section of Safety, Bureau of Motor Carriers, pointed out that all Virginia vehicles must comply with Section 2154(131) of the State Code.

It says that, except in cities and towns, it shall be the duty of EVERY driver, on approaching a grade crossing where there is neither flagman nor gates, to slow down to 5 miles per hour before passing across the tracks. Every school bus shall be brought to a stop. No other distinction is made among various other types of vehicles, pleasure or commercial.

"But we can't suddenly slow down to 5 miles an hour on a 50-mile-an-hour highway," groans Knight. "We'd be inviting accidents and pileups. We can, and do, stop in the city of Alexandria, where the crossings are in 25-mile zones."

Arlington and Virginia State Police are noncommittal. They've made no visible effort to enforce the 5-mile-an-hour limit, and it's hard to find anybody who thinks they should.

The prevailing feeling is that the automatic blinker lights at the crossing are, in effect, a "mechanical watchman," and that the law therefore doesn't apply. But you can't find anybody who can cite a section of the law which covers the point.

What it boils down to is that A. B. & W. is in something of a pickle. If one of its buses suddenly slows down to 5 miles an hour and causes an accident, there's going to be a lawsuit. And if it keeps pace with the untold autos that whiz across the tracks at 50, and then gets hit by a train, there's going to be the devil to pay.

Says Knight: "We'll be happy to abide by an official ruling either way. We want to do whatever is considered best and safest."

But to date, A. B. & W. still isn't stopping, and both Greyhound and Trailways are stopping. Their buses pull two wheels off the road and come to a dead halt, and haven't had any trouble with pileups.

Just to make the confusion complete, Capital Transit's E. Cleveland Giddings told me: "It's our policy to stop at all railroad crossings. We have about a half dozen on our routes, and we don't want to take any chances."

But Capital Transit's buses roll merrily across the tracks at the far end of Sousa Bridge—and I'd say it's a good thing they do. If they stopped for that crossing during rush hours, traffic on Pennsylvania ave. se. would be tangled into a hopeless snarl.

You figure it out. I've spent three weeks getting no place.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

I enjoy your column immensely, but the other day (in the item about the lack of ice skating facilities here) you wrote: " . . . and even a roller 'derby' this fall." I resent that.

The roller derby is a wonderful sport, and has thousands of fans. Maybe you don't think much of "the fastest sport in the country" because you never really watched a game.

But if you'd sit down and watch it, and see the great sportsmanship and courage of the players, you'd become a fan for life.

Say a good word for the roller derby and all is forgiven.

Shirley Scott,
Park St.
Vienna, Va.

Dear Shirley:

I didn't say any bad words about it. I merely put "derby" in quotation marks because the word primarily means either a man's hat or a horse race patterned after the English classic named for the Earl of Derby.

However, now that you accuse me of being unexcited about roller derbies, I'll plead guilty. As a reformed sports writer, I've seen my share, and put them in the same category with professional wrestling.

I'll give the skaters A-plus for courage, to be sure. But I don't seem to recall very much of that sportsmanship you mention.

Bill

THESE MODERN TIMES

Television is having a profound effect on us in more ways than one. Yesterday afternoon, for example, the lady at our house said:

"Good grief. This is Sunday, and you haven't had any exercise in weeks. Aren't you going to get in a little golf today?"

"No," I replied, "I think I'll watch that 'Capitol Cloakroom' show on TV this afternoon. Some of these television programs are quite educational and broadening, you know."

"They're broadening, all right," she snorted, "and if you keep loafing around the house and getting much broader, you'll need new suits again."

WITH SOUND EFFECTS

Poet Jay Aitch lapses into prose to observe that the years pass silently for some of us, but for most of us, "old age creaks up quite audibly."

Cumbersome Lifeboat Gear Hit

By Drew Pearson

Just as the ill-fated hospital ship Benevolence sank recently without lowering a lifeboat, the same thing could happen to seven troopships which are still equipped with cumbersome lifeboat gear, almost useless in an emergency.

Pearson

These troopships are plying the Atlantic and Pacific today, crammed with GI's going to Korea and Germany, or with dependents coming home. In case of an emergency, they may not be as fortunate as the Benevolence passengers who went down within easy range of San Francisco rescue boats.

These seven troopships carry their lifeboats cradled in Navy triple-bank davits which don't even meet the minimum safety standards of the Coast Guard. It takes ship's power to swing the davits out with any degree of speed. Yet ship's power usually fails in any emergency serious enough to require lifeboats. Though substitute handcranks are attached to the davits, the mechanism is too slow and cumbersome to swing the lifeboats in position within the 10-minute Coast Guard limit.

The troopships still using triple-bank davits are the Generals W. M. Black, Le Roy Eltinge, W. G. Hann, Stuart Heintzelman, W. C. Langlitt, M. B. Stewart and S. D. Sturgis. All were inherited from the Army but are now operated by the unified Military Sea Transport Service. As military vessels, these ships do not come under Coast Guard jurisdiction. However, the ships' officers have complained repeatedly about the unsafe lifeboat gear. So far, their warnings have gone ignored.

A mate who sailed on the SS General Sturgis told this column: "Emergencies likely to be encountered on ships at sea, such as fires, strandings, founderings and collisions, would not only make lifeboats necessary but, on this ship, would make them almost useless."

A Navy spokesman explained that the Military Sea Transport Service has been so hard-pressed for troopships, since the Korean war began, that there hasn't been time to improve the ships inherited from the Army. The same spokesman denied, however, that a power failure had prevented the Benevolence's lifeboats from being lowered. He insisted the hospital ship was not equipped with triple-bank davits which require ship's power, but with simple gravity davits.

Yet Capt. Barton Bacon, jr., commander of the Benevolence, told a Coast Guard inquiry that lack of power had made it impossible to get lifeboats over the side. The frantic crew was able to cut loose only one lifeboat, which immediately capsized.

Whistle-Stop Truman??

Before the President decided to visit General MacArthur, Democratic politicians had been begging him on bended knees to make a fist-swinging, whistle-stop tour during the last 10 days of the campaign. Mr. Truman, however, has remained lukewarm.

The inside reason for his coolness is not the official explanation at the White House—that the President is pressed with urgent problems. It is his own fear that he cannot repeat his 1948 victory in an off year.

Presidential Secretaries Matt Connelly and John Steelman threw the most cold water on the speech tour, because: "If the boss goes out and does his best and we still lose seats in Congress, he won't be the champ any more. That would hurt in 1952."

Democratic Chairman Bill Boyle and acting campaign director, Senator Clinton Anderson, on the other hand recommend that Mr. Truman take the last 10 days before the election to stir up excitement and get voters to the polls. Their reason: Confidential and alarming reports that reveal the Democrats will lose key seats unless they get out a big vote.

Truman Rewards GOP

A quiet move is under way by the AFL, CIO, and Railway Brotherhoods to beard Mr. Truman in the White House and bluntly ask him why labor has been ignored in favor of Republican big business executives in making recent mobilization appointments.

One labor official complained to Don Dawson, President Truman's personnel man, "there is only one labor man in all the new defense setup—Eli Oliver on Symington's Resources Board."

William Green and Phil Murray have also griped to sympathetic Congressmen. The appointments that particularly rankle them are:

William Henry Harrison, former executive of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co., as director of the new National Production Authority.

Alan Valentine, former president of the University of Rochester and corporation director, as Economic Stabilization Director. Valentine was executive director of the Democrats for Willkie in 1940.

Towering and popular Cy Ching, chief of the Federal Conciliation Service, to be chairman of the Wage Stabilization Board. Ching is a Republican, former vice president of United States Rubber.

Capital Chaff

The United Nations Commission has reported that the South Koreans were just as guilty of war atrocities as the North Koreans—until the United States Army found out and put its foot down . . . Republic of Korea President Syngman Rhee is so busy making political capital out of the U. N. military victory that he is becoming a nuisance to the Army, is embarrassing the State Department.
